OMAN BANK CASHIER HELD IN SHORTAGE OF $51,600

rs. Bess Ohlinger of Shawneetown (Ill.) Depository Charged With Embezzlement in Federal Warrant.

WO EVENTS LED TO DETECTION

eath of Son and Unexpected Visit of Examiner Exposed Her—Bank forced to Sell Assets to Competitor.

ial to the Post-Dispatch.
SHAWNEETOWN, Ill., June 8.—he death of her 21-year-old son an automobile accident, followed 10 days by an unexpected visit om a Federal bank examiner, dised that Mrs. Boss Ohlinger, mer cashier of the City National k here, had misappropriated 1,600 of the bank's money, W. Brinkley, president of the dey, said tonight.

Mrs. Ohlinger, a widow, and ughter of a former president of e bank, was arrested today on a deral warrant charging embezzlement. She was taken to Harsburg by a Deputy Marshal and ere released on $10,000 bond.

Disclosure of the shortage on March 19, caused directors of the nk to sell its assets to the Naonal Bank of Shawneetown, in order to avoid being closed by the nk examiner, Brinkley said. The pository with total resources of 0,000, was capitalized for $25,- and had a surplus of $15,000. he bank was protected against heft by a $5,000 surety bond.

All Depositors Paid.

"We paid off all our depositors at once," Brinkley said. "Stockolders, who can be assessed 100 er cent for the amount of stock ey own, will pay most of the loss nd we directors will pay the rest. e hope it won't be much over the ock assessment, but the bank had lot of real estate we had loaned oney on in these hard times, and e excess over the assessment will epend upon how much we can et the real estate for. It's hard sell it for any price these days." The bank's loss, Brinkley's statement indicates, will be at least 0,000, inasmuch as the capital, rplus and a 100 per cent stock sessment, less the amount reverable under the surety bond, ake this figure.

Mrs. Ohlinger, who had been shier of the bank for 15 years, nfessed to Brinkley and the exminer, Edward Van Ord, that she d taken all the money within the st two years, Brinkley said. He as elected president of the bank o years ago, after Mrs. Ohlinger's father, who formerly held the position, died.

"She told us she took the money to pay her father's debts," Brinkley explained, "but so far, we have been unable to ascertain that any of his debts have been paid. Most of what she misappropriated was currency, the rest, bonds.

Removed Ledger Sheets.

According to Brinkley, Mrs. Ohlinger's practice had been to deceive bank examiners by removing certain ledger sheets during examinations. Upset over the death of her son, an only child, who was killed when his automobile overturned at high speed, just outside the Shawneetown city limits, she apparently failed to make the removals in time when Van Ord dropped in unexpectedly, 10 days after the accident.

Mrs. Ohlinger is 48 years old and has lived unpretentiously at the home of her parents since the death of her husband 20 years ago.

The warrant issued by United States District Attorney Baker yesterday charges her with embezzlement of $75,000, as Mrs. Ohlinger assured Brinkley, the latter said, that the shortage would not exceed that figure. Van Ord's examination, however, showed it to be $51,600.

Shawneetown is in Gallatin County, in the southeastern portion of the State.

PRESIDENT'S PRIZE CATCH OF THE YEAR IS 16-INCH TROUT

Hoover, After Half Day on Rapidan, Has 14 Fish in His Creel.

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, Va., June 7.—The prize catch of the year—a 16-inch rainbow trout weighing nearly two pounds—today was pulled from the Rapidan River by President Hoover. The Chief Executive caught the trout with one of his first casts, using a black gnat flat. At the end of the morning 14 brook trout also were in his creel.

The President and his 15 guests arrived at the Rapidan lodge early today after breakfasting at the White House. They found Mrs. Hoover slightly improved from the relapse she suffered early in the week following her attendance at a State dinner. She has been there since Friday convalescing from an injury to her back.

Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, examined her at the camp and announced that she appeared rested and the back muscles strengthened. At the camp Mrs. Hoover walks about and climbs the two or three steps to the lodges, but her wheel chair also is there for use when she is weary.

HOLLYWOOD'S POPULATION SHOWS 206 PER CENT GAIN

Movie Center's Total 153,294—California Increase So Far Exceeds 2,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 7.—The population of Hollywood, which has been a part of Los Angeles since 1910 was fixed at 153,294 today by Census Supervisor C. L. Kincaid. This total compares with its population of 19,996 in 1910 and an estimated total of 50,000 in 1920 or an approximate growth of 206.06 per cent. The numerical increase is 103,294 in the last ten years.

MILLIONAIRE EX-CONVICT'S WIFE IN RENO FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. C. T. Davis Whose Husband Is Being Sued for Breach of Promise, Plans Action.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., June 7. — Mrs. Henrietta Davis, wife of Charles T. Davis, millionaire ex-convict who is being sued for $200,000 for alleged breach of promise by Miss Cano Morris, former show girl, has established residence here preparatory to filing suit for divorce early in July.

Under a recent court award in New York, Mrs. Davis received $770,000 as her share of the proceeds of the sale of a Brooklyn surgical instrument company, which she built up from a $50,000 concern while her husband was serving a prison term in New York for killing a detective in 1921. Davis received more than $1,250,000 from the deal and went to Los Angeles on his release from Dannemora prison three months ago.

FIRST NATIONAL CO. EMBEZZLER READY TO PLEAD GUILTY

F. L. Berryhill, Who Confessed Taking $400,000 of Customers' Bonds, to Be Arraigned This Week.

HE HAS IDEA HE CAN PAY MONEY BACK

Attorney for Sales Manager of Bank's Investment Subsidiary Tells of Client's Market Deals.

Frank L. Berryhill, sales manager and a director of the First National Co., investment subsidiary of the First National Bank in St. Louis, who lost his savings and about $300,000 belonging to four of his customers in stock speculation during the last year, probably will appear in Circuit Court some day this week and plead guilty of embezzlement.

Through his attorney, Sigmund Bass, Berryhill has confessed that he embezzled about $400,000 in bonds and securities which the four customers had intrusted to him for sale or exchange. About one-half of the securities are held by the brokerage firm of Knight, Dysart & Gamble, as collateral for a marginal account in which Berryhill's equity is about $100,000.

The four customers, holding receipts signed by Berryhill in his capacity as sales manager, look for settlement to the First National Co., which has accepted responsibility and which expects to be reimbursed by the American Surety Co. of New York under an employes' fidelity bond for $750,000.

Wants to Earn It Back.

"Berryhill will appear whenever he is wanted," Attorney Bass said yesterday. "He is ready to take his medicine. He has an idea that he can go to prison and serve his time, then come out and make enough money to pay it all back. In my opinion, he can do it if anybody can.

"He could have taken the $100,000 that was left and beat it for South America or Africa, before anyone was the wiser. Instead, he came to me and told me his troubles a month ago. He was ashamed to face his business associates, so we arranged for him to withdraw quietly from the company's office last Saturday. Monday I called on his superiors and explained the situation."

Bass has conferred with Circuit Attorney Miller, but no agreement has been made as to the charge, the number of counts or the punishment to be recommended. Embezzlement by bailee, the probable charge, is punishable by a sentence of from two to five years in the penitentiary on each count. Usually in such cases several counts are charged so that the Judge may use his discretion in determining the length of the sentence.

Received $8500 a Year.

Berryhill, 39 years old, and unmarried, received $8500 a year as sales manager for the company. He had progressed steadily since the World War when he returned from France as a Captain of Infantry and found employment as a clerk for the Mortgage Trust Co. which was later purchased by the First National Co.

He had been president of the 1914 class at Washington University, president of the Student Council and Civics Club, and a leader in athletics and other student activities. His parents live in California.

Officers of the company declined to disclose the names of the customers whose confidence was violated, but Attorney Bass said he had been told they were "a Mr. Tevis, who lives out of town; a Mrs. Solomon of St. Louis, a Mr. Boyce of St. Louis," and Thomas B. Armstead Jr., president of the Red Diamond Clothing Co., 1312 Washington avenue.

All were personal friends of Berryhill as well as customers of the First National Co. Armstead, who refused to discuss Berryhill's defalcation, had known Berryhill for 27 years and had accompanied him on vacation trips, according to Bass.

Statement by Executive.

Henry T. Ferriss, executive vice president of the First National Co., who issued a formal statement in which the company accepted responsibility, said yesterday that the embezzlement from two accounts totaled $130,000, a third is being audited, and the fourth customer is out of the city.

"There is nothing on our company's records relating to the DIVORCED wife of Major-General Douglas MacArthur, and the actor were married yesterday at Eccleston, Md. Both have been married twice before.

GEN. MAC ARTHUR'S EX-WIFE WEDS LIONEL ATWILL, ACTOR

Ceremony Takes Place at Her Home Near Baltimore; Both Divorced Twice Before.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, June 7.—Lionel Atwill, actor, and Mrs. Douglas MacArthur were married today at Mrs. MacArthur's home at Eccleston, a suburb. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edgar C. Powers, pastor of Towsen Methodist Episcopal Church.

Friends said the pair would take their wedding trip aboard Mrs. Atwill's yacht.

On the marriage license Atwill gave his age as 45 and Mrs. MacArthur's as 36 and stated both had been divorced twice.

Atwill's first wife was Phyllis Relp and the second Elsie Mackay, the latter appearing in several productions with him. They were divorced in 1928. Mrs. Atwill's first husband was Walter B. Brooks Jr. Baltimore, and her second, Major-General Douglas MacArthur, now in the Philippines.

Mrs. Atwill is the former Louise Cromwell, whose mother is now Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, wife of the Philadelphia banker. There were two children by her marriage to Brooks, which took place in 1911. She was married in 1922 to Gen. MacArthur and spent three years with him in the Philippines. They were divorced last June in Reno.

FATALLY HURT WHEN TRUCK RUNS OFF LEMAY FERRY ROAD

Pleasant L. Rodgers, Essex, Mo., Victim of Accident; Driver Is Uninjured.

Pleasant L. Rodgers, 50 years old, live stock buyer, of Essex, Mo., was fatally injured when a truck in which he was a passenger left Highway No. 61 on LeMay Ferry road near the Meramec River and rolled down an embankment at 5 p. m. yesterday.

Rodgers died at Alexian Brothers' Hospital at 11 p. m. from shock and loss of blood after his left leg had been amputated above the knee. He suffered a compound fracture of the right leg.

The driver, Paul Seebaugh, Patton, Mo., was uninjured and another passenger, Paul Tucker, farmhand, Farmingdale, Ill., suffered shock and bruises.

REED ADDRESSES 7500 DEMOCRATS AT SEDALIA RALLY

Ex-Senator's Speech Taken as a Feeler on His Chances for Presidential Nomination in 1932.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., June 7.—The suggestion of the nomination of former United States Senator James A. Reed for the presidency by the 1932 Democratic National Convention was sent out as a first feeler at the Reed meeting of the Young Democrats Jefferson Club of Missouri here today.

Reed, tonight delivered a speech dealing with the principal national issues and the record of the Republican party and particularly of the Hoover administration. It was broadcast to reach every section of the country.

It was a speech which might easily be expected to produce editorial comment. If that comment in independent and Democratic newspapers generally was favorable the way then would be open for the beginning of a national Reed organization.

About 7500 Present.

The attendance was far less than the promoters of the meeting had anticipated. Approximately 7500 persons were in the livestock pavilion where Reed spoke. The audience included about 2000 brought by the Pendergast organization from Kansas City, residents of Sedalia, a few from St. Louis, and Democrats from all the counties of Central Missouri.

The meeting gave evidence of the fact that the broadcasting of political speeches decreases the attendance at the meetings. It is easier to sit at home and listen to a speech on the radio than to travel many miles to hear it.

Reed deviated much from his usual custom. So cautious was he to avoid saying anything other than exactly the matter that he had prepared, that he read his speech, a rare thing for Reed.

City Councilor John T. Barker of Kansas City, a former Attorney-General of Missouri and one of the more prominent among the close personal and political associates of Reed, sent forth the suggestion of the presidential nomination.

The Presidential Suggestion.

At an afternoon gathering of the crowd which had assembled in Sedalia to hear Reed tonight, Barker was the first speaker. His speech, though brief, was entirely a eulogy of Reed, whom he described as the greatest Missourian, if not perhaps, the greatest American. The eulogy closed with the significant statement, it is not at all beyond the realm of possibility that he will be nominated and elected President of the United States.

The words might not have attracted particular attention coming from another speaker, but, because

OLD GUARD NEEDS FIVE DEMOCRATIC SENATORS TO PUT OVER TARIFF BILL

Apparently It Has Them: Trammell and Fletcher of Florida, Broussard and Ransdell of Louisiana and Kendrick of Wyoming.

LEADERS CONFIDENT HOOVER WILL SIGN

Still, Measure Is Not What the President Asked for; Many Reasons for Veto—Schedules Tax Consumers $600,000,000 a Year.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Soon we shall know whether the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, carrying the highest rates in American history, is to become the tariff act of 1930. After nearly 18 months in the making—for committee work on the bill began even before the special session of last year—the bill is now in its final legislative stage.

The deciding vote will be on the conference report which reconciles the original House bill with the measure as it passed the Senate. There is no chance that the House, with its substantial and well controlled regular Republican majority, will upset the plans of the leaders. If the bill is killed it will be by vote of the more independent Senate, or by veto of the President.

Very Close Lineup in Senate.

The line up in the Senate is extremely close. As in one of the previous tests—the vote by which the Senate permitted its conferees to approve the presidential tariff-making power under the flexible section—the ballot of the Vice President may decide the issue.

If the bill is passed by the Senate, it will be with the aid of at least five, and perhaps one or two more, Democratic votes. The five votes counted as certain for the measure are those of Trammell and Fletcher of Florida, Broussard and Ransdell of Louisiana, and Kendrick of Wyoming. These are all stanch and consistent "protectionist Democrats." Kendrick is interested in the tariff on wool, the Louisiana Senators in the tariff on sugar, and those from Florida in the supposed benefits to that State's vegetables and fruits.

Until recently, two other Democrats, Dill of Washington and Steck of Iowa, were listed on the tariff side. Dill's vote, in particular, has been the center of manipulation. He wanted a tariff on lumber. The Senate voted it—$1.50 per 1000 feet on soft wood lumber—but the House turned down even a 75-cent rate and left lumber on the free list.

Dill's Attitude Doubtful.

Now Dill voted, when the flexible tariff issue first came up, to take away the President's power to change rates. He lined up then with the Democrats and the insurgent Republicans. When the issue arose the second time, on the proposal to free the Senate conferees from their obligation to stand pat, Dill flopped, and his vote decided the question.

Given a free hand, the conferees promptly abandoned the Senate flexible provision, against which the President had actively intervened, and proceeded to write one agreeable to the House and the President. And the very next day after Dill's flop, it became known that the House conferees, under the leadership of Chairman Hawley, had generously yielded in the matter of lumber and approved a $1 rate per 1000 feet.

With the lumber tariff written in, Dill's vote for the whole bill on final passage was regarded as assured. He has lately, however, issued an explanatory statement which seems to mean that he will go the other way. He said, in effect, that while others were getting theirs, he felt it his duty to get what he could for the State of Washington. This attitude, he said, was not inconsistent with his belief that the high tariff principle embodied in the bill was wrong.

As for Steck, an Iowa Democrat who came into the Senate by a fluke and who has often shown a tendency to play with the Republican side, all doubts were resolved by a statement he issued the other day denouncing the bill.

Old Guard leaders profess confidence that they will be able to

CAROL TO BE CHOSEN RUMANIA'S KING BY PARLIAMENT TODAY

Chamber of Deputies and the Senate to Restore Former Crown Prince to Throne He Renounced 5 Years Ago.

PREMIER MANIU AND CABINET QUIT

Foreign Minister Mironescu Forms New Government —Exiled Heir Says He Returned to Facilitate Union of Country.

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, June 7.—The kingdom he renounced five years ago will be given back tomorrow to Carol of Rumania, who chose Mme. Magda Lupescu instead of royal rights in 1925 and went into exile.

Tonight, following the resignation of Premier Juliu Maniu and his Cabinet, the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate called a special session for 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, when they will place the Prince upon the throne that was his birthright.

Thus will take place a royal shift unique in the history of dynasties, and the present boy King of Rumania, Carol's son, Michael, will become once more just a 9-year-old lad without cares other than someday he probably will succeed his father as King.

Feverish Political Situation.

The dramatic return of Carol by airplane made feverish a political situation that already was troubled. Premier Maniu presented the resignation of his Cabinet this afternoon because the Government could not agree on the proper way of handling the new development. M. Mironescu, the Foreign Minister, thereupon was charged with forming a new ministry.

But Carol's friends—and he has many of them in Parliament—were busy and their activity resulted in the call for the Sunday session which will make a King of an ordinary citizen.

A majority of the Deputies clamored today for the proclamation of Carol as King, but it was found impossible to hold a sitting of Parliament before tomorrow, hence the call for 11 o'clock. He is strongly opposed by the Liberal party, but the other parties, the army officers and the people in general appear to be overwhelmingly in favor of his taking the throne of his fathers.

In an interview, the Prince indicated that he returned because the political condition of his country demanded it.

"To Conciliate and Calm People."

"I have come to conciliate and to calm the minds of the people," he said. "I have no thought of hate or vengeance; on the contrary, I have come to facilitate union in the interests of the country."

It was one of the most astonishing coups in history which dropped the elder son of Queen Marie back to the land which, under the dethronement law, he was supposed to stay out for five more years.

He set out last night from Munich in a French airplane and was delayed somewhat by two forced landings en route—one near Gross-Wardein and the other near Kozroestoe, due to a shortage of gasoline. Eventually he reached the Rumanian military airdrome at Klausenburg and donned the uniform of a Rumanian General before taking off on the flight to Bucharest, which he reached late at night.

Three Groups Planned Return.

It is understood that preparations for his return were made by three groups, working independently, some of these met him at Cetroceni Airdrome and accompanied him to the Royal Palace for a talk with his brother, Prince Nicholas, who has been serving on the Regency Council which ruled for the boy King.

Later he called on Premier Maniu, who immediately convoked the Cabinet. An all-night session resulted in no agreement and the Ministry decided it could do nothing but resign.

The new Premier-designate immediately set about to form a Cab-

FORD PURCHASES OLD-STYLE HEARSE FOR HIS MUSEUM

Pall Bearers' Hack and Other Funeral Equipment in the Collection.

By the Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, O., June 7.—The purchase of three carloads of old funeral equipment by Henry Ford from the estate of John Dice, late carriage maker of Portsmouth and Cincinnati was disclosed today by Miss Elizabeth Dice, who acted for heirs of the estate.

Miss Dice refused to divulge the purchase price but said that Ford shipped the collection to Dearborn, Mich., Museum yesterday. She said the negotiations for the collection covered a period of two years.

An old English style hearse, completely hand made with Sheffield silver lamps was the outstanding piece in the collection. An open landau, made by hand in Cincinnati many years ago, also was among the articles along with a pallbearer's hack, seating six persons and trimmed in Sheffield silver; two old-fashioned buggies and three venerable funeral hacks.

GROCERY CLERK SHOT BY ROBBER IN REAR OF HOME

Louis Boguslovsky, 1927A South Compton, Accosted by Holdup Man Who Demanded Store Receipts.

Louis Boguslovsky, 29 years old, clerk in his father's grocery at 3147 Olive street, was shot in the neck and arm by a man who held him up last night about 11 o'clock in an alley at the rear of his home, 1927A South Compton avenue. He was taken to City Hospital in a serious condition.

Boguslovsky said the robber appeared after he had placed the delivery truck he was driving into its garage. The robber ordered him to give him the receipts of the day at the grocery and threatened him when Boguslovsky protested that he had only $10, he said.

Prodding him with a pistol, the robber started to search Boguslovsky's pockets. The grocery clerk pulled away from him, and the robber fired twice. He escaped down the alley.

Boguslovsky made his way to his home, where his wife, who had heard the shooting, awaited him.

HAIL PUNCTURED ZEPPELIN'S ENVELOPE ON FLIGHT HOME

Craft Withstood Severe Weather in Fine Shape, However, Eckener Reports.

By the Associated Press.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, June 7.—Dr. Hugo Eckener today expressed keen satisfaction that the Graf Zeppelin had stood the severe tests of thunderstorms, gales and rain on its journey to the Americas which ended yesterday.

The veteran commander said the worst part of the whole trip was in the 60 miles northward from Lyons, where, he said, he ran into a veritable witch's cauldron. Hailstones the size of walnuts punctured the envelope in several places. Nevertheless, Eckener said, the Graf rode all weathers, furnishing proof of its efficiency.

Eckener today received numerous congratulatory messages, including one from President Koettgen of the World Power Conference at Berlin.

5000 Bombs Dropped From 80 Machines Drive Afridi Forces Out of Their Caves.

INDIAN CITY HAS BEEN MENACED

Two British Officers and Wife of One Released After Being Carried Into Afghanistan.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, June 7.—British airplanes, loaded with bombs, have driven from their caves the wild Afridi tribesmen who for a month have been menacing the strategic city of Peshawar on the northwestern frontier of India.

Eighty airplanes have participated in the attacks and have droped 5000 bombs. British troops made a thorough search of the area southwest of Peshawar today and found that the hill warriors had withdrawn.

Officials said at the same time, however, that the nature of the ground makes hiding easy and finding difficult, with the probability that some parties of tribesmen are still lurking in other directions from the great city of the northwest.

Europeans were cheered today by the news that two British officers and the wife of one of them had ben released by raiders who carried them into Afghanistan Wednesday. Those kidnaped were Maj. E. L. Farley, Capt. J. C. Frere and Mrs. Frere. They were held across the border by Achakzai tribesmen after being removed from their automobiles, but were treated considerately. Their release was obtained by a chieftain of the Indian side of the border.

Tonight it was learned that a serious riot had occurred Thursday in Gheehnagat, a village in the Daspur district of Midnapore. Two police sub-inspectors and four Constables were attacked and injured by the villagers. One sub-inspector is reported since to have died and the other is missing. The Constables were deprived of their arms, ammunition and uniforms.

Another serious incident was reported to have taken place yesterday at Balisial, in the same district. Fifteen hundred volunteers assembled to manufacture contraband salt and 17 were injured when the police fired after a charge with their sticks. As a result of the disorders the Inspector General of Bengal police left for Midnapore tonight with reinforcements.

The second day of picketing liquor and foreign cloth shops in Bombay, passed off quietly, with the Nationalists still standing in front of the stores and warning off native buyers.

Following the police raid on Congress headquarters here yesterday, when eight prominent leaders were arrested, the Bombay Congress Committee met in secret session today and appointed a new "War Council" to carry on the civil disobedience campaign of the Nationalists.

FOX THEATER CUTS PRICES, BEGINNING NEXT FRIDAY

Matinee Admission Until 5 P. M. 25 Cents, Evening 50 Cents, Children 15.

A reduction in admission prices, effective next Friday, was announced yesterday by Harry Greenman, manager of the Fox Theater, following, he explained, a policy which is being put into effect at all houses of the Fox chain.

The 35-cent matinee admission until 6 p. m. is replaced by a 25-cent charge until 5 p. m. Evening prices, after 5 o'clock, will be 50 cents instead of 75, and children will be admitted for 15 cents at all performances, heretofore having been charged 25 cents after 6 p. m.

Charles P. Skouras, vice president of Skouras Bros. Enterprises, which operates the Ambassador, Missouri and New Grand Central Theaters, the latter being closed at present, said his company did not intend to follow the example of the Fox Theater.

"50 PRINTS OF THE YEAR" ON EXHIBIT AT MUSEUM

An exhibition of "fifty prints of the year," including etchings, lithographs and block prints assembled by the American Institute of Graphic Arts, will open today at City Art Museum in Forest Park. Other special exhibitions there now are sculptures by the French artist, Numa Patlagean, and paintings of views from an airplane by Ilah Marian Kibbey.

The collection of prints was selected by John Sloan, president of the Society of Independent Artists, from among 936 submitted by more than 250 artists. Eastern critics have described it as "overwhelmingly modernistic." Only three of the prints are classed as conservative.

One of the contributors is C. K. Gleeson of St. Louis, whose work has been shown in the annual "Black and White" competitions sponsored by the Post-Dispatch.

of Barker's association with Reed and the organization of Reed Democrats in Missouri, such a remark could be construed only as having a very definite purpose. Leading Democrats were convinced that Barker would not have advanced the idea unless it was specifically authorized by Reed or unless Barker knew that the suggestion would meet with Reed's favor.

Coming without public authorization or comment from Reed, the former Senator is in a position to await the reception his speech and in connection with it Barker's statement, will have throughout the country.

That the Reed speech was intended to have much more than local effect, that it was in fact to be delivered with the idea of attracting national attention, was indicated from the beginning of plans for the Sedalia meeting, which included arrangements for dissemination much more extensive than the mere occasion of its delivery called for.

At an expense of nearly $50,000, a Columbia chain hookup of 20 stations was arranged, and special efforts mare made to obtain publication of the speech in full in newspapers of all the larger cities. It was clear that the meeting of the State Jefferson Club was called for the purpose of providing an occasion for Reed to make the speech, rather than that the speech was delivered to grace the occasion.

Prohibition Only Touched On.

While Reed's views on the eighteenth amendment are quite generally known, they formed no particular part of his speech, his only remarks on prohibition being directed against the Anti-Saloon League and Bishop Cannon.

But this may have been due, and probably was, to the fact that Reed recently has completed the writing of a series of articles setting forth his views on prohibition and his arguments in support of his views. The publication of these articles simultaneously in newspapers in many cities will begin within a few weeks. In his speech he made known that he had prepared the articles.

A group of members of the Missouri Democratic Editorial Association at a meeting in the afternoon adopted a resolution highly commendatory of Reed but falling short of an indorsement for the presidency. All of the editors said afterward that the indorsement for the presidency would have been given except for fear that Reed would be displeased.

In any discussion of Reed for the presidency the subject of his age invariably comes up. He will be 71 years old at the time of the next presidential election, which is somewhat older than presidential candidates usually are, but Reed's friends point to his unimpaired vigor and excellent health, and insist that his age would not be a bar to his candidacy.

The afternoon program for the meeting included brief speeches by candidates for State offices, for Congress and for the State Senate. John P. Atwood of Kansas City, author, spoke on Thomas Jefferson.

"Prospects" Sound Out Sentiment.

The occasion afforded an opportunity for candidates to mingle with Democrats from the central section of Missouri, and there were several propective candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1932 on the ground. Francis M. Wilson, who made a strong race for the nominee for Governor in 1928, was here sounding out sentiment as to the advisibility of a second candidacy. Dr. W. G. Patton of St. Louis was another possible gubernatorial candidate here. Though Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller of St. Louis, who has received favorable mention in Democratic newspapers in many parts of the State, and for whom a potential boom is in evidence, was not in Sedalia today, he was represented by Chief Clerk Relelr. Maj. Lloyd Stark of Louisiana, who also is a possible candidate with considerable strength, was not here, but several of his friends from Pike County, Dr. M. O. Biggs, former State Senator J. D. Hostetter and A. Murphy, were busy in his behalf.

The address of Senator Reed will be found on page 4A of this edition of the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS POLO TEAM BEATS ST. LOUIS, 11-4

Another Game Today—Star Players of Both Clubs Out With Injuries.

St. Louis Country Club today has opportunity to even up its record against Memphis Hunt and Polo Club, which yesterday defeated it 11 to 4 in the first intercity match in St. Louis this season.

The local club has a second day habit of overturning the "dope," not to mention any members of the opposing team who happen to be in the way. For this reason an especially exciting game is expected. Play will begin at 3:30 p. m. Parking space will be provided at the south and east sides of the polo field on the Country Club grounds, Price and Ladue roads.

Both teams were handicapped yesterday by the absence of outstanding men disabled by recent injuries. Curtis King, star No. 3 or "center" for Memphis, has been in the Baptist Hospital there for two weeks with an infection resulting when a horse fell with him on his home field. Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., who has played in every match game of St. Louis Country Club since the World War, had the novel experience of watching from the sidelines on account of a strained leg muscle which may prevent his riding for two weeks.

Field Softened by Rain.

The metallic hardness of the field was softened by rain which fell just before the game A misty drizzle continued through most of the first three chukkers, but the sun reappeared for the second half to offset the formidable clouds to west and north.

Memphis Has Superior Team Work; St. Louis' Start Poor.

The absence of Wallace from the St. Louis lineup seriously injured its team play. The Memphis team played better together. Two Memphis men, invariably, were waiting for one St. Louis man when he attempted to break through the line, whereas Memphis frequently got through despite the smart play of St. Louis' veteran back.

Memphis unquestionably got away from St. Louis in the beginning of the game. St. Louis played much better in the later periods, and might, with a better start, have given an impressive account of itself. Francis played excellent polo, considering that he is not a regular member of the team, and undoubtedly both teams made an exceptional showing in view of the absence of a dependable player from each.

The field was rough. There has been no rain this year to wash out the diggings of last fall's play, and it is doubtful if it will be in good condition this year. Intensive work last week and the rain that fell just before the game, improved it somewhat, but it still is far from ideal. —A. T. P.

BAILEY LEADS SIMMONS IN NORTH CAROLINA RACE

"Regular" Democrat Ahead of Incumbent Senator Who Bolted Smith in 1928.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 7.—Ex-Senator Josiah W. Bailey, "regular" Democrat, who entered the race for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator to "punish" F. M. Simmons for opposing Alfred E. Smith in 1928, was leading the venerable North Carolina Senator by 31,545 votes on the face of returns from 665 of the State's 1799 precincts in today's primary. The vote stood: Bailey, 78,499; Estes, 318; Simmons, 46,954.

In the Republican race 59 precincts had been reported giving George E. Butler 2141; H. Grady Dorsett 161; George M. Pritchard 1230; Irvin B. Tucker 555.

The returns in the Democratic race came from 34 counties scattered throughout the State and with three Western counties complete. Senator Simmons was leading in Mecklenburg County but in most of the other counties reported thus far Bailey was in the lead. There are 100 counties in the State.

METEOR SHOWER DUE MONDAY

Astronomers Want People to Report Observations.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Astronomers urge the public to watch for meteors next Monday night. A Japanese astronomer recently said he believed the meteors are associated with a newly discovered comet which is not far from the Earth.

Reports about these meteors are wanted by the American Meteor Society to learn about the Earth's atmosphere 50 to 100 miles aloft. The time, duration and position of bright meteors and information of explosions or colors or tails should be sent to Prof. Charles P. Olivier, University of Pennsylvania, head of the American Meteor Society. The meteors may appear any night from Sunday, June 8, through June 11, with the best chance Monday. They should be looked for near the constellation Hercules, which will be nearly overhead early in the evening.

BISHOP CANNON IN CONTEMPT, WALSH ASSERTS

Acting Chairman of Lobby Committee Insists That Lack of Quorum Doesn't Change Situation.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—"Quorum or no quorum, Bishop James Cannon is in contempt of the Senate and it is for the Senate to say what it proposes to do about it." Thus did Senator Walsh of Montana, acting chairman of the Senate Lobby Committee, reply today to the Bishop's argument that his action in walking out Thursday did not constitute contempt, because a quorum was not present.

"I find no merit whatever in this contention," Senator Walsh declared. "The committee was formally in session, and two members were present, including the acting chairman. Bishop Cannon had submitted himself to its jurisdiction and had taken the oath. His refusal to testify and his withdrawal from the room were based on his contention that the committee lacked authority to ask him certain questions, and on the fact that he had not been subpenaed. In my opinion neither of these grounds will hold water.

"His subsequent claim, made in a statement to the press, that his withdrawal did not constitute contempt because no quorum was present, impresses me as being equally untenable. At the time he withdrew he was subject to the committee's orders. As a matter of fact, Senator Borah arrived a moment later, making a quorum.

"Could it be argued that a witness, after being ordered to appear in court at a certain hour, could properly depart if he found that the Judge was not on the bench at that exact hour? Suppose the court consisted of three Judges, and suppose that when the hour arrived only one Judge had appeared. What would happen to a witness who took it upon himself to depart, on the ground that a majority of the court was not present? Any lawyer knows the answer."

A show-down on the issue between Cannon and the committee is expected to come Tuesday or Wednesday, following the return of the absent chairman, Senator Caraway. At the office of that Arkansas traveler it was reported today that he was en route to Washington by automobile, having cancelled the remainder of the speaking tour which took him away from the Capital immediately before the scheduled examination of the Bishop—for which Caraway had made elaborate preparations.

Senator Blaine (Rep.) Wisconsin, shares Walsh's opinion that the Southern Methodist prelate is in contempt, and Senator Borah had intimated that he holds the same view. The fifth member of the committee, Senator Robinson (Rep.), Indiana, is openly opposed to any action against the Bishop, or against any inquiry into his political and financial operations, although it was Robinson who conducted the prolonged and ferocious cross-examination of Henry Curran, of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, on exactly similar grounds

FOUR POISON LIQUOR DEATHS

NEW YORK, June 7.—Four more persons died today of poison liquor, bringing to 13 the total for the last three days. Since May 10, 27 have died. All of the afflicted have been customers of cheap "smoke" shops on the lower East Side, where poor grade alcohol is sold for 5 cents and 10 cents a glass.

Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner for the city, said all of the men found today were out of work and all were almost penniless.

transactions in question," the statement said, "but it appears that Mr. Berryhill was able, through his official position as sales manager, to persuade these customers, who happened to be his personal friends, to deliver securities to him ostensibly for sale or exchange; that he then failed to turn over these securities to our cashier, but instead used them as collatral in his personal stock market speculations."

At the brokerage house, Thomas N. Dysart, vice president, said: "All of Berryhill's transactions with us were strictly business-like and above suspicion.

"At one time before the October crash he had a credit balance of about $250,000. During the crash, he kept bringing us bonds to cover his margins. He understood throughout it all what he was doing, for we never sold any of the bonds without his consent. Naturally, we sold only sufficient bonds to cover his margins at the time, retaining the balance as collateral on other margins.

"Our firm did not have the slightest intimation that the bonds were not his. They were regular coupon bonds, payable to the bearer and because of the regularity of his past conduct with us, we had no reason to suspect anything at all."

As Friends Saw Him.

Berryhill's friends and associates saw in him a successful investment banker who had learned the trick of increasing his own savings by shrewd speculation. The appearance of success was emphasized in December, 1928, when he moved into the Winston Churchill Apartments, 5475 Cabanne avenue, and had his rooms furnished by a downtown department store, purchasing expensive articles and substituting fixtures which were more to his taste than those provided by the building owner.

His mother, Mrs. Emma C. Berryhill, lived with him until several weeks ago when she joined her husband in California at her son's suggestion. Anticipating unavoidable reckoning, Berryhill served notice on the apartment manager April 1 that he intended to vacate and move to California. He paid his rent to June 1 and moved out about May 15, taking all his personal property. On June 1 he wrote the manager that he expected payment for some radiator covers that he had installed.

"Berryhill lived within his means, saved money and bought stocks with his savings, paying cash for his shares," Attorney Bass related. "He made money in a long bull market and, like everybody else, he thought he could make more money if he traded on margin. For a while he was successful, but the market turned against him and he found he had no additional cash or collateral to put up.

"Good Money After Bad."

"When things turned bad last October, he 'borrowed' his customers' bonds, and threw good money after bad just like a lot of other people. Like other speculators, he was sure the market would pull back, but it didn't.

"When his customers pressed him for their securities he stalled them off with promises and quieted their suspicions by paying the interest coupons out of his pocket. Finally he realized he had come to the end of his rope.

"I don't believe his mother knows even now that he has committed a crime. During one of our most recent conversations, he said, 'Last night I tried to write mother a letter telling her the truth: I wrote six pages but I couldn't come to the point.'"

Berryhill is one of four trusted employes who have confessed embezzlements of major proportions in St. Louis during two months. Marvin E. Phillips, assistant cashier of the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Bank, took $31,600 and is in jail awaiting trial. Oliver D. Chalmers, mail and express manager for the Frisco Railroad, took $150,000 and was sentenced Friday to seven years in prison. George A. Lubeley, vice president and cashier of the Natural Bridge Bank, took $115,000 and is under bond to answer any charges which may be made. Phillips and Chalmers frequented gambling houses and Lubeley had outside business interests.

KILLS HIS EX-WIFE AND WOUNDS HER BROTHER; IS SLAIN

Twice-Divorced Man at Batesville, Ark., Shot to Death by Kinsman of Woman He Murdered.

By the Associated Press.

BATESVILLE, Ark., June 7.—Jesse Barber, 35 years old, shot and killed his divorced wife, wounded his brother-in-law, Ed Nuckols, and then was shot to death by Nuckols at Nuckols' home last night.

Barber and his wife had been divorced twice. After their last separation they were said to have quarreled over the custody of their child. Last night he went to the home of Nuckols, where Mrs. Barber was staying, and attempted a reconciliation.

Rebuffed, he drew a pistol and shot Nuckols in the hand, then he shot Mrs. Barber in the head, killing her. As she fell, Nuckols opened fire on Barber, shooting him three times.

Nuckols surrendered to county authorities but no charge was placed against him.

Barber was a brother of J. Barber, former high school athlete here, who was sentenced to 7 years in prison recently for the murder of Maurice Osborne, merchant. Osborne's wife was accused of plotting with Barber to kill her husband, was sentenced to nine years in prison.

21 OF 28 ST. LOUIS WARDS REPORT 571,888 CENSUS

This Same General Area in 1920 Had 548,286 Population—14th, 18th, 19th Listed.

MISSING DISTRICTS THOUGHT TO BE BIG

28,000 Names Tabulated in Chamber of Commerce Campaign, but Many Are Duplicates.

Population of three-fourths, or 21, of the 28 wards of St. Louis is 571,888, the latest census reports show. The entire city had 772,897 inhabitants in 1920, having grown in population at the rate of 12.4 per cent in the decade of 1910-20.

Applying the Census Bureau method of estimating population of each new decade by use of the same rate of growth as in the preceding decade, the Chamber of Commerce had calculated that St. Louis would show 868,736 this year. If it is to reach that figure the seven wards yet to be reported must contain at least 296,848 residents, or an average of 42,707 each.

All ward boundaries were changed in 1921, hence direct comparison cannot be made. Each ward is in approximately the same region now that it was at the time of the last census, but the areas vary. The 21 wards for which announcements have been made had, in the differing territories, in 1920 an aggregate of 548,286 population. Combined, the 21 wards cover virtually the same area now as in 1920, so that a rough comparison may be made between the totals. This comparison shows an aggregate increase of 23,602, or about 4 per cent, in the 21 wards in the decade.

Missing Wards Thought to Be Heavy.

The seven wards not yet reported had 224,011 inhabitants in 1920, or an average of 32,011 each.

It is thought there has been considerable growth in at least five of these seven wards in recent years, but how impressively this may show in the censis figures is, of course, problematical. Wards as yet unreported are: First, the extreme north end of town; Sixteenth and Seventeenth, midtown, with considerable Negro population; Twenty-second, central-western North St. Louis; Twenty-fourth, everything between Forest Park and Gravois avenue, west of Kingshighway, and Twenty-fifth and Twenty-eighth, comprising much of the West End. The Twenty-fourth is of especial interest, as there has been an unusually extensive development of dwellings, flats and apartments.

St. Louis ranked as sixth city in the 1920 census, Cleveland being fifth. The great growth of Los Angeles has pushed Cleveland down a rank, although Cleveland has 901,482 population in the current census. Chamber of Commerce officials, conducting a campaign to see that all residents of St. Louis and St. Louis County are enumerated, had hoped that St. Louis might outstrip Cleveland.

28,000 Names Reported.

The chamber has received names of about 28,000 persons thought to have been missed in the census, many of whom, however, actually were counted. The population figures likely will be swelled considerably through this campaign. Announcements thus far made for the wards do not take into account additions through the chamber campaign or other revisions.

Announcement was made yesterday of three wards, as follows, the references to 1920 data being for wards of the same designations but somewhat varying territory:

Fourteenth Ward—22,047 now; 27,568 in 1920; net loss in area of 35 blocks in the 1921 boundary changes; a South Side ward.

Eighteenth Ward—21,474 now; 20,889 in 1920; net gain of 18 blocks in the changes; a central North Side ward.

Nineteenth Ward—25,051 now; 23,952 in 1920; net gain of 17 blocks in the changes; a central North Side ward extending as far south as Delmar boulevard and Lucas avenue.

Talk of Some Reconciliation.

There is some thought here that the prospective King and his divorced wife, Princess Helen, may become reconciled to a certain extent. It is considered that the Princess may resign herself to the dictates of the populace which is shouting for Carol and will be strengthened by the realization that her son, Michael, is once more heir to the throne instead of King in fact.

As to the other members of the royal family, Prince Nicholas will leave Bucharest June 18 on a long tour of Europe. The dowager Queen Marie already had gone and was speeding to Oberammergau to attend the passion play when her son returned to Rumania.

Through the intervention of Prince Nichols, with Princess Helen, Prince Carol this afternoon spoke to his little son for the first time in several years. Both showed emotion.

The boy King always had believed his father was on a long trip. When he viewed a film showing a shipwreck recently, he asked tearfully if his father had gone down with the ship.

Carol's Brother Said to Have Engineered the Coup.

PARIS, June 7.—Dispatches from Bucharest say former Crown Prince Carol at once took a leading role on his arrival home. He conferred with one Minister after another and with several Generals during the night. The rapidity and regularity with which one event succeeded another was taken in these dispatches as indication of the care with which the Prince's return had been prepared.

Prince Nicholas, Carol's younger brother, who is a member of the present Regency, is supposed to have been the chief engineer of Carol's homecoming and is reported to have decorated the Rumanian aviator who piloted the Prince from Cluj.

Bucharest advices to the newspaper Petit Parisian said it appeared certain the National Assembly would annul the act of Jan. 4, 1926, which barred Carol from the throne. It was this act which prevented Carol's accession on the death of King Ferdinand, in July, 1927, and resulted in the accession of his little son.

The paper also said that the National Peasant Party, which now is in power, is understood to be unanimously in favor of Carol as King. This paper's Bucharest advices added that the Executive Committee of the Liberal Party, after long discussion, adhered to the contention of Vintila Bratianu, former Premier, that the act barring Carol from the throne should be maintained. Great dissatisfaction in the party with this decision was reported.

There was much mystery attached to Carol's dramatic flight to Bucharest. The official version at Le Bourget is that he boarded the plane at some point near Geneva. However, the version most credited is that Carol had all arrangements made by an aid and then substituted himself at the moment the machine was ready to take off.

Queen Marie Alters Plans; to Return to Bucharest June 14.

MUNICH, Bavaria, June 7.—The Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania arrived here tonight and the press was told she would return to Bucharest June 14, instead of remaining in Germany four weeks as planned.

This statement followed upon earlier information that her plans would not be altered by the return of her son, Carol, to Rumania.

ARTISTS' GUILD FESTIVAL IN "GROVE OF DAPHNE"

Entertainment at Home of George S. Johns Given in Ancient Greek Setting.

A restoration of the Grove of Daphne, celebrated sanctuary of beauty and art of the ancient world, was undertaken by the Artists' Guild at its festival last night at the home of George S. Johns, on Robyn road, near Sunset Hill Country Club.

Greek columns and temple facades designed by E. Oscar Thalinger and Takuma Kajiwara contributed a measure of classical atmosphere to the scene, which was a wooded hill top, and the program of activities further carried out the ancient Greek holiday flavor.

A prologue, delivered by Percy E. Ramsay, explained that the Grove of Daphne, maligned by later civilizations as an abode of vice and licentiousness, was in fact nothing of the sort, but was a haven for artistic expression, a cultural center, a natural stage for the singing, dancing, drama and athletic contests of the ancients. The historic grove, which surrounded the Temple of Jupiter, was near Antioch, in Syria. It was the purpose of the Artists' Guild, the prologue further explained, to convey through the setting and program an idea of what really took place in the ancient grove.

The program included singing by the choir of St. Michael the Archangel Russian Orthodox Church, Greek dances by Mme. Tamara Darialova and her pupils, and the presentation of a play, "The Gift," based on the story of Pandora's Box. The play was given by the Players of the Little Theater, with the leading roles enacted by Mrs. Hazel Ewald and Eric Applewhite. Athletic activities of the grove, which was for a time the scene of the Olympic Games, were represented by a wrestling match.

SUBSIDIARY BANK TO BE OPENED BY MERCANTILE CO.

Quarters Leased for Mercantile-Commerce National in Pythian Building Grand and Delmar.

The Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. last night announced the organization of a subsidiary, the Mercantile-Commerce National Bank in St. Louis, which will occupy quarters and do a general banking business at the northwest corner of Grand and Delmar boulevard.

The new depository, according to the announcement, although wholly owned by the parent company, will be operated independently and will not violate the State law which forbids branch banking. John G. Lonsdale, president of the parent bank, and George W. Wilson, chairman of the board, will occupy similar posts in the new bank.

"The Mercantile-Commerce National Bank will be a unit bank owned by the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co.," Lonsdale said. "The Missouri Banking Act of 1915 provides that a strust company can own all or part of a bank."

Branch Banks Barred.

Several years ago, the First National Bank in St. Louis attempted to establish branch banks following the practice in other states, but was compelled to close two branches in 1924 when the United States Supreme Court upheld the State law. All National banks are forbidden to have branches.

The new Mercantile-Commerce National Bank will obtain a national charter from the Comptroller of the Currency and will not be organized under the State laws as is the parent bank. Being a national bank, it will automatically carry a Federal Reserve membership, separate from that of the parent bank. The personnel of the new bank will be drawn from the downtown depository.

The quarters, on the ground floor of the new Pythian Building, have been leased for a long term from the Isaac T. Cook Co. and the new bank will be opened as soon as alterations are made and equipment is installed. The announcement stated that constant communication between the Grand boulevard bank and the parent bank, at Eighth and Locust streets, would be maintained by a telautograph system.

Capitalization Not Disclosed.

The Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., the second largest bank in St. Louis in point of total resources, was formed last year by a merger of the Mercantile Trust Co. and the National Bank of Commerce. At that time the Bank of Commerce ceased to function as a national depository, transferring its assets to the State company.

The capitalization of the new national bank was not disclosed. The parent bank has a capital of $10,000,000, resources of $5,000,000, undivided profits of $3,085,010.08, and total resources of $141,739,894.38, according to a recent balance sheet.

Following the announcement, President Lonsdale departed for Quebec to address the annual meeting of the New York State Bankers' Association. He is president of the American Bankers' Association.

ATLANTA OFFICIAL TO PRISON

Councilman Saunders Gets Two Years for Taking Bribes.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 7.—Councilman W. E. Saunders, the fourth man convicted of bribery in trials of Atlanta's municipal graft cases, was sentenced today to two years on the chain gang and a fine of $1000.

Evidence was given that Saunders accepted bribes to influence his action as a Councilman.

TOPEKA PACKER CALLS MURDER CHARGE FRAMEUP

Discharged Woman Cashier of Company, About Whom Men Had Quarreled, Questioned.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 7.—With the corroboration today of many details in the statement of Virgil Pointer, 38-year-old laborer of the Kaw Packing Co., here, who confessed Thursday that he killed Roy Kramer, vice president of the company, at the request of President Louis H. Kimmel, Sheriff Wayne Horning announced the case against Kimmel was almost complete.

Miss Catherine M. Vick, discharged cashier of the packing company, was questioned for four hours tonight by county authorities regarding her relations with Kimmel. County Attorney Logan said later little information of value had been obtained from her. She was dismissed from her position today, when a successor to Kimmel assumed charge of the concern.

Pointer has admitted that he clubbed Kramer to death in a garage at the rear of the packing plant, early in the morning of March 26, carrying out an agreement he had made with Kimmel last January, to kill Kramer. Pointer confessed that he dragged the body to Kramer's automobile, drove it out on a highway about six miles, turned the machine around and jacked up the rear wheel. He then threw the body on the road, leaving the inference that Kramer was killed by a passing automobile while changing tires.

Suspicion that the death was not accidental first was aroused when Sheriff Horning found the tires on the car sound and the machine in running condition.

Kimmel, who denies complicity in the murder, is at liberty on $25,000 bond.

Kimmel Denies Charges.

In a formal statement to the board of directors of the packing company, Kimmel protested his innocence, but resigned until "the shadow that has come over me has been completely removed."

While no definite motive for the murder has been clearly established, the Sheriff has learned that Kramer and Kimmel, the former a wealthy retired farmer and land owner, and the latter a highly respected business man, had been on bad terms for some time.

The firm carried corporation insurance policies of $30,000 each on Kramer and Kimmel. It is known that because of the continual disagreements, Kramer had intended to withdraw from the packing company this year.

The insurance companies which carried the policies made payment two weeks after Kramer's death.

In substantiation of Pointer's confession, Horning has obtained signed statements from three other employes, one of whom, Fred Glover, said his employer had asked him to kill Kramer. The other two were informed of Kimmel's proposition by Glover, "so if anything ever happens to Kramer somebody will know what it's all about."

Says Kimmel Proposed Killing.

Pointer told the Sheriff that Kimmel first suggested the murder early last January.

"Kimmel told me," he said, "that things would be a lot easier for me if Kramer was out of the way. I didn't like Kramer, anyway. Kimmel didn't promise me any money, but he has been paying the installments on an automobile for me.

"He suggested the ways in which I could bump Kramer off. One was that I go for a ride with him when he was on the way to his farm, and throw him off a high bluff. He said, if I didn't want to do that I could shoot him. I told him that I was no gunman."

It was finally decided, Pointer continued, that he would "lay for" Kramer in the garage behind the packing plant where Kramer kept his automobile. Kramer had living quarters above the garage where he stayed when not at his farm.

Pointer said that at Kimmel's suggestion, he put on gloves to avoid fingerprints, armed himself with a heavy sled runner and hid near the stairs leading to Kramer's quarters. As Kramer approached him he struck him on the head twice and Kramer fell.

Carried Body to Car.

Pointer carried the body to Kramer's car, and following Kimmel's directions, he said, he drove about six miles east on the highway until he crossed the Shawnee County line into Jefferson County. Pointer said that Kimmel told him to take the body into Jefferson County as the Coroner there "is a horse doctor and would be less likely to be suspicious."

"I jacked up the car and pulled the body out as I was told," Pointer told the Sheriff, "but I hurried and was awful shaky. I forgot to puncture the tire. I walked back to Topeka and thought of it when I got home, but it was too late then, and I was afraid to go back.

"I cleaned up the blood on the stairway, and hid the club and gloves. Next day I burned them in the plant furnace."

Pointer, unable to make $25,000 bond, is held in jail. Charles Rooney, Kimmell's attorney, said he would attempt to have Pointer's bond reduced.

Kimmel Charges Frame-Up.

Kimmel told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he was being "framed." He admitted that he and his late associate had had frequent quarrels, but denied that any of them were of a serious nature.

"Kramer and I were on the friendliest terms at the time of his death," Kimmel said. "I can't understand why Pointer would want to pin this on me or even why he would want to kill Kramer. If he hadn't said so himself, I wouldn't believe it. I do know, though, that Pointer hated Kramer. About a year ago Pointer lost a side of beef out of a truck, and Kramer bawled him out and had him followed for a long time.

"When he says I told him to kill Kramer he's telling a lie. And I think those other men at the plant who say that I discussed the proposition to kill Kramer with them are only after the $15,000 reward offered for the murderer.

"It's true that Kramer and I had a number of differences about business affairs. There was a little trouble in the late summer of 1928, when I hired a girl with whom I was keeping company. Kramer raised the devil about her being around, although he took her out himself.

"The girl left for California about two months before Kramer was killed, and returned to work at the office about two weeks ago."

Miss Vick, 22 years old, to whom Kimmel referred, was not at her desk this morning.

Attorneys for the packing company issued a statement characterizing as "foolish" the theory that a motive for the murder of Kramer was the $30,000 insurance. The company's assets and surplus are much greater than their liabilities, according to the statement.

County Prosecutor J. Lenn Logan said the State was prepared to prove first degree murder charges against Kimmel and Pointer.

Woman Worked 52 Years, Got No Pay, Witness Says

Testimony Taken in Suit of Miss Kate Loftus, 73, for $45,000 Against Estate of Millionaire Thomas Halpin.

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
MISS KATE LOFTUS.

How Miss Kate Loftus, 73 years old, worked as a domestic in the home of Thomas Halpin, millionaire druggist, for 52 years without pay was related yesterday at a hearing in the Probate Court on her claim for $45,220 against Halpin's estate. The claim is based on services as cook and housekeeper from Jan. 1, 1877, until the date of Halpin's death, Dec. 10 last, and is itemized on a scale ranging from $25 a month to $120 a month. The claimant's attorney, James A. Waechter, explained that the figures represented the prevailing wage scale for household help during the period of her employment. He introduced evidence to show how the scale varied from year to year, advancing with the times.

Miss Loftus' chief witness was Redmond W. McBride, 7012 Forsythe boulevard, who, with his sister, Mrs. F. X. Hackman, is a principal beneficary under the will of Halpin, their stepfather. The will made a bequest of $10,000 to the housekeeper, who still lives in the Halpin 10-room home at 3602 Olive street. McBride testified that the claimant was originally employed by his mother before he was born. His father died in 1868, and nine years later his mother was married to Halpin. Kate Loftus continued to work for Mrs. Halpin and after the death of Mrs. Halpin in 1912 remained with Halpin until his death.

From the time of his mother's second marriage Kate was not paid for her work, McBride testified, although wearing apparel was furnished her. Occasionally, he said, Halpin would give Kate $5 and say it was "for church," some of which she spent for trinkets.

"He once said to me," continued the witness, "that he didn't pay Kate a salary, but he would keep it for her and see that she was well taken care of. Just before he went to the hospital on the occasion of his last illness, he told me to see that his estate took care of her and that she was well paid."

According to McBride, the claimant did most of the housework for a family of four and was customarily busy, seldom going out. Other witnesses testified for her, but under the law she was not permitted to take the stand.

R. C. Coburn, attorney for the executor, elicited the fact that Miss Loftus went to work for Mrs. Halpin when she was 10 years old, being an orphan. He objected to items charged prior to May 28, 1925, asserting they were barred by the statute of limitations. Judge Holtcamp took testimony on this part of the claim, subject to objection, saying he was of the opinion the Supreme Court had decided the statute of limitations was not applicable. He took the case under advisement.

A suit by 12 relatives to set aside Halpin's will is pending. Among Mr. Halpin's holdings is realty at the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and Olive street.

FIGHT ON BREUER OPENED BY DRYS

Hearing Before Senate Committee Sought in Effort to Block Confirmation.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Telegrams from dry organizations and individuals indicating a concerted effort to block the confirmation of Louis H. Breuer as United States Attorney for the Eastern Missouri District, with headquarters at St. Louis, were received today by the Senate Judiciary Committee, to which Breuer's name was referred yesterday by the Senate. Breuer was nominated by President Hoover to succeed himself. He is now serving under an appointment which expired May 5.

Among those protesting against the reappointment are Gus Nations, former group chief of Federal prohibition agents in St. Louis, and Mrs. Fannie D. Robb, secretary of the St. Louis W. C. T. U., who accused him of undue laxity in prosecuting dry law violators.

The messages joined in asking that confirmation be held up till evidence could be presented. No action has been taken on the request by the Judiciary Committee, but at the office of Chairman Norris this afternoon it was indicated that a hearing would be granted.

Breuer last night declined to comment on the opposition to his reappointment other than to say: "What has been done in the way of prohibition enforcement during my term is a matter of record in the courts here and in the Department of Justice at Washington. The record speaks for itself."

Ex-Senator Reed's Speech Surveying Political and Economic Conditions

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., June 7.—In his address before the Young Democrats' Jefferson Club here tonight, Senator Reed said in part:

"The cry has gone forth that there no longer exists any essential difference between the Republican and Democratic parties. I assert that the difference is as wide as the ocean. It cannot be wiped out by those who prefer profit to principle and the emoluments of office above the fundamentals of free government.

"Even a national convention, seduced by the hope of temporary victory into the approval of false doctrines and make-shift expedients, cannot permanently destroy or change the fundamentals which today as in the past were and are the soul of the Democratic party.

"Such betrayal has been all too frequent. I have seen Congressmen, elected as Democrats, assist in fastening a general tariff tax on millions in order to get a tariff duty on a single product and thereby enrich a score of constituents.

"These Congressmen were conferring the favors of Government upon a privileged class to obtain its favor at the polls.

His Concept of Democracy.

"Permit me to give you my concept of Democracy.

"Broadly speaking, there has always existed two antagonistic theories of government—the paternalistic and the democratic. The paternalist asserts that governments are ordained to confer benefits upon favored classes and that indirectly benefits will flow from these classes down to the masses.

"The protagonists of that doctrine embrace every variety of individual from the monarchist to the advocate of paternalism and special privilege under popular forms of government. The doctrine is fundamentally based upon the idea that the citizen is incapable of self-government and must therefore be made the ward of the state.

"The opposing theory maintains the right and ability of the citizen to control his own destiny, to map his own course in life, to govern his own habits, and to erect a government which, as his servant, shall assert these inalienable rights and protect him in their enjoyment.

"The advocate of paternalistic laws, though he call himself a Democrat or a Republican, has, in fact, absorbed into his mental processes the doctrine by which every despot has sought to justify tyranny. The two lines of thought I have described stretch across the ages, and reach into the life of today.

"Alexander Hamilton was the high priest of privilege, the father of the Republican party, and is its canonized saint. He believed in the sanctity of capital and denied the ability of the people to control their own lives or to form a stable government. • • •

"Jefferson was the champion of the masses. He wrote volumes but never penned a line to confer a special privilege or to deny to a single individual the equal protection and advantage of the law.

"From the days of Hamilton and Jefferson to the present the two great parties have, broadly speaking, adhered to the policies of their founders.

"When the Democratic party has clung to the faith of its founder, it has nearly always been victorious. When it has 'wandered after false doctrines and strange gods,' it has suffered defeat.

"The Republican party has been always the protagonist of the special interests. . . . . .

"Nevertheless, I confidently assert that at all times the majority of our people have believed in the Democratic faith, and when not blinded by prejudice or misled by false arguments or alienated by the mistakes of party leaders, have stood willing to give us their support. . . . . .

"There is a vast multitude in America, represented by a considerable membership in Congress, calling themselves "Progressive Republicans," who adhere in the great essentials to the faith of the Democratic fathers.

"We can win and we will win when we shall disregard like the advice of the time-server, the demagogue, the money-changer, and the demands of undemocratic organizations and societies who seduce our leaders into accepting their demands only to betray us in the hour of battle • • •

"For 50 years the Republican party has been the tool of the manufacturing and capitalistic interests. . . . . It built a tariff wall horse high, hog tight, and bull strong, thus forcing the consumer to purchase almost exclusively from domestic manufacturers. It permitted these favored concerns to consolidate as monopolies and to extort conscienceless prices. Thus by law and monopoly a forced tribute has been laid upon every man, woman and child.

Competition Practically Destroyed.

"The march of monopoly has proceeded until competition is practically destroyed, independent enterprise crushed, and most of the wealth of the land gathered into the hands of the favored few. . . . .

"The Wilson administration created the Federal Reserve system. It was intended to break the strangle hold of the financial overlords by supporting the great industrial structure.

"Republican officials have prostituted that great system to the service of the worst gambling hell ever organized upon this earth. It has been made the facile tool of the managers and speculators of the Stock Exchange. The money of the country was by high interest premiums withdrawn from legitimate business and useful industry and poured into that insatiate maw to give rotten stocks fictitious values and unload them upon millions of victims. The unloading process being accomplished, credits were suddenly withdrawn, prices shattered and the plucking process completed. Literally millions of people were thus despoiled by the perversion of a system created to give stability of industry into a weapon of spoliation.

"During the Coolidge and Hoover maladministrations the march of monopoly has proceeded with unexampled speed. • • •

"Great corporations have been organized to establish chain stores, and by unfair competition and unjust devices to put out of business thousands of independent grocers, butchers and retailers. Thousands of formerly independent dealers are walking the streets in search of employment.

"Similarly, the old-fashioned pharmacy is giving way before the chain stores of heavily capitalized nonresident concerns. It appears that the only private drug store likely to survive is the little joint existing on the profits of illicit hooch. • • •

"Banks are demanding and gradually obtaining the right to establish branches. We are upon the road to a few great banking houses located in the financial centers with numerous branches to drain the resources of the country.

"Banks and trust companies are encroaching upon many legitimate lines of endeavor. The modern trust company has as many activities as a department store. • • •

Assails Radio Corporation.

"I invite your attention to what is commonly known as 'The Radio Trust.' • • •

"A few great corporations, heretofore governmental beneficiaries through tariff exactions and monopolistic grants, met in New York City. Advised by lawyers skilled in defeating the anti-trust laws, they devised the scheme of the Radio Corporation of America.

"They proposed to centralize in that corporation, its subsidiaries and allies, complete control of all communication by air.

"Essentially the monopoly rests upon three or four patents.

"A campaign to acquire outside patents was inaugurated until there is concentrated in that one company the ownership of some 3500 patents, valid and invalid. The Radio Corporation denies the right to any person to make or sell a radio.

"The combination also set about to control devices essential to long-distance telephoning and to aerial telegraphy.

"It asserts a monopoly of that modern miracle, the vacuum tube. • • • Without this instrument long-distance telephoning is impossible.

"The monopoly has combined with the Marconi and other companies so as to be able to control wireless telegraphy. It has combined by contract, stock ownership or otherd evices with the leading electrical companies of every nation of earth.

"Thus this combination proposes to control the empire of the air and to permit its enjoyment and use only by those who pay it tribute.

"But beyond the mere matter of tribute is the even graver menace that the information permitted to the people will be subject to censorship and control. • • •

"I am happy to say that the Department of Justice has in this instance been aroused to activity. Congress has begun to bestir itself, but an enlightened public interest must be manifested. • • •

"Let every man who loves freedom of speech remember that freedom of speech amounts to little unless there is freedom of communication. • • •

Demands Unequivocal Declaration.

"I venture to suggest to Democrats and Republicans alike that no man running for Congress or the Senate this fall should be allowed to escape a plain and unequivocal declaration.

"Let him state before the election whether he proposes to take sides with the people or with the combination. • • •

"I do not inveigh against capital. I stand as the defender of honest capital. We are all capitalists, although that capital may be merely the brains in our heads or the strength of our arms. All of us, big and little, rich and poor, are interested in the protection of property honestly acquired.

"What the Democratic party insists upon, what I insist upon, is that the great aggregations of capital shall not be employed to destroy smaller business institutions. • • •

"I protest further that the Democratic party should run its own business and declare its own policies. We should no longer listen to the dictates or importunities of organizations advocating a single idea whilst utterly regardless of all other principles of sound government." • • •

This declaration led the speaker to the subject of the Anti-Saloon League and prohibition. He repeated his often expressed opposition to both with characteristic vigor.

"Let us return to the question of special privilege. A special privilege is a right which can be enjoyed by certain individuals and which is denied to the masses of men. • • •

"It may be a law enabling a man or company in a certain business to escape competition and therefore charge extortionate prices.

"Such was the object of the protective tariff. Its adoption was violative of the principles upon which our Government was founded.

"Every man has a natural right to purchase where he chooses and to sell where he can. That right was denied when Congress erected the tariff wall.

"They told us the purpose was to protect infant manufacturers during the days of their weakness. They are more than 75 years of age. They stand astride the United States and some of them are planting their feet in foreign lands. They still clamor for aid, the while investing their millions in foreign factories. And then they tell us they cannot compete with the products of their own foreign mills.

Monopolies Prevent Competition.

"They told us the domestic manufacturer would grow strong and would compete and that prices would be reduced. They have formed monopolies to prevent competition and to exact robber profits.

"We hear much of the ills of the farmer. Let me repeat to the farmer what I have told him for 40 years. You are a consumer as well as a producer. The tariff law compels you to pay an excessive price for all you purchase. At the same time the economic law compels you to sell the surplus of your products in foreign markets and the price there paid fixes the price at home. You are forced to sell in a market in which the Republican party denies you the right to buy. You must sell abroad at a low level and buy at home at a high level artificially raised by law. The gap between those price levels is the gap of bankruptcy through which you are being driven by the thousands.

"The American manufacturer, instead of reducing the price to the people who have protected him, in numerous instances, sells his surplus to foreigners in foreign lands at from 25 to 50 per cent less than the price he exacts from the tillers of American soil. • • •

"One would have thought that cupidity had at last been glutted; that no more demand would be made. But Mr. Hoover and his cohorts are now engaged in trying to drive through a trust dictated tariff bill so atrocious as to be beyond belief. . . . .

"Robbery Under Form of Law."

"I denounce it as nothing more or less than robbery under the forms of law. It is undemocratic; unrepublican; unjust; and inhuman. . . . .

"It is enough to give one illustration. The Mellon interests exercise a practically complete monopoly over all the raw aluminum supply in the United States. They were instrumental in securing a tariff on aluminum products which, if my recollection serves me, ranges as high as 30 cents a pound.

"By that one stroke of the legislative pen Mellon's monopoly exacts tribute from every home. Such a law, I repeat, is robbery though perpetrated under the forms of law. The exactions of the Mellon aluminum trust are so vast that the infamies of Teapot Dome and Elk Hills sink into oblivion. . . . .

"The farmers are told that they can be compensated by the levying of a tariff tax on imported farm products. In fact, we are exporters not importers. The farmers have swallowed that bait till one wonders how they could have been so readily deceived.

"We are now told that farmers are to be rescued by farm organizations and by alms from the public treasury.

"I would be the last man to deny to the farmer any relief reasonably obtainable. Possibly some slight relief may come. But why not apply the knife to the roots of the cancer which compels you to pay excessive prices for all you purchase and thus devours you by day and by night. . . . .

"Hoover's Results Minus Quantity."

"What of Mr. Hoover? Mention his name and a smile of mingled derision and pity follows. His presidential achievements can be written in ciphers. A mathematician would describe him as a minus quantity. Failure was to be expected. . . . .

"For years the Republican party has declared that its policies produce prosperity. It has claimed the credit for all the wealth produced by the tireless arms and aching back of labor. Every time a cow has had a calf or a hen laid an egg, the Republican politician has claimed credit for his party. . . . .

"We have been blessed with six years of Harding, of Daugherty, of Fall, of Doheny, of Denby. We have had six years of Coolidge, of silence and incapacity. We have basked for 15 months beneath the protection of Herbert Hoover and the supreme guidance of Artie Hyde. For 13½ years the policies of the Republican party have been followed. The voice of Wall Street has never been so potential, its demands so religiously exacted.

"Providence has been kind. The fields have laughed with abundant harvests. The principal countries of Europe were but slowly recovering from the drains and disaster of the mightiest war of all time. Droughts had locked the graineries of Russia. The Wilson administration had created a great bank and currency system calculated to abolish the panics which had theretofore cursed the country and to mobilize the resources of the banks and back them with the credit of the people. Every physical and political condition seemed to conspire to produce prosperity.

The country banks have fallen by squads, by platoons, by regiments. The failures run into the thousands. Great banks of the cities by the hundreds have concealed their insolvency under the cloak of consolidation.

"The proprietors of business, small and great, with the exception of monopolies or quasi-monopolies, have listened to the crash of falling houses, the clanging of doors of closing factories, and have gone home to shudder at their own future. The small business man particularly finds his business ruined, his creditors clamoring, and is tramping the streets in search of a job.

"The maelstrom of the stock market sucked in the unfortunate millions, despoiled them for the benefit of the gamblers and turned them away broken and penniless.

"Labor by the millions walks the roads and the streets demanding work.

Plight of the Farmer.

"But worse than all is the condition of nearly 50 per cent of the population engaged in agricultural pursuits. Their fate is to toil without recompense, to sow and to garner without profit.

"When the farmer needs a plow he must buy it from a monopoly protected and fostered by the Government—buy it at two prices. When he needs clothing, he must pay the toll of the monopoly. Always he must sell his surplus in a market in which Republican laws deny him the right to buy. Now it is proposed to build still higher the wall to protect monopolistic greed, to increase the burdens of the agricultural and laboring class. Such is the remedy to be applied.

"A final word to Democrats:

"Let us return to the old principles. Let us reconsecrate ourselves to the memory of Jefferson. Let us return to the states the powers wrested from them. Let us re-establish local self-government. Let us proclaim the great truth that a people, incapable of governing themselves in their local communities are incapable of governing themselves in a national assembly. • • •

"Above all, I protest that the Democratic party shall not be led to worship the golden calf, to the adoption of the abominable doctrine that elections must be won with money. I protest that the Democratic party shall not be placed upon the auction block; that neither the place of its conventions nor the language of its platforms shall be fixed or dictated by those who come with the most money in their hands.

"Democracy is the party of the people. Upon it they must rely. Raise the standards of principle. Advance them in the hands of men in whom the people believe, and we will win without employing an immense slush fund gathered from those who invest their money in elections that they may control government after the election."

INJUNCTION AGAINST ALLEGED MEMBERS OF STOCK POOL

Firm and Six Individuals Accused of Manipulating Deal in Manhattan Electric Shares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Accused of operating a pool in Manhattan Electrical Supply Co. stock on the New York Stock Exchange, W. J. Goldman & Co., security dealers, and six other individuals were restrained from further dealings in securities today in an injunction issued by the Supreme Court.

The defendants include Welker Cochran, former billiard champion and now a customer's man for Harriss & Vose.

Representatives of the Bureau of Securities say that through a contract in which Richard H. Brown, president of the Manhattan Electrical Supply Co., agreed last summer to buy 50,000 shares of common stock, W. J. Goldman & Co. formed "one of the most audacious pool operations in the bureau's experience."

Among the alleged aids in the pool the bureau names Charles Petree, customers' man for the Reading, Pa., branch of Prince & Whitely, said to have been paid $10,000; Gordon Russell, employed by a Rochester, N. Y., brokerage firm, and a Mr. Cahn, assistant manager of the Philadelphia branch office of J. S. Bache & Co.

APPOINTMENTS AND GIFTS ANNOUNCED AT MISSOURI U.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 7.—Tom Loftin Johnson of New York was named professor of art at the University of Missouri for the coming summer session at a meeting of the Executive Board of the Board of Curators of the university at St. Louis yesterday, it was announced today by Dr. Walter Williams, president of the university.

The board also formally accepted a gift of $10,000 from George Mahan of Hannibal for the establishment of five English prizes, and gifts totaling $5300 from the National Research Council for use of members of the university faculty in research projects which they now have under way. Establishment of a fine arts prize by William B. Ittner of St. Louis was also approved, and several student and graduate assistants for the summer session were named.

GIRL SLAIN, HER UNCLE FATALLY WOUNDED

Miss Maymie Jones, 17, Shot to Death in Sikeston, Mo., After Quarrel.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SIKESTON, Mo., June 7.—Miss Maymie Jones, 17 years old, was dead and her uncle, P. E. (Pab) Jones, 43, was fatally wounded in a midnight shooting in Murray lane, South Sikeston, last night.

The girl had been living with her mother in Texas until about two months ago when she came to this city to live with her grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Mays. Her father is dead. Before her arrival here she had been placed in a convent and subsequently turned over to Mr. and Mrs. Jones, also of Texas. Later she was sent here to live with her grandmother. The "Pab" Jones family came to live here two weeks ago from Dallas. Last evening she and Joseph Morrison arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson. Her two sisters and Mr. and Mrs. Jones were present.

Jones exchanged words with the girl and is said to have threatened to shoot her if she continued to associate with Morrison. He then forced her to accompany him in his automobile, saying he was going to drive her to her grandmother's home. Although followed by relatives, they were not seen again, until about midnight, when they drove up in front of the J. J. Limbaugh home. Jones handed Mrs. Limbaugh, a sister of the slain girl, his wallet and watch and drove away. A few minutes later, two shots were heard, and a search disclosed the body of the girl and Jones was found nearby, seriously wounded. He was unable to make a statement, and died late today.

55 PCT. OF AMERICANS ABOVE 13 CHURCH MEMBERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Religious census statistics made public tonight by the Institute of Social and Religious Research, show that of every 100 persons more than 13 years old in the United States, there are now 55 church members, as there were 10 and 20 years ago.

Only 52 per cent of the rural population are church members compared with 58 per cent of those living in cities. The analysis also shows that 41 per cent of the ministers of 17 white Protestant bodies are not graduates either of college or seminary.

The report says that at least 62 of every 100 adult church members belong to a Protestant church, while 30 are Catholics and six are Jews. Women predominat in church membership, 48 per cent of the males of the country over 13 years of age, and 63 per cent of the females, being members.

OLD GUARD NEEDS FIVE DEMOCRATS TO PASS TARIFF BILL

get the bill through the Senate and into the White House. They say that Mr. Hoover will sign it. The available evidence does, indeed, point in that direction, but an element of doubt remains. Thi doubt was increased the other day by a statement from the White House that the President would study the bill carefully before giving his decision. He would approach the question, it was said, with an open mind.

The statement caused a new flare-up of hope that the President, notwithstanding his success in killing the export debenture plan and getting his flexible tariff-making power retained, will agree with Henry Ford and other great industrialists, with the 1200 protesting economists, with scores of Republican newspapers, that the rate sections of the measure make it an abomination demanding a veto.

If Mr. Hoover signs the bill, it will be in the face of a public protest that has steadily grown in volume from the day when the House leaders first exposed to the public their singular conception of his call for a "limited" revision.

Not What President Ordered.

In bringing Congress into special session in April, 1929, the President asked for a revision primarily in the interest of farm relief, with an incidental revision of industrial rates in cases where "there has been a slackening of activity in an industry during the past few years and a consequent decrease of employment due to insurmountable competition." He made it clear that he was opposed to a new basis of protective duties.

The President's prescription was unmistakable. It was iterated and reiterated. The revision was to be limited, and he gave the test to be applied to an industry seeking new rates. It must demonstrate that it was suffering depression due to "insurmountable" foreign competition. How has Congress filled the prescription?

It is about to hand to the President — unless some unforeseen hitch occurs in the Senate—a bill containing more than 1000 rate changes, of which practically 80 per cent are upward; a bill containing rate increases in each of its 15 schedules; a bill with a rate level 20 per cent higher than the level of the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922.

Schedules Thrown Wide Open.

In response to the demand of protected interests, the tariff schedules were thrown wide open, with the result that added tariff taxes were placed on a multiplicity of articles of daily use and necessity. Food and clothing, household furniture, domestic conveniences, building materials, surgical instruments, all came within the scope of the "limited" revision.

Shoes, to cite another glaring example, were taken off the free list and made subject to a duty of 20 per cent. This was the compensatory tax which the tariff-makers held to be necessary to equalize the new 10 per cent duty placed on hides.

It has been estimated by large St. Louis manufacturers, who opposed the hide and shoe tariffs, that the imports on these commodities will raise the national shoe bill by $150,000,000 a year. Shoes are to be "protected" against the "insurmountable" competition, afforded by imports which amount to less than 1 per cent of the domestic production.

One other item of special interest is the new rate on sugar. Cuban sugar now pays a duty of 1.76 cents a pound. A majority of the United States Tariff Commission recommended to President Coolidge in 1924 that this rate be decreased. He pocketed the report. (That was one way in which the flexible tariff worked under Mr. Coolidge.) Now comes the Hawley-Smoot bill and goes Mr. Coolidge one better. Mr. Coolidge merely let the present rate alone. The pending bill increases it to 2 cents a pound.

$300,000,000 a Year Tax.

Economists have estimated that the 2 cent duty means a tax of about $300,000,000 a year on the consumer. This is what the nation will pay in order that the special proteges of Senator Smoot, the beet sugar growers of the West, may have protection. The new sugar duty is hailed by the defenders of the Hawley-Smoot tariff as one of the items of "farm relief." Senator Smoot described it, in a rare burst of eloquence, as a "national blessing." According to Prof. John R. Commons and other economists of the University of Wisconsin, only 3 per cent of the farmers of the United States will get any benefit out of the duty; the remaining 97 per cent will merely help to pay the bill.

It would be immeasurably cheaper, as many economists have pointed out, to give the beet sugar growers an outright bounty—but that kind of tax on the public would be altogether too obvious.

888 Increases; 235 Reductions.

To show that the tariff bill effects a general and not a limited revision — that President Hoover would be warranted in basing a veto on the ground of violation of the purpose for which he called Congress into session more than a year ago—it is only necessary to take the figures given by Senator Smoot in handing the conference report to the Senate. He showed 888 rate increases as compared with 235 decreases. He estimated that the ad valorem rate for the bill as a whole is 40.08 per cent as compared with the present rate of 33.22 per cent, and that the prospective annual yield of the bill in customs duties is $630,456,280 as compared with the present $522,649,383.

The following increases in ad valorem rates were shown in the 15 schedules:

Chemicals, 2.18 per cent; earthenware, glassware, etc., 8.02 per cent; metals, 1.30 per cent; wood, 2.52 per cent; sugar, 1.36 per cent; tobacco, 1.69 per cent; agricultural products and provisions, 14.14 per cent; spirits, wines and beverages, 10.96 per cent; cotton manufactures, 6.15 per cent; flax, hemp, jute, etc., 0.98 per cent; wool and wool manufactures, 10.29 per cent; manufactures of silk, 2.57 per cent; manufactures of rayon, 0.94 per cent; papers and books, 1.32 per cent; sundries, 5.42 per cent.

If this is a limited revision, what would happen if Senator Smoot and Representative Hawley should really turn themselves loose?

Many Grounds for Veto.

There are many reasons which Mr. Hoover might invoke in order to justify a veto of the pending bill.

Economists agree—witness the statement of the 1200—that the bill will raise the cost of living.

The increase cannot be measured by the rise in rates, for the tariff tax is pyramided all along the line before it hits the consumer. Democratic estimates of the total additional burden placed on the consumer by the new rates range from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

That the tariff subsidizes a small privileged class at the expense of the many was shown by the Post-Dispatch in a comprehensive study of this subject published Oct. 12 last; that not more than 6 per cent of the people of the United States receive any direct benefits from the high prevailing duties. The higher duties in prospect will bestow still more largess upon the favored few.

It is a demonstrated fact that under the present duties the great majority of our industries have prospered greatly. This, as the Post-Dispatch showed on Oct. 30, from income tax returns submitted by the Treasury to the Senate, has been notably true of the steel and chemical industries. Some of the factories sheltered behind the present tariff wall have rolled up tremendous profits since 1922.

Wage Standard Not at Issue.

It is argued that a high tariff is needed to protect the American standard of wages, but the opposing view, held by many economists, is that the real cause underlying every high wage scale is not the tariff, but the greater productivity of the American worker in comparison with the European, plus the great advantage that this country enjoys in natural resources.

In this connection, the average wage scale in the shoe and some other great non-protected industries is fully up to if not above the scale in the protected industries, and furthermore 75 per cent of the wage earners of the country, such as 3,000,000 in transportation, 3,000,000 clerks and 3,400,000 in domestic service, are completely outside the benefits of the tariff. There is also the fact that what the tariff may give to a worker in wages it will take away from him through the increased cost of his living.

Labor and Other Protests.

George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America, is one of the thousands who have protested to President Hoover against the bill. "I join with the millions of working men and women of this nation," wrote Berry, "in expressing the hope that if the bill reaches your desk you will find it possible to veto it. My opinion from intimate observation and actual activity as the president of one of the international trade unions is that the organized labor movement is not in sympathy with it."

The argument has been communicated to Mr. Hoover in a number of protests, that the pending bill will not only not create new labor, but will tend rather to increase unemployment by reducing our exports.

One hundred and thirty protests have been received from 33 countries—protests which have already, in Canada and other countries, been followed by threats of retaliation. It seems to Henry Ford and to many other industrialists, as it seems to the protesting economists, that the foreign trade of the United States, on which our prosperity in large measure depends is certain to be injured by the heightening of the tariff wall.

In reply to the argument that the bill will help the farmer, many persons have pointed to the fact, in addressing Mr. Hoover on the subject, that whatever gain may accrue to agriculture will be more than offset by the increased duties on manufactured goods. It has been estimated by some economists that for every 10-cent benefit to the average farmer he will pay out a dollar.

Most Farmers Will Suffer.

The basic farm problem is not that of foreign competition in the home market; it is the problem of how best to dispose of surplus production. The 1200 protesting economists are among the many who fail to see how the farmer can be benefited by tariffs on export crops that must be sold in the world market. It is conceded that some farmers, such as the growers of beet sugar and of California and Florida fruits, nuts and vegetables, will receive direct benefits, but the weight of the testimony is that the vast majority of farmers will suffer.

SEEK TO EXHUME BODY OF ARMY OFFICER'S FIRST WIFE

U. S. Agents Plan Poison Test; Maj. Shepard Accused of Killing Second Mate.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 7.—Continuing an investigation that has lasted several months, Department of Justice agents today sought to have the body of the first wife of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, Army medical officer, exhumed. Shepard is under indictment at Topeka, Kan., for the murder of his second wife.

Mrs. Clara Elizabeth Shepard, the first wife, was buried in an Englewood, Cal., cemetery 17 years ago. Her death certificate attributed death to neuritic and complications.

R. J. Caffrey, a Justice agent, said the department wished to have the body analyzed for poison. Shepard is alleged to have poisoned his second wife, Mrs. Zenna Shepard, at Fort Riley, Kan.

At the time of his arrest Shepard denied he was engaged at the time of his second wife's death to Miss Grace Brandon, a stenographer at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex.

NORRIS OFFERS COMPROMISE ON MUSCLE SHOALS

Senator Hopeful of Agreement at This Session on Plan Embodying Features of Both Bills.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—House and Senate conferees failed to agree today on Muscle Shoals legislation and adjourned to meet again Thursday, with Chairman Norris of the Senate group expressing lively hope that a compromise would yet be reached at this session of Congress.

Two radically different plans are before the conferees—the Norris Government operation plan, which the Senate approved by a large majority, and the House substitute, which calls for the leasing of the Shoals to private interests. The Norris proposal treats the Government's $150,000,000 plant on the Tessessee River as primarily a power project, while the House bill aims ostensibly at the manufacture of cheap fertilizer.

Government operation advocates have denounced the House bill, which bears the name of Reece (Rep.), Tennessee, as a device to permit the exploitation of the Shoals by private power interests.

Norris sprang a surprise by offering, on behalf of the Senate conferees, an ingenious compromise embodying features of both measures. Its acceptance by the conference committee and subsequent approval by the House and Senate would settle a problem with which Congress has wrestled for the last 10 years. If the compromise fails, no Muscle Shoals legislation can be hoped for till the next session.

Norris' Compromise.

Norris proposed that the Senate yield to the House to the extent of permitting all the fertilizer and nitrate properties at the Shoals be leased to private interests; that the House in turn agree to Government operation of the power facilities; that the private lessee be required to manufacture exclusively fertilizer and fertilizer ingredients, and that the Government furnish to the lessee all the power necessary for this manufacture, at a price no greater than the price to municipalities.

The House conferees declined the proposition, though the two Democrats—Quin of Mississippi and Fisher of Tennessee — expressed their approval of it. Reese of Tennessee, Wurzbach of Texas and Ransley of Pennsylvania, Republicans, the the other conferees for the House, while Norris, McNary (Rep.), Oregon, and Smith (Dem.), South Carolina, represent the Senate.

Reece and Smith did not attend today's meeting. On the attitude of Reece depends the outcome of the negotiations.

"Although the House conferees rejected the compromise," said Norris, "some of them are at heart in favor of it.

"The House is contending that the Senate bill does not go far enough in the production of fertilizer and that fertilizer can be more cheaply manufactured by a private lessee than by the Government. If the people who believe in this theory are acting in good faith, they w illnot hesitate to accept the Senate's proposition, and the fact that it is declined is a demonstration that in this Muscle Shoals woodpile is carefully concealed the private Power Trust.

"If the position of the House is right and the fertilizer and nitrate properties at Muscle Shoals can be handled by a private corporation and the price of fertilizer cheapened to the farmer, then they ought to jump at the opportunity given them by the Senate conferees.

All of Power Sought.

"The House conferees insist that the lessee who is to manufacture fertilizer must be given the great power facilities at Muscle Shoals as a bonus. With the conditions named we conceded to the House conferees the right to draft their own leasing proposition.

"If they are right in their contention it should not be difficult for these properties to be leased, and every kilowatt of power produced could be devoted to the production of fertilizer. The fact that the proposition is declined is, it seems to me, a demonstration of what I have so often said—that every proposition which has ever been made to lease Muscle Shoals to private corporations is in reality an attempt to get control of all the power produced there. The pretensions that they were moved by a patriotic desire to give cheap fertilizer to the farmer are only a means of getting control of the power.

"The Senate resolution provided for fertilizer experimentation by the Government itself, a function which everyone concedes is proper for the Govrnent. If those who want fertilizer to be made by private corporations are in earnest the Senate's proposal of compromise gives them an opportunity to realize 100 per cent on their scheme."

Washington U. Obtains Architect's Library

Valuable Collection Is Disposed of by the Estate of David Boyce of Edinburgh for $10,000.

A library of 575 volumes on architecture and allied subjects has been purchased for the Washington University School of Architecture. It constitutes one of the outstanding collections of this sort in the world of works published up to the time of the death in 1876 of its original owner, David Bryce, an architect of Edinburgh, Scotland. Bryce was the architect who designed a new wing for the House of Commons in London.

The collection was bought for $10,000. The opportunity to buy it was presented to the university only a short time ago. The architectural school did not have the money available and the option expired last Thursday. On Wednesday a St. Louis architect gave his check for the earnest money needed to complete the purchase.

When the books are delivered, about September, $4000 must be paid and the balance, $6000, by next June. Louis La Beaume, chairman of the university's Advisory Committee on Architecture and Fine Arts, said yesterday it was hoped that some benefactor would provide the entire purchase price and have his name attached to the collection. La Beaumo, an architect, regards the library as a remarkable acquisition for the benefit of the students.

The price of $10,000 was made by the Bryce estate for purchase by a university. It had asked $20,000 from a private buyer and had accepted $5000 as earnest money on the latter price from a Chicago architect. Bryce left his library in trust for his grandchildren, hoping one of them would become an architect, but none did.

There are 378 items in the collection. Included is a complete 12-volume set of the works of Piranesi, an Italian architect of the Renaissance. This set alone is worth about $3500, it is said.

Recently the anonymous donation of $250,000 for an endowment fund for the Washington University Architectural School was announced. It was conditioned upon the raising of an equal sum for a new building for the school, which it is proposed to erect adjoining the School of Fine Arts.

STEEL FIRM OFFICERS IN CITY

Executives of American Foundries Inspect St. Louis Plants.

Officers and directors of the American Steel Foundries, which has its headquarters in Chicago, were in St. Louis Friday to attend a meeting of the board of directors and spent a part of the day inspecting their St. Louis plants. The American Steel Foundries has two plants here and operates the General Steel Castings Corporation, of which the Commonwealth Steel Co. is a division.

John G. Lonsdale, president of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., entertained the following officers and directors of the American Steel Foundries at a dinner: George E. Scott, president; Robert H. Ripley, Fritz B. Ernst, Warren J. Lynch, vice presidents, all of Chicago; Walter C. Doering, vice president, St. Louis; Thomas Drever, secretary-treasurer, Chicago; Chauncey Belknap of Curtis Fosdick & Belknap, New York; Edward F. Goltra, president of the Missouri Iron Co., St. Louis; Henry U. Harris of Harris, Upham & Co., New York; John M. Harrigon, of Haverhill, Mass.; George Murnane of Lee, Higginson & Co., New York; Charles A. Munroe, president of the Northern Utilities Co., Chicago, and W. D. Sargent, Newark, N. J.

Alexander P. Moore Estate.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 7. — The estate of Alexander P. Moore, United States Ambassador to Spain and former Pittsburg newspaper publisher, who died Feb. 17, had a total value of $697,376, an inventory filed by the executors today disclosed. Moore bequeathed $100,000 in his will to the Queen of Spain, to be administered by her for charitable purposes.

Now . . . you can have a Beautiful Figure . . . Quick

Miraculous New REDUCING GARMENT takes off inches from hips, waist, thighs

This before-and-after picturization shows exactly what Beauty Mould does. By slenderizing, it gives chic to a frock that otherwise has no style.

Observe the grace of the evening gown fitted to lines made slender with Beauty Mould. And compare it with the matronly figure allowed to wander where it will.

Do not blame the suit for faults that belong to the figure. Reduce with a Beauty Mould . . wear clothes to its lines . . and smartness appears magically.

WEAR TODAY'S STYLE IN PERFECT FORM

AT LAST, without starvation diets or strenuous exercises—you can have the figure of your dreams—slim, young, beautifully proportioned. Just by wearing Beauty Mould . . . a garment which the makers claim is the loveliest corset ever created for large figures . . . or figures that are beginning to bulge.

Soft as satin. Yet so amazingly strong it takes off inches from your silhouette, the minute you put it on.

And every day that you wear the Beauty Mould, you actually reduce. You can see the matronly fat disappear from your hips. Those ugly bulges around your waist vanish. Your whole body slims down miraculously.

. . . then you can quit wearing the Beauty Mould! You have a beautiful figure; small waist, youthfully rounded hips, slender thighs, the season's smartest lines! Just as Miss Varden says:

The Sandfelder Company Makers of Beauty Mould Corsets
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Sirs:

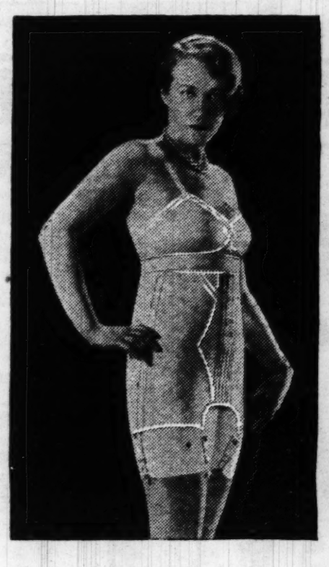
For years I have been a corset and dress model and have exhibited at many style shows throughout this country and Europe. I am what is known as a perfect 36.

I never diet, but when I put on excess fat I immediately begin wearing this silk-surfaced rubber corset and in a short time I reduce down to perfect 36 measurements. Then I must discontinue wearing the corset; otherwise I reduce too much.

There are no bad effects from wearing this lovely garment; it absorbs all moisture, and in appearance, fit and style it is the equal of any corset I have ever worn.

Women who are too fat or find themselves getting fat should not hesitate to wear this remarkable reducing garment.

Very truly yours,
Venna Varden.



THE MARVELOUS

Beauty Mould

lets you wear the new styles beautifully while losing weight daily

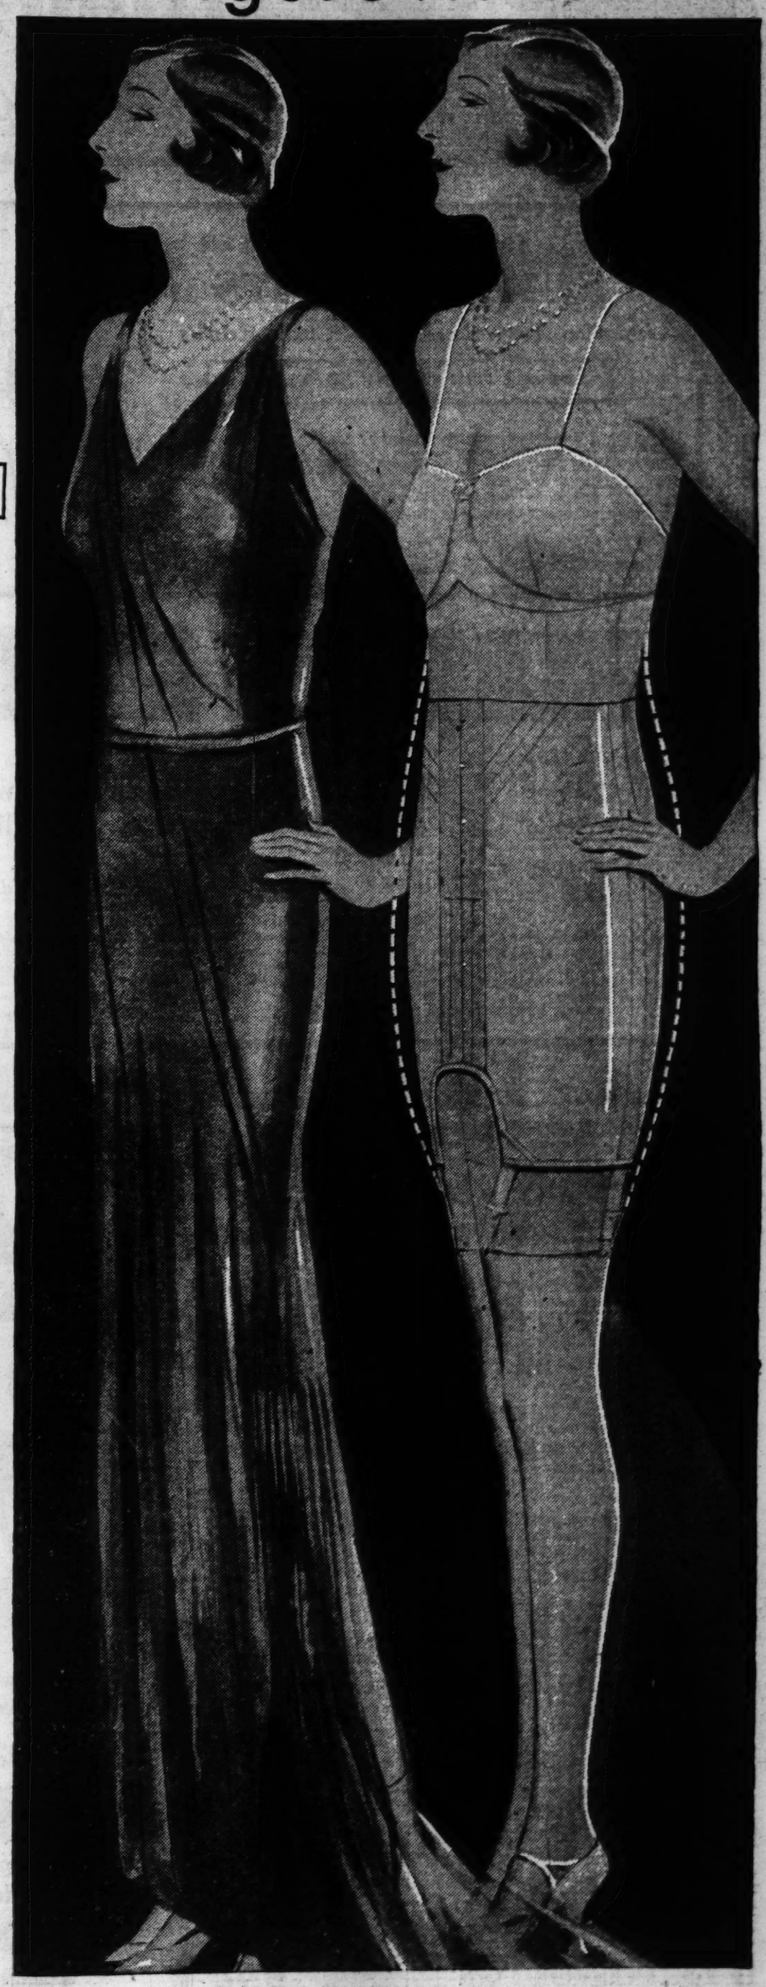
The Beauty Mould is the greatest gift to fleshy women. A totally new invention. It looks like a fashionable satin corset—and that's how it feels. The surface next to the body is an absorbent finishing cloth, the outside is lustrous silk. And between these two is an interlining of that famous patented Rubber-Tex. It reduces just like rubber—and just like magic. Marvelously comfortable to wear; beautiful in style; modelled to conform the figure to the newest fashions of today.

Everybody knows how rubber reduces. Health authorities recommend rubber garments for reducing. We have capitalized upon this knowledge in producing a garment that eliminates all the disadvantages of old-time rubber corsets.

Rubber-Tex, the great invention of an elastic fabric with positive reducing qualities, has been hidden between the surfaces of two fabrics, giving you the best reducing garment . No rubber to touch you; but a beautiful corset to give you grace.

It feels silky, luxurious, next the skin. It absorbs excess perspiration; keeps you comfortable at all times. It wears and wears; cannot rot; has no rubber odor; is absolutely guaranteed not to rip or pull apart.



You can wash it and wash it; keep it dainty and fresh always. And the back lacing lets you pull it in as your hips and waist grow smaller day by day.

No excuse now for anyone looking stiff, bulky, fat! Beauty Mould gives you the smart slender figure you must have to look beautiful in the new styles, while it gradually reduces your body to lovely lines. "The most comfortable garment I have ever worn" women call the Beauty Mould. And best of all, it isn't something you have to keep on wearing forever. You can discard it when you get down to the desired size. One Beauty Mould lasts as long as the average-sized woman needs to reduce. Amazingly small price to pay for slender beauty!

Don't wait another day without finding out how true all this is—how unbelievably slim and graceful you can look, and become . . . in the Beauty Mould.

Beauty Mould is a product of The Sandfelder Co., Chicago, Ill., and is made by the Associated Apparel Industries, Inc., largest manufacturers in the world of Corsets and Brassieres. Makers of Gossard, Modart, Nature's Rival, Beauty Mould, Jackson, Venus, and College Girl Corsets and LaModa Garments.

JOHNSON AGAIN DEMANDS NOTES ON LONDON PACT

In Face of President's Refusal He Issues Statement Calling for Confidential Papers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—In the face of President Hoover's refusal, Senator Johnson (Rep.), California, today renewed his demand that the State Department turn over to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee part of the "informal and confidential notes" exchanged between the United States and Great Britain as a preliminary to the London Naval Conference. In a formal statement he replied to Secretary of State Stimson, who wrote yesterday in answer to the first demand: "I am directed by the President to say "that the production of the notes would not, in his opinion, be compatible with the public interest."

Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he considered that the committee had all the information necessary to pass upon the treaty and he would call it together on Monday to consider action. Senator Johnson did not indicate he would seek to defer committee action pending another attempt to get the notes.

Johnson's Statement.

Johnson's statement answering Secretary Stimson follows:

"The question at issue in the demand that I have made for the papers relating to the London treaty cannot be avoided by a half quotation from Washington, which is utterly set at naught by the full context, nor by any pretense of safeguarding delicate international secrets.

"It will be observed that the denial of the papers by President Washington was to the House of Representatives which is not a part of the treaty-making power, but that all papers and documents were laid before the Senate, which was a part of the treaty-making power.

"The power of the President to negotiate treaties is derived from the Constitution, which says: 'He shall have power by and with the consent of the Senate to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur.'

"In the making of treaties, therefore, the duty of the Senate is as important and solemn as that of the President. Apparently this is forgotten in the present discussion.

Able to Keep Confidence.

"The Foreign Relations Committee has ever in the past jealously guarded such confidential information as has been transmitted to it, and today, as in days gone by, if it be compatible with the public interest to maintain as confidential some state documents upon which the treaty was founded, the Foreign Relations Committee and the Senate itself will, of course, maintain that confidence inviolate.

"In the case of the London treaty a very different proposition is presented that either lawyer or layman can readily understand. In the hearings before the Foreign Relations Committee, the signers of the treaty, themselves, introduced into the public record a document, wherein the Premier of Great Britain is quoted most intimately concerning the negotiations, and the contents of various dispatches between the British Government and our own are discussed and referred to.

"When the signers of the treaty saw fit thus not only to introduce in evidence, but to make public a part of the telegrams and communications passing between the British Government and our own, the Foreign Relations Committee at once were entitled to all of the details, and everything relating to the subject matter.

"It is silly, and worse, for any individual to contend that he can put into the public record and publish broadcast in the press of the country, a part of the correspondence bearing upon the treaty and then, holding up his hands in holy horror at a request for all of the correspondence, pretend that while a part of the record, upon which he relies, may be by him given to the public, the giving of all of it to his partner in treaty making, would be incompatible with the public interest."

WOMEN'S CLUBS' FEDERATION FOR DRY LAW AS IT IS

In Biennial Convention at Denver Reaffirms Its Faith in the Eighteenth Amendment.

DENVER, Colo., June 7.—By an overwhelming vote, the twentieth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs today adopted a resolution reaffirming the organization's faith in prohibition after an unsuccessful attempt had been made to delete a reference to "sinister influences" opposed to prohibition.

A standing vote on the question of adopting the resolution showed 11 in favor of striking out the word "sinister," five of the 11 being from Texas.

The amendment to strike was offered by Miss Florence Dibert of Johnstown, Pa., who later said she had offered it merely for the purpose of getting the matter before the convention. Mrs. J. C. Pearson of Marshall, Ok., chairman of the American Citizenship Committee, sponsored the original resolution.

"We realize," she told the convention, as the amendment came to a vote, "that there are persons sincere in their belief that temperance conditions can be changed by other than the present laws. I have no objection to deleting the word 'sinister,' but the time has come when we women must stand for what we believe is right, and we must lend our full support to those charged with enforcement of the laws."

Mrs. Edward F. White, former Assistant Attorney-General of Indiana, said she thought the inclusion of the word was justified, and that she would oppose any move to delete it.

Mrs. White declared part of the press was "subsidized" by persons wishing to repeal prohibition, and that the repeal movement was backed by "millions of dollars."

Virginia White Speel, of the District of Columbia, said she favored the resolution in its entirety. "Any modification of our present laws would mean a return of the saloon," she declared.

Before the final vote was put on the unamended resolution, Mrs. Otto Hahn of New York obtained recognition from the chair to speak in favor of the inclusion of the word.

DEMOCRATS PLAN FIGHT TO CONTROL THE LEGISLATURE

Redistricting, Scheduled for 1931 Session, Gives Special Importance to Party Strength in Next Body.

The political importance of control of State Senate and House of Representatives, in view of the requirement that bills be passed at the 1931 session changing boundaries of present Congressional and State Senatorial districts, has caused the Democratic City Committee to give attention to the Legislature, formerly neglected for major local offices in campaigns.

If new lines are not laid for Congressional districts, Congressmen will be elected at large, a disadvantage to Democrats, who now are favored by district boundaries. The same is true of the State Senatorial districts and if Republicans should control both branches of the Legislature a Republican gerrymander would be possible. However, if the present Democratic majority in the Senate can be maintained, this can be prevented, and if Democrats gain control of the House, which had a Republican majority in 1929, it can deal on more equal terms with Gov. Caulfield, who is armed with the power of veto.

A complete ticket will be submitted by Democrats at the November election and more candidates than usual have filed for the primary. A list of Senatorial candidates was published yesterday in the Post-Dispatch. Each party will nominate four candidates for Representative in the First, Fourth and Fifth districts, and three in the Second. Nineteen will be elected in November. Candidates for Representative are:

First District.

Republican—William Schwartz, 3512A Minnesota avenue; Joseph J. Tomaso, 7306 Pennsylvania avenue; Robert F. Miller, 3118A Indiana avenue; Charles F. Mason, 2643 Winnebago street; Charles Ehrhardt, 3873 Utah place; George W. Williams, 4974 Quincy street; Louis C. Hehl, 3942 South Jefferson avenue; Francis M. O'Brien, 3842 Robert avenue; R. F. BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT FILED Suit for $20,000 for breach of promise was filed in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday by Miss Leora Whitehouse, 28 years old, of Los Angeles, Cal., against C. D. Triplett, former automobile salesman with the Maplewood Hudson-Essex Co., and now said to be residing in Kentucky.

Miss Whitehouse charges that Triplett began courting her shortly after their first meeting, in 1923, in Colorado, where he was operating a chain of general stores. After continued correspondence and proposals of marriage by Triplett, she says, she considered herself his fiancee and suffered extreme embarrassment when she found he did not regard her as such.

Michigan

THE PLAYGROUND OF THE NATION

Michigan is unusually fortunate in that her topography makes every conceivable summer sport available.

Come up here for a real Vacation

The ideal vacation spot for you is somewhere in Michigan.

Climate as you like it—warm for those who wish it—cool spots, too, if you want them—and in the Upper Peninsula, snappy, cool mornings and blanket nights made for restful sleep.

Then, there's the question of what you like to do during vacation time. Michigan offers you countless spring-fed inland lakes and the clean, white sand shores of three Great Lakes for BATHING. It offers you the greatest fishing that there is—in wilderness lakes that are not "fished out." And if you like to explore, there are hundreds of square miles of Michigan that have not yet given up their secrets of the pre-historic past.

Michigan offers you everything. More places of historic interest than you'll have time to visit—scenery that is beautiful beyond compare—golf on the finest fairways ever mowed—and sights and experiences that you'll never forget. In the same day—in Michigan—you may take in some of the world's greatest industrial centers, then tramp through virgin forest, primitive since the beginning of time.

There's another fine thing about vacationing in Michigan. The hotel and resort accommodations are the finest—in equipment and in character—and rates are most reasonable.

So come to Michigan this summer Come by rail, boat, motor or by plane. The roads are the best in the land and Michigan's Airports are many and fine. If you'll visit us THIS summer, we're sure you'll never want to spend your vacation elsewhere.

GERMAN MINISTER TO PORTUGAL MURDERED

Assassin Says He Went to Lisbon From Danzig to Kill One of Three Envoys.

By the Associated Press.

LISBON, Portugal, June 7.—Dr. von Baligand, German Minister to Lisbon, was shot and killed here today.

The assassin, who was arrested, came from Danzig with a German passport. He gave the name of Franz Piechowski, 39 years old, and said that at one time he had taken out first naturalization papers at New York.

Piechowski fired two shots at Von Baligand as the Envoy reached a pier in making an official call upon Admiral Gladish on the flagship Koenigsburg of the German fleet, now in Lisbon harbor.

The assassin came to Lisbon a month ago, he told police, and tried vainly to kill the German Minister. Police surveillance about the Embassy frustrated his plans. Police said the assassin told them the German Government had denounced him as a dangerous criminal to the police of all Europe, and that he had had trouble also with the American authorities. He said he came to Lisbon for the express purpose of killing the British, the American or the German Minister, and that it was only a matter of chance that the actual victim crossed his path today. He expressed no regret.

The prisoner will be examined by alienists before proceedings begin for his extradition to Germany for trial for murder.

NEEDLE WOUND ENDANGERS LIFE OF NOTED SURGEON

Dr. Carl A. Hedblom of Illinois U. Seriously Ill With Septicemia.

CHICAGO, June 7.—A microscopic needle that punctured one of his fingers during an operation has endangered the life of Dr. Carl A. Hedblom, head of the Surgical School of the University of Illinois and noted specialist in surgery of the thorax. He is in St. Luke's Hospital fighting septicemia which developed from the penetration of the steel needle.

Dr. Hedblom once directed the Harvard medical unit in China. For 10 years he was attached to the Mayo Clinic and he was dean of surgery at the University of Wisconsin before joining the Illinois staff.

DEATH LILY'S SIXTH GANGSTER FOUND SLAIN

Body of "Red" McLaughlin, Notorious Gunman, Taken From Chicago Canal.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—A passing lumber brought up the beaten, mutilated body of Eugene "Red" McLaughlin from the Chicago drainage canal today and newspaper files disclosed that the sixth of Margaret Hamilton's sweethearts had met death at the hands of gangsters.

Feet and hands bound with wire and head tied in a sack, the corpse of the nationally notorious gunman, kidnaper, robber and killer was dragged from the water, where it apparently had lain about two weeks. It was identified by "Red's" brother, Robert McLaughlin, president of the Checker Cab Co. of Chicago.

Police, seeking a motive, said that underworld gossip blamed McLaughlin for the killing of Earl "Jew" Bates in Cincinnati, O., about two months ago. . . Police learned that Bates and McLaughlin—once pals—had quarrelled over the Hamilton girl, referred to by hoodlums as the "Death Lily of Gangland."

It was Margaret who was Dion O'Banion's amour—Dion, who was shot down by a trio of assassins in his North Side flower shop. It was she, too, who knew the attentions of Sonny Sohlig, "Dandy" Sheey and Johnny Phillips. All went the usual way—"Murdered by persons unknown." Bates came next, and they took his body from the river at Cincinnati, and now McLaughlin.

"I'll Love You Forever."

"I'll love you forever, Gene," read a note in the victim's pocket."

"Red" McLaughlin went to Pontiac Reformatory for robbery at the age of 16 and was paroled three years later to enter in earnest into all the violence of gangland.

He went to Detroit three years ago and kidnaped a man for ransom. Police say he first put kidnaping on a business basis here and assert he extorted thousands from his victims.

On March 22 of that year he held up Walter J. Neumann, New York jewelry salesman, and took $85,000. He was tried and sentenced to one to 14 years, but after serving less than a year, was released under $15,000 bond on a writ from the State Supreme Court.

Civic organizations complained bitterly—said "one of the most dangerous criminals in America" had been turned lose "to murder, rob and extort." After six months of consideration, the Supreme Court remanded McLaughlin to a new trial, but prosecutors appeared in February—said they had insufficient evidence—asked, and obtained, a nolle prosse.

Bonds Meant Little to Him.

Bonds meant little to him. He jumped a $50,000 bond once in Chicago and one for $10,000 in New Jersey in 1927.

His brother tonight said he had just returned from Florida—a statement supported by paper found on the body, leading to its early identification as "P. E. Bradley" of Miami Beach, Fla.

Six bullet wounds were found in the body and bruises indicated the frequent gang practice of torturing victims before killing them.

MISTRIAL IN WIDOW'S SUIT TO BREAK S. J. GAVIN WILL

Jury Fails to Agree After Five Hours; Vote 7 to 5 to Uphold.

A mistrial was declared yesterday in the suit of Mrs. Nancy Martin Gavin, 5673 Cates avenue, to break the will of her husband, Stephen J. Gavin, lumber dealer, in Circuit Judge Brackman's court at Clayton, after a jury deliberated five and one-half hours without reaching a verdict.

The vote on five of the six ballots stood seven to five for upholding the will, but it was impossible to get the agreement of the nine men necessary for a decision, the only other ballot taken early in the deliberations standing six-six. Trial of the case took five days.

The estate of Gavin, president of the Stephen J. Gavin Lumber Co., who died Feb. 10, 1929, was inventoried at $22,000, which, according to the will, was to be divided into thirds, one-third going to his widow and two-thirds to be held in trust for their three daughters, Nancy Katherine, 8 years old; Mary Ellen, 6, and Julia Ann, 4.

Mrs. Gavin attempted to show in the suit that the estate had been worth $300,000 originally, but that Gavin had transferred stocks and other properties to his sisters, Miss Katherine and Miss Julia Gavin, which reduced it to the $22,000 value computed.

MEXICAN FLIES TO NEW YORK

Col. Fierro Plans Non-stop Flight to Mexico City.

By the Associated Press.

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., June 7.—Col. Roberto Fierro, Mexican aviator, landed at Curtiss-Wright airport here tonight on his flight from Montgomery, Ala. Low visibility forced him to the ground earlier at Barren Island in Jamaica Bay. His plane was not damaged and he took off shortly after for the airport here.

The aviator flew from San Antonio, Tex., yesterday to Montgomery, leaving the latter city today. Next week he plans to take off on a nonstop flight to Mexico City from Roosevelt Field.

Held Up in Auto; Robbed of $182.

Vincent Dobelmann, manager of a butcher shop in the Union Market, was robbed of $182 last night by three men, who, he reported, crowded his automobile to the curb on Broadway near Hempstead street.

Wykoff S

COAST STAR IS TIMED IN 9.4; U. S. C. WINS TITLE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Move over, Gallant Fox—and make room for Frank Wykoff, another champion, smiling 20-year-old youngster of the University of Southern California.

Traveling faster than any human being has galloped 100 yards before, Wykoff eclipsed the world record for the century to thrill a crowd of 12,000 today when he won the event in the national collegiate track and field championships on Stagg Field in :09.4.

Wykoff established his remarkable record without the use of starting blocks, wiping out the existing mark of .09.5, held by Eddie Tolan, the University of Michigan's great Negro sprinter. The youth from the Pacific Coast, with his boyish face and wavy blond hair, not only eclipsed the record, but also defeated George Simpson, the Buckeye bullet from Ohio State University, who, a year ago, raced to victory in :09.4, but whose record performance was rejected by the International Amateur Athletic Federation because he made it with starting blocks.

Helps His Team.

Wykoff's sensational victory was instrumental in helping Southern California carry off the team championship, making the Trojans track and field champions of the entire nation. The Trojans, previous winners of the Eastern intercollegiate and Pacific Coast titles, annexed 57 27-70 points, with Washington finishing second with 40, giving the Pacific Coast runner-up laurels, too. Iowa was third with 30 1-7, with Ohio State fourth, with 29 1-10, and Stanford fifth with 28. Forty-three teams broke into the scoring in one of the most spectacular meets ever held in the country.

Besides Wykoff's world record, another world mark was tied; six records for the meet were smashed and another meet record was equalled. Only six of the 15 records established in eight previous N. C. A. A. meets survived the day's assaults, and most of them just by bare fractions.

Wykoff's achievement in cracking the world mark for the century was a thriller. He was away winging first out of his holes, and led every foot of the race, with Simpson snapping at his heels after the first 20 yards. With a mighty drive at the tape, Wykoff's chest broke the white string a full 18 inches ahead of Simpson. The Buckeye Flyer, defeated for the first time outdoors this year, made one of the worst starts of his career and was last of the eight sprinters off his mark. He overhauled them all except Wykoff, who raced on to victory with the speed of a frightened deer. Simpson, disappointed in defeat, offered no alibis and blamed only himself for what he regarded as an inexcusably poor start.

Tolan Is Fourth.

Wykoff's victory resulted in a surprising defeat of Tolan, the world record-holder. Tolan finished fourth, about four inches back of a comparative "unknown," Ed Topping of Loyola University, New Orleans. The two Texas streaks, Claude Bracy of Rice Institute and Cy Leland of Texas Christian, finished fifth and sixth, respectively.

As Wykoff did not use starting blocks, officials of the meet said there was little doubt that his performance would be accepted internationally as a world record, since he had no wind advantage. When the sprinters bounded off their mark there was hardly a breeze stirring in the stadium, and the track, rain-soaked for 12 hours previously, had dried out amazingly and was springy and fast.

The spectators had hardly settle

Ott Hits Two Homers, Good for Six Scores, As Cards Lose, 9-7

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Bill Hallahan had two bad innings this afternoon and in each of the frames Melvin Ott hit a homer with two men on bases and that in a nutshell is the story of how the Cardinals lost to the Giants for their fourth straight defeat and their eleventh in their last 12 games. The score was 9 to 7 and Ott, driving in six of the tallies, was the villain.

Gabby Street's crippled team fought valiantly and was leading 7 to 4, after their turn at bat in the seventh inning. It appeared that what the Redbirds needed was a wet track. It was raining for half an hour before the contest started and it drizzled for six frames. Baseballs hit to the outfield splashed spray into the air as they bounced. But the Cardinals didn't seem to be bothered by the handicap.

A Flood of New York Scores.

In the seventh inning, however, the drizzle stopped suddenly and the tide of fortune turned as quickly and in a jiffy the Giants were ahead.

Manager Street made another shift in his infield in the hope of bolstering his defense, and the combination showed some improvement. Sparky Adams, because he is a better fielder than Farrell, went to short and Farrell shifted to second base, with High staying at third.

Clarence Mitchell, the veteran spit-ball pitcher recently traded to New York for Ralph Judd, started on the hill for the Giants and the Cards nicked him for two runs in the first inning and might have had more, but a runner was thrown out at the plate to end the frame.

With one out, High walked and Mitchell, bothered by the wet ball, issued another pass to Douthit. Bottomley singled to score High and after Blades had flied out, Peel singled to send Douthit home. Jimmy Wilson followed with a single to right, but Bottomley skidded in a puddle of water near third base and Ott's throw to Bob O'Farrell nailed Sunny Jim.

Ott the Villain.

The Giants quickly overcame the lead and went out in front in their half. Critz and Roettger walked, Terry struck out and after Lindstrom singled to score Critz, Ott hit his first homer into the upper deck of the right field seats, scoring behind Roettger and Lindstrom.

After O'Farrell flied out, Jackson dropped a pop-fly triple in right, but Hallahan disposed of Allen to end the inning and then pitched shutout ball until the seventh.

Meanwhile, the Red Birds had taken the lead. Adams walked to start the fifth, High singled to right and Douthit lined a homer into the right field seats scoring behind Adams and High. Ray Blades' double and Wilson's single added the fourth run of the inning.

Douthit led off in the seventh

By W. J. McGoogan.

Golf tournament experience triumphed over dogged determination yesterday and Elliott Whitbread, Missouri amateur champion, representing the North Hills Country Club, added the St. Louis district championship to his State title by defeating Sid Le Gear, Sunset Hill Country Club, 5 and 4, in the final round of the fifteenth annual tournament at Algonquin Golf Club.

Whitbread went into the match a heavy favorite due to his known golfing ability and the experience he has gained through playing in numerous tournaments, while Le Gear, who has been playing the game for only seven years, was conceded only an outside chance to win. But Le Gear dogged Whitbread's footsteps throughout the morning round and finished the first 18 holes all square, turning in a card of 77 to Whitbread's 76.

Le Gear Loses Four in Row.

In the afternoon, however, the size of the gallery had almost tripled and Le Gear seemed extremely nervous at the start. He lost four holes in succession, due largely to the failure of his putter, and although he rallied gamely and made up two holes of the handicap, he didn't keep it up for long and when Whitbread turned the first nine holes in the afternoon 4 up, the gallery knew it was only a question of how long Le Gear could stave off defeat.

Le Gear went out in 42 in the afternoon, while Whitbread required 38 strokes, but on the incoming nine Whitbread steadied, made par on five holes in a row and ended the match on the fourteenth green.

Whitbread, one of the longest hitters in the district, outdrove Le Gear throughout the day but the Sunset Hill player was watchful to take advantage of any break which Elliott might make. Although these slips of the new champion were few, they cost him a hole almost every time.

Whitbread Has Birdie on No. 10.

Neither of the players played spectacular golf. Birdies were scarce and although each of them on occasions made brilliant shots, they both appeared content to play it safe.

Once Whitbread was in the lead he took few chances and it was on one of these few occasions that he turned in the best shot of the day. That was on No. 10 in the morning round. Both of their drives had rolled up the bank into No. 14 fairway. Le Gear played it safe, chipping back into the proper fairway, but Whitbread risked a shot, pulled a spoon from his bag and sent a long high ball through the trees, over the lake and to the edge of the green. This shot gave him a birdie four, the first hole that either had played under par, and, as it turned out, it was the last.

As they were playing the tenth hole in the afternoon, rain began to fall and it increased in volume until the 14th hole had been completed, dispersing all but the most hardy of the gallery and drenching those who stayed to the finish.

Whitbread won No. 1 in the Nellie Custis Near Record for Track in Winning at Fairmount

By Dent McSkimming.

The popular colors of the Audley Farm stable were prominent at Fairmount yesterday afternoon when Nellie Custis, approaching the track record, finished two and one-half lengths in front of Star O'Morn in winning the Statler trophy. The filly ran the mile and 70 yards in one minute, 42 4-5 seconds, which is within three-fifths of a second of Anaconda's record.

Uncertain weather, an uncomfortably chilly wind as well as the suspension of the free list all contributed to hold the crowd down to about 7000.

Little Apprentice Jockey Willie Kern won the race with Nellie Custis in the first furlong, when he applied the whip with such vigor at the start that he forced the filly to outsprint Beau Wrack for the lead at the clubhouse turn. Nellie Custis was never headed thereafter, and Beau Wrack's fruitless effort to catch her cost him so much that he had nothing left in the stretch. Star O' Morn came up to finish second and War Instigator was third, neither close to the winner. Cartago and Good and Hot were the only other starters and they were never in a contending position.

Cash Play Captures First.

The excitement started before the rise of the barrier in the first when two untamed horses, Howard Lee and Rita M, refused to be led into the stalls. Howard Lee unseated Jockey Cimerak and steadfastly refused to obey the assistant starters. Finally, when Buddy Wingfield got them away Cash Play popped to the top, pursued by Post Mistress. At the half mile, ground Blue Blood slipped past Post Mistress and threatened the leader but in the stretch, Angel Bright came with a rush as Blue Blood tired and took second place.

Mortana was the winner of the second event. Piezali and Black Alice attempted to dispute the issue in the early running but Root got Mortana out in front at the half-mile pole. Webster cut off at this point, was taken up and sent around on the outside by Hanford. In spite of this loss of ground he came on gamely to outlast Kind Words for second place. It was a forceful race.

Shasta Broom Repeats.

Shasta Broom is making a real bid for the 2-year-old championship of the meeting. In winning his second straight race he decisively defeated Master Halligan, Red Chili, Laura Negley, Battle Sweep and three others. It appears now that nothing stands between him and the mythical championship but Sun B.

Master Halligan might have been the winner yesterday had Hanford been able to get the rail position. As it was Laura Negley with fine early speed grabbed the inside position and then, when Master Halligan attempted to pass her on the outside, she went far wide at the stretch turn, ruining Master Halligan's chance of winning and leaving Shasta Broom, with Kern up, easy sailing on the rail, a much shorter journey. Battle Sweep, coming up from Churchill Downs where he turned in three good races, was expected to prove a factor, but he weakened after running in the third hole for about a quarter mile.

Jem Wins With 118 Pounds Up.

George Ogle thought so much of his horse, Jem that he accepted the impost of 118 pounds as specified under the conditions, declined to put up an apprentice, which would have taken five pounds off and found his judgment fully justified in the running of the fourth race. Birdassa set a fast early pace, but the real threat developed in Classy, which took the lead on the far turn. Dent Smith brought Jem up with a rush in the last quarter, wore down Classy in a stretch duel and then lasted to beat Mary Dale. The mare was off slowly but she was running over horses in the stretch. Jem's time for the mile and 70 yards indicates he deserved his victory.

Robina Seth getting through the rail at the head of the stretch, pulled away from Judas and Joe Engel to win the sixth race. Judas set the early pace and hung on well after losing ground by swinging wide at the stretch turn.

ROBINS BREAK CUBS' WINNING STREAK OF NINE

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, June 7.—The Robins stopped Chicago's march through the National League today after nine straight victories by winning today's wild encounter, 12 to 9. Watson Clark, fourth Brooklyn pitcher, won his own game with a home run in the seventh inning with two on base.

Rain, which delayed the start and continued throughout, contributed to the wildness of the pitchers. Chicago scored five runs in the first and third innings on only two hits, one of the Hack Wilson's eighteenth home run of the year. The Robins came back with thhree runs in the third and drove Guy Bush from the box with five more in the fourth, walks contributing heavily to the scoring.

Woody English's second homer of the game and one by Beck put Chicago in the lead in the sixth and set the stage for Clark's homer.

It was Brooklyn's first victory over the Cubs this year and evened the series here, putting the Robins back two full games ahead of Chicago.

English Doubles Team Wins Over Australian Pair

By the Associated Press.

EASTBOURNE, England, June 7.—England defeated Australia in the doubles match of their third round Davis Cup tie today, J. C. Gregory and I. G. Collins downing Jack Crawford and Harry Hopman, 8—6, 10—8, 6—2.

The match score now stands at 3—1, Australia leading by virtue of having taken the two opening singles yesterday.

SANDE PILOTS DERBY VICTOR TO NEW MARK FOR CLASSIC

Sande Has Earned $20,000 in Riding "Fox" in His Races

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 7.

EARLE SANDE, generally regarded as America's leading jockey, has earned $20,000 in riding gallant Fox in four races this season. Sande has been working on a percentage basis and today received 10 per cent of the $66,000 purse.

After the race Sande, with his face patched, said: "My horse was so full of run I went to the front and was glad to do so, as I avoided the gritty flying mud opening the cuts under my eyes. My horse needed no urging, only guiding. He was in hand all the way."

Owner William Woodward declared: "He's a good horse and stood the test."

By the Associated Press.

BELMONT PARK, N. Y., June 7.—Gallant Fox, with the bruised and bandaged Earl Sande in the saddle, answered the challenge to their greatness today by scoring a smashing triumph in the rich Belmont Stakes and capturing the 3-year-old championship of the American turf beyond the palest shadow of a doubt.

This was the big test for William Woodward's big bay son of Sir Gallahad III and Gallant Fox met it by running the legs off Harry Payne Whitney's famous Whichone, the favorite, in a finish that was startlingly decisive in every respect. Made second choice to Whichone in spite of Woodward combination's great record, the Fox and Sande outsmarted and outran the start of the Whitney stable to win by four good lengths in a common gallop.

Only four horses ran in the rain that spoiled an otherwise colorful scene, but the Fox galloped through it as comfortably as he did in the Kentucky Derby a few weeks ago.

James Butler's Questionnaire was third, eight lengths back of the Fox, and W. J. Salmon's Swinfield fourth, 13 lengths behind the winner.

50,000 Witness Classic.

A crowd of nearly 50,000 spectators alternately drenched, thrilled and surprised by the sequence of unexpected events, saw Sande ride the Fox to the colt's fourth successive triumph as a 3-year-old, completing a triple conquest of the three big classics—Preakness, Kentucky Derby and Belmont. In previous turf history only one other thoroughbred, Sir Barton, in 1919, has registered this great achievement.

Today the Fox's victory was the most impressive of any the colt has scored this year, for there was little or no question of the result after the quartet of horses swung into the back stretch. There, the Fox successively beat off the challenges of Questionnaire and Swinfield. Then had a reserve speed to run away from Whichone as the Whitney colt made its one and only move on the far turn as they moved into the home stretch.

"It was easy and all I had to do was let the Fox run," said Sande, afterward, smiling through the bruises and bandages he wore as Gallant Fox in great form, broke fast, was sent right to the lead, displayed good speed and, perfectly ridden, drew away in the stretch to win nicely in hand. Whichone broke slow, trailed field to the far turn where he moved up, was put under a drive and closed ground, but was not good enough. Questionnaire was kept close to the early pace, but weakened fast in the last quarter mile. Swinfield was kept close to pace for a mile, then dropped back beaten.

SEVEN RUNS IN FIRST INNING HELP YANKEES DEFEAT BROWNS, 12 TO 5

STEWART FAILS TO GET A MAN OUT IN THE OPENING FRAME; RUTH AND GEHRIG HIT HOMERS

By James M. Gould.

One ball game doesn't make a successful season any more than one swallow makes a successful summer or an enjoyable party. But, if the Yankees behave in the future as they did in the opener against the Browns yesterday, the New York delegation may have something to say about the 1930 disposition of the American League pennant. It wasn't so much that they defeated the Browns by a 12-5 score. That is not especially hard to do these days—but it was the pitching, punch and defense they showed in doing it.

They had in Ed Wells, a no-hit southpaw pitcher, except in two innings; they produced their 12 runs on 18 hits of assorted sizes, which included two home runs, Ruth's nineteenth and Gehrig's twelfth of the season—a triple and four doubles; their defense was perfect. They were alert and allve in contrast to the drabness of Killefer's men.

Stewart Routed in First.

Stewart opened for the Browns and that's about all he did. Five men faced him and the five got on. Before he retired a man he retired himself and Blaeholder took up the burden. And, a burden it was. Before the first inning was over, the Yankees had seven runs, or two more than the Browns managed in nine frames.

Stewart began by passing Combs and Lary, and Ruth hit his nineteenth homer. Lazzeri and Gehrig singled and Stewart passed out. Byrd greeted Blaeholder with a single to score Lazzeri, and Dickey's double sent Gehrig and Byrd across. Chapman popped and Wells rolled out, but Kress missed Combs' grounder and Dickey scored the seventh New York run. In the second, with one out and no one on, Lou Gehrig contributed his homer to the gayety of the afternoon.

Browns Get a Man on in Fifth.

Only one man did the Browns get on in the first five innings. That was Manush, who, with two out in the fourth, drew a pass. After the Yankee had slapped Blaeholder for four hits which, with a pass and a double steal, gave them four more runs in the first of the sixth, the Browns suddenly came to life in their half and, getting their first hits of the game, made four of them in the inning and scored four runs.

While Blaeholder was batted intermittently in the last three innings, the Yanks failed to add to their total. The Browns, after a hitless seventh, scored their fifth and final run in the eighth on a pass to Blue and a double by Manush.

The five Brownies entitled to some sort of medal, or something, for hitting safely were Blue, Manush, Gullic, Ferrell and Blaeholder.

Rule Costs Yanks Two Runs.

The Yankee total might well have been 14 but for a "rule" play in the seventh. With Ruth on third and Lazzeri on second, Gehrig shot a clean hit to center. On its way out, the ball brushed the clothing of Field Umpire "Brick" Owens so Ruth and Lazzeri, who had crossed the plate, were called back, the rule being that no base-runner may advance on a hit which touches an umpire.

Frankly, the Browns looked about as terrible as a futuristic painter's conception of a sick pomegranate calling weakly to its mate. The Browns have played some good baseball since they returned home but yesterday decidedly was not one of their good days.

Either Dick Coffman or Sam Gray will face the "Young Men of Manhattan" today. Pipgras is scheduled to work for New York.

The announcer was booed down when, during the sixth inning, he attempted to announce the sale of tickets for today's game. It was evident the crowd didn't think much of the Saturday affair as an advertisement.

About 7500 saw the game.

INVESTIGATION INTO WEST POINT SPORTS HAS BEEN COMPLETED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Secretary of War Hurley is expected to have within the next week the report of Major-General Hugh A. Drum, Inspector-General of the Army, covering the General's investigation of athletics at West Point.

The investigation was conducted with the utmost secrecy and extreme reticence is being maintained by War Department officials. Both regarding the inquiry and the preparation of the report.

In the absence of the Secretary, officers declined to disclose who had ordered the investigation or to confirm or deny speculation that the inquiry had been made at the request of academy authorities themselves after various charges had been voiced in the House of Representatives against the conduct of athletics at West Point.

Brownie Notes

In batting practice, Ruth hit more balls into and over the stands than the Browns have succeeded in doing all year. As a matter of fact, the only homer to the credit of the Browns was made by Manush, oh a long time ago.

Stewart, known for his excellent control, started queerly for him by walking both Combs and Lary. Ruth then picked this soft spot for his nineteenth 1930 homer, a real line-drive into the seats in far right-center. Stewart was out before any of the Yanks were and Blaeholder took up the thankless task.

The first seven Yanks up got on. Chapman, hitting in eighth place, was the first "out." He popped to Blue and the crowd raised a faint rasberry chee.

Gehrig Makes Great Catch.

Gehrig made one of the best running catches of the season when, in the second, he stuck his gloved hand in the Yankee dugout and held to Kress' foul fly.

Hale guessed right in the third when Wells topped down the left-field line. Like old Milton Stock, Sammy decided to "leave 'er roll" and the ball finaliy went foul.

When Ruth rolled to Melillo in the third, he ran half way to first and then dashed for left field, two being out at the time. Conceding the putt as it were.

After hitting a single and a homer his first two times up, Gehrig fanned in the fourth. His "form" and "follow through" were as good when he fanned as when he connected.

Those who had the idea that Blaeholder couldn't start a double play were confounded in the fourth when George did just that on Byrd's slap-back.

After retiring 11 Browns in a row, Wells issued a pass to Ma-

GALLANT FOX BEATS WHICHONE BY FOUR LENGTHS IN BELMONT

the result of an auto accident two days ago.

New Race Record.

In spite of the somewhat heavy going in the rain, the Fox established a new record for the Belmont Stakes by running the mile and a half in 2 minutes, 31 3-5 seconds. This surpassed the time of 2:32 2-5, set by Crusader in 1926, when the distance was increased and equaled the following year by Chance-Shot. The time was short of Man O'War's track record of 2:28 1-5 for the mile and a half.

To make it all the more impressive, the Fox's victory added $66,060 to his owner's winnings and shot his total beyond the $200,000 mark as a threat to the big money winners of the turf for all time. In four races this spring alone, Gallant Fox has won $183,840 and the colt's exact total is $203,730, with his small earnings as a 2-year-old added.

The outcome of today's race was a distinct shock to the "wise money" which had rated the Fox somewhat lightly in spite of his great record and established Whichone the odds on favorite, a 3 to 5, with Fox quoted at 8 to 5.

The Woodward colt acted as if insulted by these circumstances for he was impatient to be off, bolting from the barrier and galloping an eighth of a mile down the track before Sande was able to turn him. They were off a moment later and the Fox was first to the rail, running at the flank of Swinfield. Questionnaire was third and Whichone fourth and they held these positions in the run around the first turn.

Beats Off Challengers.

Galloping into the back stretch, Sande and the Fox were in full command. Questionnaire moved up to second place in the long run that saw the Fox experience no difficulty keeping the lead. Three or four times it seemed that Jockey A. Robertson, on Questionnaire, sought to challenge the leader, but the Fox was not pressed to repulse these challenges.

The crowd, expecting a move from Whichone, as the Whitney horse continued to run a disappointing fourth, finally let out a roar as the favorite responded to Jockey Sunny Workman's urging on the back turn. As the small field rounded into the home stretch, Whichone moved easily into second place and it looked like a real race. The Whitney colt was then a length and a half back of the Fox but the former's challenge was short lived. The Fox bounded away from the favorite, settling the outcome in a few strides and galloping past the grandstand in a magnificent finish to win easily.

Sande and the Fox were still supreme and the crowd, whatever its emotions as to the pay-off, gave the winning combination a tremendous ovation as they came back to the judges' stand. It was the first setback of the year for Whichone, champion as a 2-year-old.

Equipoise Gains Victory.

Equipoise, Harry Payne Whitney's great 2-year-old carried off honors in the National Stallion Stakes, at five furlongs, the secondary feature of the program.

An odds on favorite in the juvenile classic, Equipoise raced through the somewhat heavy going to beat W. R. Coe's Polydorus by six good lengths, with Col. E. R. Bradley's Baba Kenny third, three lengths further back. Marshall Field's Aknaton was fourth in a field of eight.

Equipoise, well ridden by F. Hopkins, lead from start to finish of the dash of five furlongs down the Widener course, covering the distance in the good time of :59 3-5s.

back in their seats to watch the first event of the program, when a world record was tied. Stephen Anderson of Washington, equalled the world mark when he ran the 120-yard high hurdles in :14.4 to defeat Lee Sentman, the hurdling wizard of Illinois, heretofore, undefeated this year.

Another revenger was Simpson. The Buckeye star, beaten in the century, left no doubt as to his superiority in the 220-yard dash. He won by at least five yards in :20.7, one tenth of a second slower than the world record, but a tenth faster than the former N. C. A. A. record which he established a year ago. Cy Leland of Texas Christian was second, while Tolan, Farmer of North Carolina, and East and Root of Chicago, crossed the line in that order in a blanket finish.

In addition to Simpson's performance in the furling, new meet records were established in the 880-yard run, two-mile, pole vault, discus throw and shot-put.

THE SUMMARIES

100-YARD DASH—Won by Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California; second, George Simpson, Ohio State University; third, Edwin Topping, Loyola University (New Orleans); fourth, Eddie Tolan, Michigan; fifth, Claude Bracey, Rice Institute; sixth, Cy Leland, Texas Christian University. Time, :09.4 (beats world record of :09.5 by Eddie Tolan of Michigan in 1929).

220-YARD DASH—George Simpson, Ohio State University; first; Cy Leland, Texas Christian University, second; Eddie Tolan, Michigan, third; C. M. Farmer, North Carolina, fourth; Allen East, Chicago, fifth; Norman Root, Chicago, sixth. Time—20.7s. (New N. C. A. A. record. Former record 20.8 by Simpson, in 1929).

440-YARD DASH—Reginald Bowen, Pittsburg, first; Victor Williams, Southern California, second; Russell Walter, Northwestern, third; A. S. Wilson, Notre Dame, fourth; Carl Hartley, University of Washington, fifth; Norman Locur, Utah, sixth. Time—48s.

880-YARD RUN—Won by Orval Martin, Purdue; second, Dale Letts, Chicago; third, B. Little, Notre Dame; fourth, Ralph Wolf, Northwestern; fifth, William McGeagh, Southern California; sixth, R. Swarts, Missouri. Time, 1:54.1 (new N. C. A. A. record; former record, 1:54.2, by John Sittig of Illinois in 1927).

MRS. CLARKE IS WOMEN'S T-M GOLF CHAMPION

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., June 7.—Mrs. Hulbert S. Clarke of Oklahoma City won the 1930 championship of the Women's trans-Mississippi Golf Association here today, defeating Mrs. Dorothy Klotz Pardue of Sioux City, Ia., 6 and 5, in the 36-hole final match at the Tulsa Country Club.

Playing in unwavering style, steadily and unbeatably for 31 holes, the Oklahoman ascended to the throne vacated by Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, who chose to play in Europe rather than defend her title.

Mrs. Clarke, twice holder of the Oklahoma women's title, and for seven years among the State's best feminine golfers, tonight had her first major tournament trophy.

Mrs. Clarke usually was bested off the tee, but only by a few yards, and then she paid for any deficiency in that department with brilliant, well-controlled iron play. This unerring mastery of the irons gave Mrs. Clarke six holes out of the seven short, par-3 holes played.

The Oklahoma City player had a five-up lead over her rival when they went to lunch, Mrs. Clarke carding an 88 to Mrs. Purdue's 92 for the 18 holes.

Mrs. Clarke won an even dozen holes, just twice the number claimed by the Iowan. Mrs. Pardue won three of these on the afternoon round in a desperate effort to stage a comeback as she had done twice during the tournament, but the feel of her putter was not there.

WHITE SOX KNOCK GROVE OUT OF BOX, TRIM MACKS, 6 TO 5

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The White Sox defeated Philadelphia here today, 6 to 5, when they knocked Bob Grove out of the box and hit Rommell freely in the early innings.

Kerr, Jolley and Reynolds were the heavy Sox hit contributors, the trio collecting eight blows. After Thomas and McKain failed to hold the A's Dutch Henry took the mound and pitched superbly.

CARDINALS LOSE TO GIANTS, 9-7; OTT HITS 2 HOMERS with a bounder that caromed off Pruett's glove and reached second on the pitcher's high throw. An infield out moved Douthit to third and he scored on Blades' single to left.

Then came another Giant uprising. Marshall batted for Pruett, singled to center and took second on Douthit's fumble. Critz took a called third strike, but Roettger singled to score Marshall and Terry singled to send Roettger to third.

Lindstrom punched a single to right, scoring Roettger and then Ott poled his second homer into the lower deck of the right field stand, the ball passing not more than a foot inside the pole marking fair territory.

Pruett was credited with the victory and the defeat was charged to Hallahan. Pruett went to the hill in the seventh inning, McGraw deciding that a rainy day and a spitball thrower made a bad combination.

Redbird Notes.

Jess Haines will pitch against the Giants tomorrow in the third game of the series, with Genewich or Walker due for McGraw's team.

George Watkins batted for Hallahan in the eighth inning and stayed in the game at second base, Fisher having batted for Farrell. George had one chance, a grounder from Allen, and Umpire McGrew guessed that Allen beat the throw.

Flint Rhem, who rejoined the Cards in Philadelphia after his tonsil operation in St. Louis, hurled the eighth inning against the Giants and allowed two singles, one being an infield hit.

MISSOURI GOLF CHAMPION WINS DISTRICT TITLE

ELLIOTT WHITBREAD.

WHITBREAD WINS DISTRICT TITLE BY DEFEATING LEGEAR

morning with a par 4 to Le Gear's 5, while they halved the second in par 5's, then Elliott went 2 up at No. 3 with a par 3 to Le Gear's 4. Whitbread put his first out of bounds at No. 4 and Le Gear won his first hole with par 4, but lost No. 5 and was two down again. They halved the remaining holes on the outgoing nine and Whitbread made the turn 2 up.

Le Gear Makes a Spirt.

Coming home, Whitbread won the tenth with his birdie four and they halved the eleventh with fours. Then Le Gear came back to win three successive holes and halve the match when Whitbread's putter soured on him. He three-putted each of the three greens.

No. 15 was halved in pars and Whitbread went one up again by winning the sixteenth with a par 5 to Le Gear's 6, when Sid's putt for a par rimmed the cup. They halved the seventeenth with 3-5 and on No. 18, Whitbread hooked his long second shot into a flower bed to the left of No. 18 green. He had to pull out and take a penalty stroke and his try for the green went far over. He finally was on in five and when Le Gear knocked in his par five the round was squared.

Champion Forges Ahead.

Le Gear's putter failed him on the first hole in the afternoon and he three-putted to go one down. He did the same thing on the next hole, missing a puts of less than two feet for his par and took a 5 after he had played two difficult shots out of bad lies to reach the green in three.

They were both on the third green with their tee shots and their approach putts were close. Le Gear, however, missed his tiny one and was three down. Sid three-putted No. 4 and was four down after Whitbread got par 4.

Le Gear got his first break of the afternoon round when Whitbread barely missed his putt for a par 4 on the fifth green and his lead was reduced to three up on the sixth hole when Le Gear played it nicely in par, while Whitbread took 5 due to the fact that his second shot went far over the green.

Four Up After 27 Holes.

Whitbread also missed his second shot on No. 7 and Le Gear got on with his. Elliott chipped back but his ball rimmed the cup for his par 4 and he was only 2 up when Le Gear sank his putt. However, Le Gear's tee shot on No. 8 was short and to the left, while Whitbread was dead with his second for a par 3 and went 3 up again when Le Gear took 4.

Le Gear's second was to the right of No. 9 green and he chipped up but left himself a long putt for a 4, which he missed while Whitbread made his to turn 4 up.

They halved the tenth in par fives during a shower, and on No. 11 Le Gear went 5 down when his tee shot landed in a trap to the left of the green while Whitbread on, putted dead for his three. They halved the 12th in par 4 and Whitbread's tee shot was on the green at No. 13, while Le Gear was in a ditch to the right. He chipped back far past the hole, but when he missed his putt for a 3 he left Whitbread a dead stymie and they had to play No. 14, which was halved in par fours when Le Gear's bid for a birdie rimmed the cup.

Tourney Notes

The match started under cloudy skies, but the weather was comfortably cool for the players and spectators. There were only about 100 on hand at the beginning, but the gallery gradually grew until there were nearly 200 clustered about the eighteenth green when the morning round was completed.

Le Gear made a wonderful shot out of a trap at No. 2. He placed his second shot in the sand, but took his niblick, lifted the ball out on the green to a point about six feet to the left of the hole and got his par 5.

Whitbread sent a long shot out of bounds at the 370-yard fourth hole, but his second attempt wound up about 10 yards off the green. There was a wind with the players on this hole and Le Gear's second rolled past the cup and up a slope, barely stopping on the putting surface. Whitbread chipped close and Le Gear knew he had to get down in two putts for a win. His first attempt was short and left him a four-foot downhill putt.

About the time he was ready to hit the ball a freight train came along and Sid waited until it was out of sight. The betting at green side was 10 to 1 against his making the putt, but Le Gear fooled everybody and holed it out.

Wind Affects Drives.

The wind cutting across No. 5 fairway blew Le Gear's ball almost out of bounds to the right and he had to play a chip shot second back into the fairway, but the ball rolled so far that it stopped just short of the ditch and to the right, under a tree. Whitbread used a No. 1 iron on the hole,

UHLE GIVES ONLY 3 HITS AS TIGERS BEAT BOSTON RED SOX, 6-0

DETROIT, June 7.—The Detroit Tigers scored their first shutout victory of the season here today, defeating the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 0. George Uhle held the visitors to three safe blows, struck out four batters and yielded no walks.

His teammates accumulated a total of nine hits off Russell, two of them homers by Gehringer and Alexander. Alexander's circuit blow came in the fifth inning with two on base, accounting for all but one of the runs scored in the Tigers' big inning. Gehringer's came in the seventh with no one on base.

NO "MILLION-DOLLAR GATE" LIKELY FOR THE SHARKEY-SCHMELING FIGHT

FANS NOT "HOT" ABOUT FIRST TITLE BOUT SCHEDULED SINCE TUNNEY RETIRED AS CHAMPION

Facts About Thursday's Title Fight

PRINCIPALS—Max Schmeling of Germany and Jack Sharkey of Boston.

NUMBER OF ROUNDS—Limited to 15 to a decision.

REFEREE—To be named at ringside; will work with judges in giving a decision, majority vote to decide winner.

BATTLEGROUND—Yankee Stadium, seating capacity about 100,000.

TITLE AT STAKE—World heavyweight championship announcement of National Boxing Association and New York Commission.

SEAT PRICES—From $5 to $25, with war tax.

FIGHTERS' SHARES—27 1-2 per cent of the gate receipts.

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS—Between $400,000 and $750,000, according to the viewpoint.

FAVORITE—Jack Sharkey, at "paper" odds of 7 to 5.

LAST FIGHTS OF PRINCIPALS—Sharkey—Defeated Phil Scott of England last February in Miami after claim of foul was made against Sharkey; Schmeling — Defeated Paulino Uzcudun, almost one year ago in New York.

By John E. Wray
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Two huge surprises can happen here at Yankee Stadium, next Thursday night. One—which would stagger the promoters with joy—would occur if the outpouring of fans totaled the now almost fabled "million-dollar gate." The other which would equally astound the outpouring of customers—involves the possibility that the two principals will maltreat one another with great gusto, concluding with one of the boys pan-caking to the resin for the evening.

To judge from views expressed by critics here, however, no such surprises are imminent. The chance of a great outpouring of fans being treated to a rip-snorting fight are considered extremely low.

The Event Is Not "Hot."

Lack of spending money, popular interest and outstanding fighting merit have combined to give the affair the appearance of a "dog." Mr. J. Cash Customer a mean idea of the advisability of paying heavy dough to see this show.

The facts that neither fighter is a champion and that the crown at stake is merely one bestowed upon the winner as upon the best of a rather drab lot, have kept the fans from becoming feverish about the match. Except in Sharkey's town of Boston, neither fighter has been able to make the crowds stand up and cheer.

The new champion, when named, will not command any great respect. He will be just by way of filling a title vacancy that has existed for two years. As all the Floradora fans might view it: "We've got to have a champion, so it might as well be you."

Publicity has been wrung from unenthusiastic scribes. The Tex Richard ballyhoo organization is conspicuously silent. The atmosphere of a great fight is lacking—and so the acclaim that greets a new champion, ordinarily, may be lacking next Thursday night.

Bout a Charity Enterprise.

The bout is a charity promotion, the profits being consecrated to the Milk Fund. Probably there will be a good bit after expenses are paid, left over for the ladies in whose interest Damon Runyon and his fellow working associates have toiled. The percentage factor assures the fund some profit. And if the unexpected big gate materializes there will be a large slice, usually gobbled by the promoters, dedicated to charity.

The fight itself may turn out differently than anticipated, because the title is being dangled before the potential winners. That in itself is a million dollar prize to the man who wins it—and sure-ly that is enough to make even a worn rare up and do a tap dance.

Still, on one occasion we know of the lure of a title failed to stimulate two widely known fighters, one of them being this same Jack Sharkey.

Jack and Stribling fought with much the same objective in view, at Miami, and boy they seldom put up worse fights than that one. Sharkey saved his face by getting a hairline verdict.

However, everything seems to favor the probability that the rivals will not stiffen up from nervousness or excessive caution as at Miami, but will go out and throw gloves.

Willingness an Asset.

The shortest way to the fight fan's heart is to show willingness. That is the thing that always made Dempsey popular. Dempsey wanted to "go to it" and settle the dispute by trading fists, not by glove grabbing. And the fighter who follows Jack's plan can't fail to get the glad hand. Dempsey got it, even as a loser; where Tunney, the backaway fighter, never warmed the heart cockles of a solitary fight fan in winning the title. The gang has been cold to him despite his great work against Dempsey.

The "German Jack Dempsey" can shoot out his way to fame if he will cease trying to look like Dempsey and try to fight. Jack Sharkey is a pretty good battler when he lets go of himself. Maxey can hit harder, but perhaps doesn't know as much as Jack. And so between them, if they manifest a willing spirit there will be plenty of action.

The guessing might as well start now, as to the winner. They are both in shape for the fight even now and it can be said confidently that Schmeling will be a bit better than he was against Paulino, even though they haven't unblanketed him for a single fight in a year. He has had plenty of private practice and should not let Sharkey make "a sucker" of him with a left hand.

It really seems, on records alone, that Schmeling is the better man; for Sharkey's showing against good men is sadly in-an-out—largely out. There is a lack of convincing results in his record that indicate he is not a "finisher," although he stopped the over-rated Tommy Loughran in three rounds a few months ago.

Risko, a man who whipped Sharkey, was stopped by Schmeling. Another tough boy that Sharkey evaded, Paulino, was so badly beaten by Schmeling that he could not fight for six months.

On these fights Schmeling really appears to have a good chance to whip the Boston Lithuanian.

Sharkey's Record Has High Lights.

On the other hand, there are some high lights in Sharkey's career that indicate victory for him. George Godfrey, supposed to be a real tough nut to crack, was outpointed by Sharkey. Harry Wills, then considered the greatest championship menace to Dempsey's supremacy, was stopped by Sharkey. Jack also came through the eliminations of 1926 with convincing demonstrations of power over Jimmy Maloney, Mike McTigue, etc.

And to cap the climax, he gave Dempsey a terrific beating for five rounds—in fact, he was ahead on points at the time Jack knocked him out.

Sharkey undoubtedly will enter the ring the popular choice. Most of the experts are naming him victor and as good an observer as Benny Leonard thinks Sharkey will left-hand Schmeling into the discard.

Your guess is as good as the next.

MAX SCHMELING. JACK SHARKEY.

Sharkey Has No Set Plan of Attack; Schmeling Banks on Help From Seconds

By Jack Sharkey
As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 7.—As far as physical condition goes, I could step into the ring and battle Max Schmeling tonight. For I am ready for my 15-round world heavyweight championship battle with the German Dempsey at New York City's Yankee Stadium next Thursday night.

Five weeks of the training grind are behind me. I have worked hard and am prepared for the coming test.

From now until I knock off training after my workout next Tuesday I shall devote most of my time to boxing. I shall continue my road work mornings, but shall take things easier than I have been doing.

Plenty of boxing during the next few days should perfect my judgment of distance and send me into the ring against Max at my best.

Actual boxing against first-class sparring partners is the most important part of the training routine. One is able to punch the bag for a dozen rounds without tiring. Such is not the case when one boxes five or six brisk rounds with sturdy opponents.

Praises Sparring Mates

I HAVE been fortunate in having the services of James J. Braddock, one of the most promising young boxers in the country; Johnny Grosso, Paul Cavalier and King Solomon. These men have whipped me into condition and I feel that I shall be at the peak of my form when I step into the ring next Thursday night.

I shall not make the mistake of underrating Schmeling. I consider him one of the greatest heavyweights to come to the front during the past 10 years. He is young, strong, a good ring general and a heavy hitter.

I prefer battling a first-class ringman like Max to clashing with a second rater. The stars of the heavyweight group bring the best of my fighting quality to the front. If you study my record, you will find that I have always done my best work in the so-called big tests.

When one starts training, the date of the bout seems very far away. Now that the title skirmish is only just around the corner it does not seem long since I began to get into condition for the German Dempsey.

Naturally I am eager to get into the ring. Now that I am in good condition, I don't like to wait even for a few days before letting my real punches fly. The problem now is to keep that fighting edge.

No Set Program

I HAVE been asked if I have any particular line of battle for my tussle with Schmeling. I can truthfully say I have not any set program as to how I shall battle the German.

It is six years since I started boxing as a professional. Experience has shown me that it is unwise to have any definite battle plan. One must box in a way to offset what the other fellow is doing.

During my training bouts, I have practiced every possible punch. Naturally I have doped out Schmeling's style and have an idea as to what I shall do under particular situations.

I believe my assortment of punches is as varied as that possessed by any heavyweight. These socks should be enough to take care of Max no matter what he decides to do once the gong sounds for the championship argument.

I hope it is a hard, sensational fight with a decisive ending. This will help the boxing game everywhere. And I intend to see that Jack Sharkey is the one to come through with a smashing victory so that the championship does not go abroad.

As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 7.—A fight can be won or lost in the corner. I take particular care about my corner because a ring-wise man looking out from behind the post can detect flaws in my opponent that I'm too busy to see and he can detect weaknesses in my own attack or defense I overlook in the heat of battle. I want to say right now that there will be only two men in my corner on the night of June 12—Max Machon and Joe Jacobs.

Many people wonder what is going on up there in that angle of the ring ropes between rounds. They see the flash of a water bottle or the dabbing of a sponge where heads are huddled together and I suppose a fan would like to stick his ear in our little conferences.

Well, I'll tell you what happens. Max Machon talks to me in German, advising me whether to play for the body in the coming round or shift to a head attack. Sometimes he and Joe Jacobs talk over the advice they are to give me during the three minutes' fighting and then during the rest period Max tells me all of it in German.

Helped Him Defeat Risko

I VERY seldom talk. I take deep breaths, relax and look down at my shoes and listen. Sometimes, I think I am winning when I am not. In the Risko fight I said to Joe: "I am out in front," and Joe shook his head and said: "Risko is coming on, Maxie, you'd better step on it."

I was shocked. I knew by his diplomatic way of talking that he did not want to alarm me, but that the points were going against me. I walked out the next round and began to speed up. Soon I had hammered my man to a knockout. If I had not had alert seconds I might have coasted and lost the decision.

In the Paulino fight I followed directions round after round. Early in the fight I had a few easy rounds and I was tempted to cut loose, but the steadying talk from Machon restrained me and I was paced along beautifully.

The handling of disinfectants, cotton, iodine, collodion, Monsell's powder and other first aids is very important, too, but it is secondary to a cool head and keen eye, both of which Jacobs and Machon have. You can always hire a good doctor or surgeon to attend you, but ring brains are scarce.

No Arguments in Corner

THERE are never any arguments in my corner. Everything is smooth because everything is in capable hands. Sharkey says he lost the Risko fight because he received bad advice from a second, who told him to breeze because he was much ahead, whereas the fight was close at the time. That shows you how a fighter in the middle of his own fight can be fooled.

I never complain to my seconds about the poor work of a referee who may be favoring the other fellow on the breaks. If I am fouled, I never talk about it at the time. Why waste my breath? My seconds can do nothing to help me then. It is every man for himself. Afterwards, we talk it over.

That's why I want Max and Joe with me. I am a foreign fighter in a strange land, and you can imagine how I'd feel without my friends back of me.

Veterans' Tennis Tourney Begins at Triple A Saturday

The second St. Louis District Veterans' tennis championship will open on the Triple A Club courts next Saturday, according to an announcement made last night by Dr. Frank Diekneite, chairman of the District Tournament Committee. Dr. George H. Rice has been named referee.

Players 45 years of age or who will become 45 years old in 1930 are eligible to compete in the Veterans' tournament. The age limit is the same for both men's singles and doubles and is in accordance with the rules of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, which has sanctioned the St. Louis District Veterans' championship.

Dr. Diekneite, vice president of the Missouri Valley Tennis Association, is the present singles champion, and with Dempster W. Godlove, holds the doubles title. The singles champion will defend his title but there may be new champions in the doubles, as Godlove is not expected to participate this year.

An entry fee will be $1.50 in the singles and $2 a team in the doubles. Players may enter through Dr. G. H. Rice, 3507 Page boulevard, or at the tennis headquarters, 825 International Building. Entries will close Friday at 5 p. m.

JUNIORS AND BOYS AND GIRLS TENNIS MEETS BEGIN TOMORROW

The St. Louis District tennis championships for juniors, boys and girls, which opens at Triple A tomorrow afternoon, will have an entry of more than 85 players. There are 45 entries in the junior singles and 26 in the boys' singles, according to Martin J. Telle, in charge of the tournament. Miss Melicent Endicott, in charge of the girls' tournament, expects at least 20 players in the girls singles.

Play in the singles events will begin at 2 o'clock tomorrow. Pairings will be made today and announced tomorrow. Entries for the doubles event will be received up to 5 p. m. tomorrow. Players wishing to participate in the junior and boys' events should call Mr. Telle at COlfax 7710J, while Miss Endicott, GRand 5475, will take entries for the girl's tournament.

Steele Won Bout

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—The report last night that Ray Steele of California was defeated in a wrestling bout with Pat O'Shocker of Philadelphia was erroneous. Steele won the bout in 16 minutes, 36 seconds, with a body hold.

Bill Tilden and Partner Win in German Tourney

BERLIN, June 7.—Bill Tilden and his Danish partner, Erik Worm, defeated the tennis team of Glasser of France and Frenz of Germany in men's doubles today, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

In mixed doubles, Tilden and his German partner, Fraulein Aussem, defeated Fraulein Krahwinkel, Germany, and the dane, Erik Worm, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

ONLY FOUR BIG TEN RECORDS HAVE STOOD OVER PAST 10 YEARS

CHICAGO, June 7.—Four Western conference track records have withstood more than a decade of assaults, the 440, half-mile, and discus.

Binga Dismond, University of Chicago Negro, ran the quarter in 47.7 seconds in 1916 and the same year Arlie Mucks of Wisconsin tossed the discus 155 feet, 2 inches, and Scott of Mississippi A and M ran the half in 1:52.2.

The mile record was set in 1917 by Fall of Oberlin who broke the tape in 4:15.8. All the other records were broken in the last five years.

WALNUT PARK BEATS MADISON IN FIRST GAME OF TITLE SERIES

Walnut Park defeated the Madison nine, 2-1, yesterday at the Public School Stadium in the first of a three-game series to decide the Public School League Baseball championship. Walnut Park scored its only two runs in the first inning.

Louis Gott, the Madison hurler, pitched a good game, except for the disastrous first inning. In that inning, Calvin Morgenthaler, the first man up, walked. The next two men struck out, but Webster Johnson came up next and singled, scoring Morgenthaler, who had stolen second. A wild pitch and a passed ball enabled Johnson to score what proved to be the winning run. In only one other inning was Gott in trouble—the second, when he had the bases loaded with two out. He pulled out of that scrape by striking out the next man up.

Both pitchers had good strikeout records, with Gott striking out 14, and Wilson Farrell 11. Gott walked one, and Farrell two. In four innings Gott struck out three batters an inning.

Madison came near winning the game in its half of the sixth, when the first man up, Harry Hazer, singled, and the next, Roy Ferber, tripled to score him. Ferber tried to stretch his triple into a homer, but was easily thrown out at the plate. If he had stayed on third he would have been scored on the next man's infield out.

The next game of series will be played tomorrow, also at the Public Schools Stadium. If Walnut Park wins, they will clinch the title, while if Madison wins, there will have to be another game Wednesday. The winner of the championship will receive the cup emblematic of the championship and also the medals donated by the Post-Dispatch.

TOWER A. C. WILL HOLD OUTDOOR FIGHT PROGRAM, JUNE 17

It was announced last night by Barney McCarthy, matchmaker for the Town Athletic Club, that he will stage his initial outdoor amateur boxing show of the season Tuesday night, June 17, at the Rodenberg Hall arena, 6200 North Broadway.

Werner Kranz, Joe Herbst Jr., Jimmy Conklin, Frank Dorsey and Al White, all Mississippi Valley Amateur Association mitt champions, are among the battlers McCarthy is considering employing in bouts on his card.

Tyler Place Presbyterian Again Wins Track Meet; Dave Cook Sets Record

The Tyler Place Presbyterian Church team won the sixteenth annual Sunday School track and field meet held yesterday afternoon on Francis Field with a total of 66 points, 26 more than Webster Groves Presbyterian, which was second. This was the second straight time Tyler Place won the meet, and if it wins next year, it will gain permanent possession of the William H. Reinhardt trophy.

Maplewood M. E. was third with 34 points, being followed closely by Kingshighway Presbyterian, which had 29 points to its credit. Fifth place was gained by West Presbyterian with 25; sixth by Wagoner Place with 21, and seventh by South Webster with 12.

Five New Senior Records.

In the senior division, five records were set and one was tied. William Ohle, West Presbyterian, took the mile run in 4 minutes, 49.1 seconds. The old mark was set by Varney of Kingshighway Presbyterian in 1926, at 4:54.6. Hellmich of Ascension ran the 220-yard dash in 22.1 seconds, 1.3 seconds better than the mark made by Daly in 1927.

Dave Cook, Soldan High star competing with Kingshighway Presbyterian, reduced the 220-yard low hurdle mark to 26.4 seconds. The time in the 880 at 2 minutes 2.5 seconds, by Ohle, was quite a bit better than the last mark. The 440 dash mark was lowered and the high jump mark was tied.

Only two new marks were made by the intermediate boys. The 220-yard low hurdle time of 27.5 was tied by Duggins of Wagoner Place. The new records were in the 220 and high jump. As in the intermediate division, only two new junior marks were set. The Tyler Place relay team, composed of Dey, Cornish, Johnson and Buch, ran the 440 yards in 50.2 seconds. In the high jump Cunningham of Maplewood M. E. went an inch higher than the old 44-inch mark, hung up by Ohle in 1926.

In the midget section a new 50-yard dash mark was made by Elder of Southampton Presbyterian at 6.5 seconds. Robbins of Webster Groves Presbyterian tied the high jump mark of 54 inches.

Tyler Gains Nine Firsts.

In winning the meet, Tyler Place made nine firsts, which were in the senior high jump and relay, intermediate 12-pound shot, junior 440-yard relay, 75-yard dash, 50-yard dash, broad jump, 220-yard dash and the midget 75-yard dash. Five second places were also taken by Tyler.

Besides the main trophy awarded to Tyler Place, there were prizes for the winner in each division. Medals were given for first, second and third places in each event.

The point scores of the teams follow: Tyler Place Presbyterian, 66. Webster Groves Presbyterian, 40. Maplewood M. E., 34. Kingshighway Presbyterian, 29. West Presbyterian, 25. Wagoner Place 21. Ascension, 14. South Webster, 12. Oak Hill, 11. St. Mark's, 8. Southampton, 8. Cote Brilliante, 5. Bowman, 5. First Church of Nazarene, 2.

DIXIE LAD, AT 14 TO 1, GAINS VICTORY IN CLEVELAND DERBY

GALLANT KNIGHT IS UNPLACED IN $15,000 EVENT AT THISTLEDOWN

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., June 7.—With 10,000 race fans shouting to their respective riders to come on, Dixie Lad, a rank outsider from the A. B. Letellier Stable of New Orleans, saddled by A. Thomas and ridden by Jockey Carl Meyers, won the first running of the $15,000 added Cleveland Derby at Thistledowns here this afternoon. He ran the mile and a quarter in 2:05 and refunded 14 to 1, 3to 1 to place and 1.30 to 1 to show.

Maya, ridden by Joe Inzelone and coupled with Cesare as the Coe entry, which led the parade virtually from the start to the last sixteenth pole, was second, a head in front of Dark Sea, the Kilmer entry, which moved up menacingly at the three-quarter pole and for a time looked like the winner.

Gallant Knight, the odds-on favorite, finished sixth and only in the early part of the running did he look any part of the colt which ran second to Gallant Fox, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes.

Dark Sea, the Kilmer colt, which previously worked a mile and a quarter in 2:10, ran a beautiful race, but was no match for the first two.

Off none too well, Meyers, on Dixie Lad, soon got his mount into motion and gradually worked his way up to the leaders, the son of Sporting Blood going along like a piece of well oiled machinery. As they neared the far turn Dixie Lad began to move up in earnest and when they hit the head of the home lane it looked like a different story would be written of the Derby than originally was expected. It was plain that Gallant Knight had had enough though Schutte kept at work on him, but the son of Bright Knight was through.

Hanford Again Leading Jockey At Fairmount

Barney Hanford again led the jockeys at Fairmount in earnings for the week ending Friday evening. He earned $377, being paid at the rate of $25 for a winning mount and $10 for each race in which his mount was defeated.

George Cimerak was second with a salary check of $208, Willie Day third with $204, and Earl Goodrich pulled down $200.

Eight riders earned $100 or more for the week.

Hanford and Cimerak are running a close race for riding honors for the meeting. Including races of Friday, Hanford has brought 48 horses into the money and Cimerak 47. Hanford has a big edge in winners, with 28, against 17.

The standing of the leaders is as follows:

JOCKEY,	Firsts.	Seconds.	Thirds.
B. Hanford	28	13	7
G. Cimerak	17	21	19
M. E. Meyers	13	10	11
C. Pegg	7	16	10
W. Day	7	6	11

TWO VALUABLE HORSES OWNED BY PEABODY DESTROYED IN FIRE

CHICAGO, June 7.—Two valuable race horses, one a promising 2-year-old filly, recently imported from England, were burned to death this morning when the Arrow Brook Stables of Stuyvesant Peabody were destroyed by fire at Lemont, Ill. Peabody, who is head of the Consumer Co., is a partner of Colonel Matt Winn in Washington Park, Lincoln Fields and several other race tracks.

The loss on the stables was placed at $50,000, but Peabody would not attempt to place a price upon the thoroughbreds, which he termed "priceless."

Believed to be heavier than the loss of the barn itself, was that of the filly Bossie Hattie, the daughter of Lady Hatten and Golden Boss, noted English horses. Peabody said that the filly had run a furlong in :11 and he had expected great things from her next year. The colt destroyed was unchristened.

The origin of the fire is not definitely known, but James Robinson, Peabody's secretary, who hurried to the scene as soon as notified, said it was probably due to crossed electric wires.

Only the fact that the bulk of Peabody's racing stable is at Washington Park averted a much greater loss.

FAIRMOUNT IS NOT PLANNING NIGHT RACING, EDDY DECLARES

By Dent McSkimming.

In spite of the obvious success of night dog racing and the trend toward night sports exhibitions under powerful flood lights, it is highly improbable that horse racing under electric lights will come into vogue again in this country, in the opinion of Robert S. Eddy Jr., general manager of the Fairmount Jockey Club.

"I doubt very much that horse racing at night is practical, in the first place," said Eddy when asked whether such night racing was contemplated.

"Furthermore, there is no demand for it, so far as I can determine," he added. "We don't feel that night racing would attract a better class of people to the track, either." (He diplomatically avoided suggesting that night racing would actually bring in a less desirable clientele.) "And then, you know it takes keen eyes and very capable supervision to properly control racing in the daytime. What would it be at night?

Not Practical.

"But the proposal is not practical to begin with because the laws under which horse racing is conducted do not admit of racing after 7 p. m.. Sunday racing, too, is prohibited. All of which reminds me of a story.

"Years ago there were some night racing tracks, one of them right here in St. Louis. Most of such tracks were outside the pale of the recognized associations, or, as we say, they were outlaw tracks. There was a very influential figure in racing at Chicago at the time, Ed Corrigan, known as the 'Master of Hawthorne.' When it was necessary for him to expel or suspend an owner, trainer or rider, his terse verdict would be 'Nights and Sundays only for you.'

"I see where the baseball people, especially in the smaller communities, are turning seriously to night baseball. But, their problem is entirely different from ours. Their overhead, especially, is small compared with that of a race meeting. Night baseball has always had a strange appeal. I recall that 30 years ago when my associates and myself were interested in semi-professional ball in New Orleans, we staged night games. At that time we used gas jets, and they were all right so long as the air was calm, but when the wind blew the torches fluttered and waved and the whole picture became grotesque with moving highlights and shadows. Now, I understand, improved lighting has entirely removed the confusing element of shadows.

Day May Come.

"There may come a day when public interest will make night horse racing practical, but I believe that time has not yet arrived. The fact that night dog racing is successful here does not alter the situation. We, at Fairmount Park, do not feel that dog racing cuts into out patronage. We do not look upon the dog-racing plants as competitors at all. We are in two distinct fields, and I believe we will remain there."

So-called "outlaw" night racing is scarcely feasible nowadays because of the absolute control of the various jockey clubs, extending to all parts of the United States and into Canada, Cuba and Mexico. To be placed under the ban of the Kentucky Jockey Club, the New York Jockey Club or the Illinois Turf Board in this day is to be as effectually exiled as though one were placed in "solitary." A recently published notice in a turf daily called the attention of all horsemen to the fact that a certain jockey had "broken his contract and left his employer," and it demanded that horse men "neither employ nor HARBOR said jockey." And horsemen take such notification seriously. Outlaw riders have nowhere to go and outlaw tracks probably could not operate.

Walter Holke, manager and first baseman of the Hazelton team of the New York - Pennsylvania League, leads that league in home runs with six.

KRAMER'S HEAVY HITTING AIDS LACLEDES TO DEFEAT ENDICOTTS, 19-6

ENGINEERS WIN DOUBLEHEADER; TOWER CAMP IS STILL LEADING

The Lacledes remained one game behind the leading Olivers in the Y. M. C. A. No. 3 division of the Municipal League yesterday afternoon, mainly through the work of Kramer who hit two home runs and a single to help his team to a 19 to 6 victory over the Endicotts. The Olivers lead with six victories and no defeats.

In the other Y. M. C. A. divisions, McQuay-Norris is on top in No. 1, and Quick Meal and Red Goose are tied in No. 2, each with five victories out of six starts.

The Engineers took two from the General Accounts in the Missouri Pacific League, by scores of 10 to 3 and 3 to 2. Hagen, the winning pitcher in the second game, let the Accounts down with two hits, walked two and struck out one.

Tarantola of the Wolverines also only permitted two safeties, but the Brownies used them to score two runs in the South Side Junior Employed Boys' League. Tarantola fanned 14 in eight innings and issued four bases on balls. The Wolverines won, 8 to 2.

In the Commercial League, Tower Camp won its sixth straight victory and is the only undefeated team in the division. The Kroemekes are second with four wins and two losses.

Fouts a Coming Star

The University of Maryland apparently has a coming track star in Charley Fouts, sophomore, who broke into limelight by pole vaulting 11 feet 7 inches and high jumping 5 feet 11 inches this week. He had been vaulting previously but did his first high jump this year.

The Navy Blues.

The Navy broke off football relations with West Point on account of alleged recruiting tactics on the part of the Army in behalf of her football team.

YOU'RE in the Army now,
to play football and how;
The old army game will get you fame,
You're in the army now.

Forget about the gun,
Just learn to kick and run;
So don't forget you fresh cadet
You're in the army now.

And the Rebuttal.

WE'RE in the army now,
We're in the army now
To play football, but aren't we all?
Please answer that and how.

Orally Speaking.

See where John Gilbert has taken up voice culture. At $10,000 per week, money talks. But John coudln't. Hence the voice culture.

The man on the sandbox says the fifteenth of June would be a better day to open the straw hat season than the fifteenth of May. Then it could close on the first of October by everybody throwing their straws away at the world series.

It is a most pretentious show;
They throw the gangsters into jail,
And then they let 'em out on bail,
So they may carry on the war,
And tend to business as before.

After losing 14 straight games, the fabled worm of song and story personified by the Boston Red Sox coiled itself and bit the New York Yankees on the ankle. Which goes to show that in stepping on worms you can go a step too far.

One year the Browns played the part of the worm while the Yankees were starring in the part of the cruel stepfather, and waited until the last game of the season before telling them not to go a step farther.

The sport writers will in the future decide who is the most valuable player. But they won't kick in with the 1000 berries.

In addition to the 1000 berries, Rogers Hornsby was presented with a bronze plaque. It wasn't a plaster cast, as the Rajah already had one.

I Wonder .

THE Rajah now owns a bronze plaque.
Of which he had long felt the laque;
But we're wondering if
The disciple of biff
Hadn't rather been given the jacque.

INJURIES TO STAR PLAYERS IN 1930 NEAR RECORD, MACK BELIEVES

CLUBS THAT WON PENNANTS LAST SEASON SUFFER MOST, HE SAYS

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager World Champion Athletics

CHICAGO, June 7.—This has been a record season in the two major leagues for a padded hospital list of injured and ailing players. To my mind it has been caused by unseasonable weather. Prior to June 1, only occasionally did we have a warm day. For the most part it has been cold, and even late in May we played before crowds where the majority of spectators wore overcoats.

Nothing affects ball players more than cold weather. A player who goes to the bat with his hands numb, gets a shock if he does not hit the ball at the proper spot. It is the same sliding into a base.

Connie Mack.

Some clubs have been more affected than others but I think that up to June 1, there were more ailing and injured players throughout the two leagues than in any recent season I can recall.

In the American League, no team has suffered more than the Athletics. We have had as many as four regulars out of action at one time and just now we miss the services of three.

Al Simmons developed a bad knee condition from tearing around the bases in cold weather and he could not start the current western trip with us. The loss of such a power with the bat is always felt although we started our first trip west winning without him. Jimmy Dykes, our able third baseman, was left behind in Philadelphia and is out for the full trip as he has been sent to the hospital because of stomach trouble.

Indians Have Been Hit.

Max Bishop was hit in the mouth with a bad bounding ball in fielding practice just before we left Philadelphia and could not take his place at the start of the trip. For a long time in important series we were without the services of Mickey Cochrane, our wonderful catcher, who injured his right ankle sliding into third base on a cold day. He tried to get back into action too soon and aggravated the old injury by tumbling down in our dugout trying to catch a foul ball.

Cochrane was able to return to the game on the present trip and is catching and hitting as well as ever but it hurt us immensely when we didn't have him in vital games with the Yanks and Washington.

Cleveland has had a battle-scarred crew ever since the season began. Their most recent blow was the loss of Lew Fonseca, American League batting champion of 1929, who is one of the most valuable players in the circuit.

The Browns and Tigers in the West and Washington and the Red Sox in the East have not been inconvenienced on this score to any great extent.

National Clubs Hit.

A number of National League clubs have had their regular casts riddled by maimed and sick players, with three pennant contenders heading the list.

The Pirates have suffered greatly. Lloyd Waner, the wonderful young center fielder, has been lost for virtually the entire season with an attack of appendicitis and there is no likelihood of his early return to the game. Then Pie Traynor, the motor of the Pittsburg infield, was also lost for a long period, but has recently returned to the game. To lose one Waner was not enough, and now Lloyd's brother, Paul, a terrific hitter, was hurt and lost many games. In addition, Bartell, a valuable young shortstop, joined the hospital list, and so did Pitchers Swetonic and Brame.

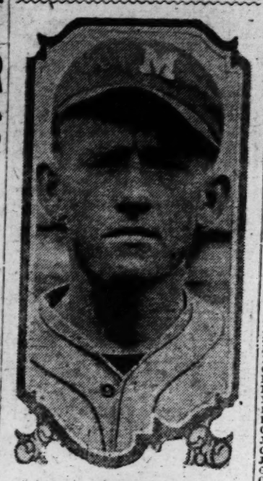
The patience of Joe McCarthy, the competent leader of the Cubs, has been sorely tried all season by the loss of valuable players, the capsheaf coming in the sad death of Hal Carlson. McCarthy received another staggering blow when Rogers Hornsby, one of the truly outstanding hitters in baseball history, sustained a broken ankle and will be lost to the Cubs for many weeks. Lester Bell, the third baseman, cannot play because of a sore arm, while Riggs Stephenson is back in the lineup, after being out a long time.

No National League team has been hit harder than the Giants, who have been without the services of Travis Jackson, their brilliant fielding and heavy hitting shortstop. They also had to play for a considerable time without Mel. Ott, prize outfielder, while Third Baseman Lindstrom and First Baseman Terry were also out of important games, to say nothing of Outfielder Roettger.

The Robins, Braves and Phillies have had better luck in this respect.

No doubt so many incapacitated players have upset the pennant races.

HIGH SCHOOL PHENOM WHO WILL JOIN MACK



LEW KRAUSSE.

The 17-year-old pitching staff of the Media High School, Pittsburg, who will report to the world champion Athletics after his graduation this month. He has won 19 of his games in two years at Media. This season he has won 11 straight and has three no-hit games to his credit.

SCHOONER WINS OVER NORAIS IN CHICAGO RACE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The first 2-year-old stake of the Chicago racing season, the Thomas Curran Memorial, at five and one-half furlongs, was won by the Rancocas Stable's colt, Schooner, at Washington Park today. Norias, of the Paradise Stock Farm, was second, and Foreign Exchange, a Kentucky colt, third. The race was run over a muddy track and the time was 1:12 1-5.

The Thomas Curran Memorial carried a gross value of $9000, with $7250 going to the winner. Schooner paid $11.64 in the $2 mutuels.

Schooner was held off the pace for the first three furlongs, but Jockey Ayraud found a clear path for the little chestnut son of Bud Lerner as the field entered the stretch, and urged him into a good lead, which he easily maintained. Jockey Anderson, on Norias, the second horse, found a spot on the rail and brought him up with a rush to nose out Foreign Exchange for the third money. Eleven juveniles started in the stake.

Cayuga, with Jockey Neal up, made a parade of the secondary feature, the Riverdale Handicap, at six furlongs. Clubhouse was second, with the filly Tippy Toe showing. Cayuga was the overwhelming favorite and paid $4.64.

EASTERN PREP CREW WILL SEEK HENLEY HONORS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Interest in the Royal English Henley regatta on the Thames July 2 to 5 will center on the showing of the Kent School crew of Kent, Conn., which will row in the challenger cup race. American rowing enthusiasts also will follow with interest the effort of Jack Guest adn Joe Wright Jr., Toronto, former clubmates, to lift the Diamond sculls, the toke nof sculling supremacy.

JAPAN DEFEATS SPAIN IN SINGLES MATCHES OF DAVIS CUP SERIES

By the Associated Press.

BARCELONA, June 7.—Japan took both of the opening singles matches today in its third round Davis Cup tennis contest with Spain.

Yoshiro Ohta of the Japanese team defeated Juanico, 6—1, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2, and Takeichi Harada of Japan downed Maier, 3—6, 6—2, 6—0, 6—4.

Mrs. Moody Still Far Ahead Of Women Tennis Stars of World, Bill Tilden Writes

By William T. Tilden II.

AUTEUIL, France, June 7.—Once again Henel Wills Moody successfully negotiated the first hazard in her defense of the world championship tennis crown, which she so rightfully wears, by taking the French crown. In doing so, she clearly showed that she is still in a class by herself. Apparently she can beat the best of the women by almost any score she desires.

In her final match with Miss Jacobs, the concentration of the two players was somewhat distracted by the attitude of a good portion of the tremendous crowd who did not agree with many decisions against Miss Jacobs and most unfairly took out their displeasure on Mrs. Moody, who was in no way to blame. Mrs. Moody left the court in a storm of catcalls and whistling and but minor applause after a magnificent display of tennis.

Tilden.

In this latest achievement, retaining the French women's singles tennis championship, Mrs. Moody displayed the same genius and court generalship that has characterized her play in previous years. Playing her usual brand of efficient tennis she went through her bracket with ease to defeat Helen Jacobs in the final, 6—2 and 6—1.

Miss Jacobs was both unlucky and not at her best in this match, while Mrs. Moody was too strong in all departments of the game for Miss Jacobs to make a great impression. One can but say that Miss Jacobs fought gamely but vainly against a player who was her superior in every department of the game. I cannot understand why the gallery should not have vented its displeasure at the erring linesman instead of at so charming and marvelous a player as Mrs. Moody.

The doubles team of Helen Wills and Elizabeth Ryan was easily the class of the tournament. They won the title without dropping a set and completely outclassed Mmes. Bordes-Henrot and the Misses Fry-Hawey and in the final match Mme. Mathieu and Mlle. Barbier. Mrs. Moody's terrific hitting power of ground strokes coupled with Miss Ryan's volleying and overhead was the secret of their easy victory.

AUTO RACING PROGRAM TODAY AT CREVE COEUR

More than 25 leading dirt track auto racing drivers of the country will compete at Creve Coeur Speedway this afternoon in the opening program of the Greater St. Louis Speedway Association.

In testing out the electrical timing apparatus at the track, Art Withrow, in a Clemons Special he will drive in the races, circled the oval 10 times in the excellent time of 2:22.5 for the five miles, or an average of :44.5 a mile. Withrow attributed his performance, in great part, to the 50-foot straightaways and 100-foot turns, said to be the widest of any track in America, and to the 9-foot banks, highest of any track in the world, which permitted him to take the turns at full speed.

According to available records, the closest official 1-mile dirt track record was made by James Ewers of Mounds, Ill., when he circled the St. Paul Speedway at an average of a mile in :45 on Sept. 8, 1923. Ewers already is entered in next Sunday's opening program and will drive the fast "Felix Special," owned by E. H. Prindle of Mounds.

The internationally famous Howdy Wilcox, who holds a triumph at the Indianapolis course, merely noted on his entry that he "won a large number of races in the last five years;" while other entrants have gone into details as to their past performances.

Pat Cunningham of St. Joseph, Mo., lists victories at Denver, Colo., Omaha, Neb., Oklahoma City, Ok., Hutchinson, Kan., Belleville, Kan., Bedford and Harlan, Ia., Cushing and Duncan, Ok., and Smithville and Savannah, Mo.

L. E. Beckett, in his schedule of triumphs, claims the track record at New Breman, O., and Winchester, Ind. Pete Alberts notes victories at Vincennes, his last three races at Carbondale, and at Benton and Duquoin.

As previously announced, the opening program will comprise three five-mile preliminaries, a cup race, and the 30-mile main event. The first race will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Inaugural program of the Greater St. Louis Speedway, Upper Creve Coeur Lake, today:

2:30 p. m.—Five-mile preliminary.
3:00 p. m.—Five-mile preliminary.
3:30 p. m.—Five-mile preliminary.
4:00 p. m.—Two-mile cup race.
4:30 p. m.—Thirty-mile inaugural.

Twelve drivers will start in each of the three preliminaries and the four winners in each race will start in the 30-mile inaugural. The six maving the best time in the speed trials will run in the cup race.

THE first thing that a beginner ought to learn in golf is the grip—or how to take hold of the club. To see some golfers shoot is about all that one needs to be convinced that the club professional has been neglected. The beginner has enough troubles before him without gripping the club in such a way that it is impossible for him to execute a proper stroke.

There are three common types of grip, so called not because they differ so radically in principle but because they differ in a noticeable detail—the interlocking, the overlapping and the plain two-handed grip. These names or designations depend entirely upon whether the little finger of the right hand interlocks with the index finger of the left hand, whether it overlaps it or whether both are on the club with no connection. For my purpose it makes no difference which is used.

Study Position of Left Hand.

THE important thing to be observed is that the left hand is

RIVERS OPPOSES ALFANO IN BOUT HERE TOMORROW

The first open-air professional boxing show of the season will take place tomorrow night at the Battery A Arena. Matchmakers for the Walter Hatzfeld Post of the American Legion have arranged a program of five matches. The feature battle will be between Joey Rivers, Kansas City Mexican, and Ray Alfano, East Side lightweight.

Alfano is reported to be in good condition following a month of stiff training. Since he has been doing a comeback, the East St. Louisan has not dropped a decision in 26 fights, according to his handlers, who state that Alfano has chalked up 23 victories and battled to draw decisions in three other scraps. Among the fighters Alfano has beaten are Johnny Lucas, Red Scully and Kid Clarkson, and the three fighters who held him to draw verdicts are Jackie Hogan, Johnny Milton and Jack Mason.

Rivers, at one time, was a popular favorite here. He came here a few years ago untouted and outpointed Joe Pagalini and Eddie Anderson; knocked out Paul Steadman and Claudie Wilson, and put up two whirlwind battles with Johnny Kaiser. His streak of victories came to an abrupt ending when Benny Bass knocked him out in the second round at the Coliseum.

In the semiwindup scrap, Jackie Doss, Choctaw Indian from Temple, Tex., will oppose Joey Reinhardt, a welterweight from Salt Lake City, Utah. The third 10-rounder will be between Ray Palmer of St. Louis and Roy Logsdon, Litchfield, Ill., featherweight. In his two previous bouts with Logsdon, Palmer was on the losing end.

Fred Perry and Paul Lang, a pair of former amateur battlers, will furnish the entertainment in the six-round scrap, while two Negro fighters, Kid Casperino and Allen Mathews, are down to do four rounds in the curtain-raiser.

No Title Match Booked

There will be no world's 18.2 balkline challenge test this season. The high guarantee wanted by Joke Schaefer, present title-holder, forced C. A. Storer, director of tournaments for the National Billiard Association, to abandon plans for the challenge test.

ST. ROSE PLACES 5 PLAYERS ON ALL-STAR TEAM

Five players from the championship St. Rose baseball team were selected on the all-star team of the Sherman Park Division of the Parochial League. St. Marks, which finished second, placed three and St. Edwards and Visitation each had one. Dick Ruane, junior athletic director of the league, made the selections for the Post-Dispatch. Frank Burke and Bill Victor, the battery for the winners, were chosen, although Burke did not pitch as well as Billy January of St. Marks, who had a record of five victories and one defeat. Victor's eight home runs, which was high for the season, made him an easy choice for the catcher's job.

Gene Durnin's heavy hitting enabled St. Marks to obtain one of the outfield positions. Durnin batted .458. Left field was earned by John O'Toole of St. Rose. The other garden position went to Pat Gilmartin of Visitation.

The infield consists of Dee Curran, first; Rich Friel, second; John O'Connell, short, and Chuck Andreski, third. O'Connell was the leading fielder, committing only one error in eight games.

The all-star team has such confidence in its ability that it is willing to meet any team in the 15-16-year-old class.

The final standings of the league:

Team.	W.	L.	Pct.
St. Rose	6	2	.750
St. Marks	5	3	.625
Visitation	4	4	.500
St. Edwards	4	4	.500

THREE GAMES TODAY IN UNIVERSITY CITY MUNY LEAGUE PLAY

Three league games are scheduled in the University City League today at Heman Park, the first game on Diamond No. 1, starting at 1 o'clock. Interest will be centered on the University City K. of C.'s attempt to stop United, who are now leading the league with five victories and no defeats.

The St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce team, which managed to stay in the race by disposing of Hellrung-Grimm last Sunday, will meet the strengthened Columbia Athletic Club on Diamond No. 1 at 3 o'clock.

The University City Knights of Columbus and the Uniteds meet in the nightcap on Diamond No. 1, while the Trumbulls, tied for last place with University City K. of C., meet Hellrung-Grimm at 2:30 on Diamond No. 2.

Y. M. C. A. PLAYGROUND BALL LEAGUE WILL START PLAY JUNE 16

Entries in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Playground Ball League will close Tuesday, according to an announcement made yesterday by the committee in charge.

It is planned to operate the league in the evening during the summer months instead of Saturday afternoons. Games will be played on Monday evenings, beginning on June 16.

The league is under the auspices of the City-Wide Industrial Athletic Association and plants entering teams must hold membership in this organization. Individuals, to be eligible to participate, must be employed on or before April 16.

Entry blanks and information regarding membership may be had by visiting Room 420, 1528 Locust street.

Veteran Players Are Proving Stars for Flag Contenders in Major Leagues, McGraw Writes

By John J. McGraw.
Manager New York Giants.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Look over the two big league races and you'll note that experience is right now the big factor. That is really another way of saying that class is beginning to tell. The rise of the Senators in the American League, for example, is due largely to the work of the veterans like Sam Rice, Joe Judge and Goose Goslin. The hitting and fielding of that trio has been a sensation. Then there is the work of Adolfo Luque and Dazzy Vance with the Brooklyn Robins. Out west Urban Faber has shown his old-time form and as for Babe Ruth there is little to be said. Herb Pennock is pitching great ball for the Yanks and Gaston has been going good for the Boston Americans. The biggest setback to Cleveland has been the temporary loss of the veteran Fonseca. They needed that punch.

To my mind this unusual showing of all the veterans so early in the season is an evidence of their sincerity of their spring training. They understand more clearly than the youngsters the need of being in perfect shape to start a hard grind. Young ballplayers should take a lesson from these old-timers.

John McGraw.

It's a pity that two great pitchers like Alexander and Howard Ehmke couldn't keep up one more year with the other old stars of the game, but they surely have done their part. Both of them worked hard and faithfully. Fans perhaps don't realize how much strength is required to pitch a nine-inning ball game without tiring toward the finish. That is why so few men past 40 can hold on.

Reserve Strength Important.

Right now it's hard to form an opinion of most of the teams in either league by the present standings in the races. Anything is likely to happen, such as the accidents and illness that befell the Giants, the Cubs and the Pirates. Secondary strength is all important now.

The one certain thing is the show of definite championship class by the Athletics and the increased difficulty of any club in beating them out. This was brought out when Connie Mack found his star regulars out of commission and threw in his reserve strength without any serious check to the machine. Pennants are seldom won without good reserve strength.

Reserve strength, incidentally, accounts for much of the Brooklyn success. This is especially true in the infield. The good pitching, though, has kept the Robins up there and it will continue to be a big factor. The Cardinals had a good streak and many baseball people consider them real contenders but I am not so sure of the St. Louis pitching as that of Brooklyn.

An Interesting Trade.

A most interesting trade has been that between the Yankees and the Detroit Tigers. To me it looks like a good deal for both clubs. Rice and Westerling should help balance off the Yanks and Hoyt and Koenig are very apt to take on fresh life in new surroundings.

Bob Shawkey also has had some tough luck but I still expect the Yanks to pull up alongside the Athletics. Earl Combs, on account of his hard hitting, has remained in the game despite the handicap of injuries. Combs, Ruth and Lazzeri all have been playing great ball.

The real difficulty of getting a line on the race is due to the unusual number of clubs that have been crippled by one misfortune after another. Off hand you could name the Cubs, the Pirates, the Yankees, the Indians and Red Sox. There are still others partly set back. This ought to even itself up in the long run but sometimes it doesn't. On that account these intesectional games in both leagues may not be as great as we had expected.

Ruth Bailey to Open Net Campaign Here June 23

Miss Ruth Bailey, young St. Louis tennis player, will start out on a tour of tennis tournaments during her vacation, which will begin in St. Louis during the week of June 23 and will terminate the week of Aug. 18, with the national women's singles championship at Forest Hills, Long Island.

Miss Bailey, at present attending Texas University, will enter the St. Louis district women's championship event at Triple A June 23. She will ten make a trip to Omaha to enter the Middle West tournament during the week of June 30. The next stop will be at Des Moines, where the Missouri Valley championships start July 7. This will end her tennis quest on clay courts, as she will then go East after a week's rest to enter the tourneys on grass courts.

Will Play in East.

The Essex Country Club invitation tournament at Manchester, Mass., July 21 will be the first Eastern event in which she will participate. Play in the Seabright, N. J., invitation tourney will follow during the ensuing week. After the Seabright event the young tennis ace will compete in the Maidstone invitation event at East Hampton, L. I., and follow with a trip to Rye, N. Y., to play in the Eastern championships during the week of August 11. She will end her trip by participating in the national women's singles championship tournament at Forest Hills during the following week.

Miss Bailey is the present holder of the Texas, Arkansas and Missouri State women's championships and is ranked No. 1 by the Missouri Valley and St. Louis Municipal Tennis associations.

Ruth's trip is being sponsored by her father and the Missouri Valley Tennis Association, the latter defraying part of the expenses. An effort is being made to assist Miss Bailey by popular subscription, plans for the trip being formulated at the tennis headquarters at 825 International Life Building by Davison Obear, secretary of the Valley Association.

ST. LOUIS STARS TAKE SERIES OPENER FROM NASHVILLE NINE, 14-6

The St. Louis Stars of the Negro National Baseball League continued their winning streak when they overwhelmed the Elites of Nashville, Tenn., in the opening game of the series yesterday at the Stars' Park, 14 to 6. Untimely hitting and a flock of errors caused the visiting team to lose the contest. The feature play of the game was turned by H. Williams when he raced to deep left field to snare Buford's high fly, stumbled and fell, yet held the ball above the ground to retire the batter. The Stars lead the league.

Wells collected four hits in five trips to the plate to lead his teammates in the batting attack, while N. Williams equaled Wells' record at the plate for the Nashville team. Stratton hit a home run for the Elites, while Creacy made the circuit drive for the locals. Wells' homer came while there were two men in scoring position. A brilliant double play was turned when Stratton trapped his man at second, then threw to Bobo to count the batter out.

The same teams will engage in a double-header today with the first game starting at 1:30 o'clock.

SUNSETS TO OPPOSE FREE JUNIORS TODAY IN MUNY HORSESHOES

The Sunsets, leaders in Division No. 1 of the Municipal Horseshoe Association, will meet the Free Juniors in the feature match on this morning's horseshoe program at Fairground Park, beginning at 9:30 a. m. In other matches in the same division, the Flints will oppose the Liberty Bells, while the Angelicas will go against the Larrs. Several postponed matches also will be run off.

In Division No. 2, the Gausmann-Parkers are scheduled to clash with the Morgans, while the Kuhlmann-Kuhlmann outfit will meet the Piegges.

PAIRINGS FOR STATE GOLF MEET ARE ANNOUNCED

Pairings for the twenty-sixth annual Missouri State amateur golf tournament, to be held in Kansas City from Wednesday to Saturday, inclusive, show that Elliott Whitbread, defending titleholder and new St. Louis district champion, will play around with Frank Aylward of Kansas City, in the qualifying round.

Whitbread has won the State meet the last two years, taking first honors at Riverview (now North Shore) here in 1928, and at Hillcrest, Kansas City, in 1929. He will become owner of the Crouch cup if he wins this year.

Entries for the tournament will be accepted up to 3 p. m. Wednesday by Bonner Miller, secretary of the State association, at the Milburn Country Club, Kansas City, scene of the tournament. The announced pairings show a gap of two hours after 10:30 a. m. Wednesday, for late additions to the entry list.

A One-Man Grid Squad

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, June 7.—Bob Wilson, sophomore, who aspires to play center for the University of Maryland football team next fall, has been going it alone in practice since the squad quit its spring training. He is being coached by George Pollock, who starred at center for the Old Liners some years back. Wilson is tall, rangy, alert and a fair fast six-footer who tips the scales at 180 pounds.

Heat When It's Cold Cool When It's Hot!

By H. F. HERMAN.

HUNDREDS of years ago, we humans rubbed two sticks of wood together in order to create a heat when we were cold,—and during the hot months we could sit in the shadow of our cave or tree to avoid the intense, energy destroying effects of the heat. In those days we were not facing the problems of modern civilization, efficient business methods and keeping cool with Coolidge.

NOT very long ago, we business people and citizens of today looked upon the revolutionary upset of Scientifically Conditioned Air just as we did awhile previous at the value of the bath-tub, telephone, radio and many other things which have made life worth while.

TODAY we have been convinced that Conditioned Air will make the North forget its extreme cold—will create a new, enjoyable energy and vitality in the South, and establish an atmospheric condition in the temperate zone that will practically eliminate the drastic changes in dull seasons in business and assure a greater comfort and health in domestic life.

AND now that we can be scientifically heated or cooled as the environment demanded—for the sake of our health, business and comfort, it would pay us to look just a little deeper into this subject of Conditioned Air.

JUST what would it mean to you if your home no longer depresses you with its stifling hot, too-dry heated air in the cold weather, or its humid, unhealthy atmospheric condition that simply flattens you out in the summer time.

IF you operate a department, general or specialty store, do you realize what scientifically controlled Conditioned Air would mean to you in dollars and cents. Salespeople that are healthy and comfortable are extremely more efficient, both in summer and winter. Customers that welcome the opportunity of escape from the disagreeable cold or torrid heat of outdoors to the soothing, healthful, inviting atmosphere that skillfully encourages shopping every day in the year.

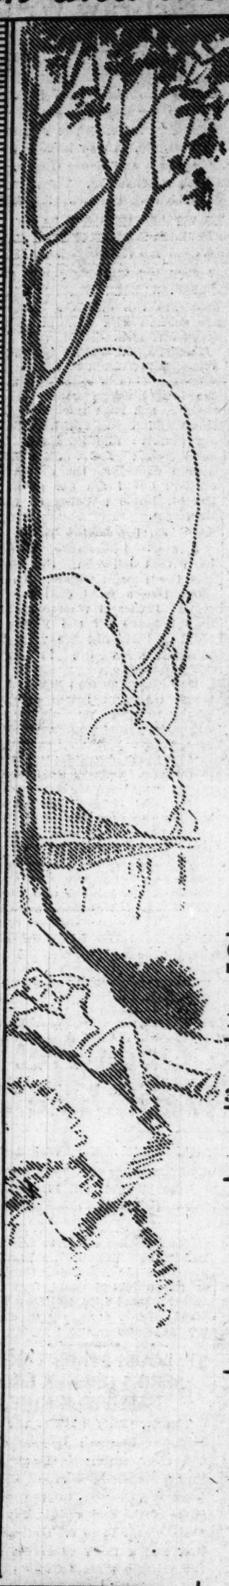
CONDITIONED Air has taken the summer slump out of the movie theatre business and has supplied just the proper moisture to the heat in the winter time to relieve that dry, depressing, excessively hot air.

MANY theatre owners throughout the country have made the statement that the installation of a Conditioned Air equipment in a theatre has often paid for itself in increased patronage in one season.

A HOTEL with an conditioned ballroom and dining room to dance and dine in health and comfort, enjoys all year round popularity. Hospitals can be equipped in order to supply just exactly the kind of Conditioned Air that would greatly assist a particular case. Cigar and cigarette manufacturers very early realized the benefits of Conditioned Air to assist in the preparation and Ageing of various tobaccos and in the reductions in operating costs. Candy manufacturers were also quick to appreciate its wonderful advantages to their business. You now find Air Conditioning Systems operating to great advantage in the manufacture and packing of many food products, in printing and lithographing plants, in the manufacture and packing of many chemical products and practically all pharmaceutical products, all textile, leather goods, wood products and hundreds of other industries, too numerous to mention in this limited space.

ONCE upon a time Conditioned Air was an engineer's dream,—today it is the easy road to health, comfort and industrial success that you cannot afford to be without.

AN inquiry addressed to this paper or to any name appearing on this page will immediately bring you any information you desire relative to Conditioned Air.



St. Louis is rapidly realizing how important to health, comfort and efficiency is the control of temperature and moisture of air wherever people congregate indoors. To meet the ever-increasing demand on our company for accurate information on this subject, a special Air Conditioning Department has been established.

On request a specially trained engineer will gladly call and help solve your air conditioning problem. There is no charge or obligation for this service. Call MAin 3222 and ask for the Air Conditioning Department.

What Conditioned Air means to the Hotel Jefferson

By Max L. Teich.

The MAIN DINING ROOM ("Salle Royale") of the New Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis. The center dance floor is surrounded with terraces on two levels. This room is maintained at a temperature of 70 degrees.

IT IS exactly eleven p. m.

Fifteen hundred people are just closing their Annual Convention in the Gold Room.

Many of St. Louis' smartest people are dining in the Salle-Royale. Bobby Meeker and his orchestra are there to entertain them.

Everybody is comfortable and feels just as refreshed and full of vitality as when they came early in the evening. Even the waiters and other employees are full of pep, and working at maximum efficiency,—regardless of the fact that it is 90 degrees out on the street, and one of those deplorable humid, energy-destroying nights.

It's really amazing, what a difference Conditioned Air makes, at the New Hotel Jefferson.

That's why you always feel so comfortable.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The stock market finally broke out of its narrow trading area with an abrupt decline today, the sharpest since early May. The composite price index of 90 leading shares lost nearly four points, and several issues, among which U. S. Steel was prominent, broke through the resistance points of the crash a month ago.

HIGHER RANGE TO COCA COLA BOTTLING ISSUE

Leads in Trade During Week on the Local Exchange — Wagner Electric Shows Some Betterment in Price.

Coca-Cola Bottling took a front position in trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange during the last week, ranging up more than 4 points on a turnover in excess of 1400 shares. A top of 58⅞ was recorded for the period, with final price near the best for the week.

Wagner Electric gained more than a point and Dr. Pepper improved fractionally. Southwestern Bell preferred was better. There were 883 shares of Southern Acid sold, 435 of the total being in one lot. The price was unchanged at 48.

Hamilton-Brown sold from unchanged to ½ point lower level. Ely-Walker was off a fraction. Scruggs at 12 and Hydraulic Brick preferred at 33 were unchanged. A small amount of St. Louis Amusement sold at 12¼.

In the bank stock section Mercantile-Commerce and First National Bank showed price recessions for the week.

STOCK BREAK IS SHARPEST SINCE EARLY LAST MONTH

ing into a summer lull without having made a very impressive record during the spring, with commodity prices showing further unsettlement, and credit rates tumbling to the lowest levels in recent years through sheer lack of demand for funds, efforts to send shares higher were completely abandoned, and floor traders who make a market from day to day regardless of the amount of commission business, found the line of the least resistance tending conspicuously downward.

Several developments of the week favored the bear cause, although their influence was largely psychological. Slack demand for funds has undoubtedly reduced banking profits, and bank stocks turned weak, always an unsettling influence, whatever the cause. Radio Corp. decided to forego its quarterly earnings statement, explaining that capital changes offered troublesome obstacles. Tire manufacturers cut their prices about 5 per cent. There were a few dividend reduction, although they were not unexpected.

Increase in Loans.

The weekly brokerage loan figures shot up $79,000,000 despite a sluggish stock market during the period covered. This was foreshadowed by a gain of $99,000,000 in bank loans on securities disclosed for previous week, although brokers loans gained only $7,000,000. Although any conclusive analysis of these figures cannot be made from the material available, Wall Street generally decided that the heavy offerings of bonds during May had not been moving into investors' strong boxes, very readily, and dealers had been forced to seek loans against them. The gain in bank loans on securities, was undoubtedly due in part to the fact that brokers have not reduced their carrying charge as rapidly as banks have reduced their rates, resulting in a switching of securities from brokerage accounts to the banks.

Continued delay in offering the German reparations loan has also been an unsettling factor. Houses of issue have practically halted activity to leave a clear road for this issue. Many bankers feel that unnecessary precautions are being taken to insure the success of this issue, in view of the favorable terms planned.

Fluctuations in commodities were relatively narrow today. Wheat sagged about a cent, and cotton lost from 70 to 90 cents a bale. Silver, however, was firmer.

Foreign exchanges were generally steady, with sterling cables holding at $4.85⅞. The far Easterns improved a little with silver.

CLEARINGS, MONEY AND SILVER

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for June 7, 1930, $17,900,000; corresponding day a year ago, $17,600,000; this year, $2,815,100,000; corresponding period a year ago, $3,225,200,000. WEEKLY COPPER REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The demand for copper remained quiet with easiness of the London market and holidays late in the week checking foreign buying. Domestic consumers who are said to be well supplied with metal, remained out of the market. Offerings of resale metal at concessions have failed to attract interest and producers are holding steady at 13c for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley.

Some fair size orders for June shipment were reported in the market for lead, but the price situation was unchanged.

Zinc was steady with a moderate consuming demand reported. Estimate indicated small stocks being carried by the bulk of the consumers.

Weakness in silver and the lower Chinese rate of exchange somewhat unsettled the market for antimony. Demand remained small.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Private advices received by the sugar trade say that negotiations for the sale of 135,000 tons to Cuban sugar to Russia have been concluded. This transaction had been pending for some time, but was held up because of financial arrangement which appears to have ironed out, as the price paid was reported as 1.35 f. o. b. Cuba, 75 per cent cash, the balance to be paid in eight months, carrying 12 per cent interest.

It was also reported that the Russian Government had opened negotiations with the Cuban Government for an additional 150,000 tons at the market price on date of shipment, on the same terms and that President Machado of Cuba had called a conference of all sugar mills for next Wednesday to discuss this transaction.

The sugar trade stated its summer Saturday closing schedule today.

READJUSTED FREIGHT RATES TO SOUTHEAST MISSOURI FAVORED

I. C. C. Examiners Recommend Change Advocated for Years by St. Louis Business Men.

Readjustment of freight rates between St. Louis and Southeast Missouri points to correct a disparity favoring Kansas City and Springfield, Mo., has been recommended by examiners for the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was announced yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce.

The report also recommends that St. Louis rates to that region be lower than the rates from Memphis, now on a parity.

For 10 years the Chamber of Commerce has been seeking this adjustment. It applied first to the Missouri Public Service Commission, but the railroads obtained an injunction. In 1924 the railroads proposed rates to meet the St. Louis objection, but these were not put in effect.

The Interstate Commerce Commission instituted the present case and held a hearing at Springfield, Mo., in January, 1929, at which the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce presented its evidence. The report will not become effective until approved by the Commission and objectors have until July 1 to file exceptions.

READJUSTED FREIGHT RATES TO SOUTHEAST MISSOURI FAVORED

I. C. C. Examiners Recommend Change Advocated for Years by St. Louis Business Men.

Readjustment of freight rates between St. Louis and Southeast Missouri points to correct a disparity favoring Kansas City and Springfield, Mo., has been recommended by examiners for the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was announced yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce.

The report also recommends that St. Louis rates to that region be lower than the rates from Memphis, now on a parity.

For 10 years the Chamber of Commerce has been seeking this readjustment. It applied first to the Missouri Public Service Commission, but the railroads obtained an injunction. In 1924 the railroads proposed rates to meet the St. Louis objection, but these were not put in effect.

The Interstate Commerce Commission instituted the present case and held a hearing at Springfield, Mo., in January, 1929, at which the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce presented its evidence. The report will not become effective until approved by the Commission and objectors have until July 5 to file exceptions.

RB PRICES SLUMP IN SHORT SESSION

ar Pressure Is Exerted on Utilities, Oils and Industrial Specialties.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The curb market slumped steadily in today's brief session. Bears took up their pickets at the opening and went after the utilities, oils and industrial specialties, with the result that losses of one to three points were more common. Intermittent rallies were inconsequential and final prices were about the lowest.

The decline, which brought out considerable liquidation by purchasers at the time of the break a month ago, punctured the resistance points of several prominent stocks, including Electric Bond & Share. This leader of the utilities dropped to 97, recovering fractionally for a net loss of nearly 3 points. Superpower ranged between 21, showing a break of more than a point. Niagara was an exception to the trend, holding firm on the strength of reports that it was soon to move to the big board. American & Foreign Power Warrants lost 2 points and Electric Power & Light Warrants 6. American Gas & Electric, Standard Gas & Light and Northern States Power "A" yielded about 3 each.

Some of the early favorites suffered rather severely.

Driver Harris, Columbia Pictures, National Aviation, Douglas Aircraft and Technicolor were soft. Cities Service was very active but declined below 31, although showing support cancelled all but a quarter point of the loss. Vacuum Oil, Cosden, Lion, Gulf States and Humble were down one to three points.

Goldman Sachs trading was soft, sliding down to 26, another new minimum. Trans-America, United Founders were also heavy, but their net losses were fractional.

LITTLE CHANGE NOTED IN WEEK'S HOG TRADE

Prices Are Generally Steady With Some Strength in Spots.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., June 7.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)—Heavy receipts and lower prices, which affected most classes to a greater or lesser extent, were the features of the week's cattle trade. Compared with one week ago steers under 1100 sold steady, other steers 25c lower, spots off more; fat light mixed yearlings and heifers steady, all others 25@50c lower; cows 50@75c lower; cutters and bulls, 25@50c lower; low cutters 25c lower; vealers 75c higher; top for week 1000-lb. yearling steers absorbing $12.50, 1285-lb matured steers, $12.40, heavy steers 1143-lb (bs), $12.10; 577-lb heifers, $11.75; 621-lb mixed yearlings, $11.50; cows, $8.50; medium bulls, $7.50; vealers, $11.75. Steers averaging 1115 to 1456 lbs scored $11.75, $12 and $12.10, while those scaling 1391 and 1303 lbs brought $11.15 and $11.75; steers averaging 1398 to 1725 lbs ranged from $10.10 to $12.40, bulk $11 to $11.50. Steers scaling 1103 to 1194 lbs ranged from $9.60 to $12, bulk $10.15@11.00; lightweight steers, which were much in evidence, ranged from $8 to $12.50; bulk, $8@9; bulk of short fed steers, $9.50@11.75; most fat steers scored $10.75@12; most fat mixed yearlings and heifers cashed at $10 to $10.75; medium dehorning large 3 $8.75@9.75; cows mostly $6.75@7.75; low cutters $4@5; top sausage bulls registered $7.50. Friday's best vealers brought $11.75; bulk and top prices the corresponding week last year were as follows: Steers $12.75 to $14.50, bulk $13.50; fat mixed yearlings and heifers, $13.50 to $14.25; top, $14.50; medium finished heifers, $12.50 to $13; cows, $9 to $10.50 top, $12; low cutters, $6 to $7; top sausage bulls, $9.75; top vealers, $13.25; most stocker and feeder steers, $9.50@12; $12.

Hog Trade Balanced.

Supplies were nicely balanced to the demand for hogs with the result that most of the marketing sessions were short and snappy and prices fluctuated very little. Buyers appeared quite willing to operate at the prevailing terms, but any higher asking prices met with resistance from the start and top price did not get over $10.45 until Saturday. Compared with the close of last week, values are generally steady, with some strength in spots. Easter's fresh pork trade showed some improvement on Monday, but after that the price tendency was mostly downward, especially on loins. Saturday's market was a highly selective affair and resulted in much unevenness, with a two-way trend to values. Local packers were indifferent purchasers, but shippers showed their willingness to take the best light hogs at 5c to 10c higher prices, operating slowly, however, on the rank and file at about steady. Hogs scaling over 210 pounds ruled steady to 5c lower. A top of $10.50 was reached by one load of outstanding uniform 170 to 180 pound averages, this being the highest price paid since April 1930. Most 160 to 210 pound weights cashed at $10.35 and $10.40, with odd lots $10.45. A load of 230-pound butchers scored at $10.20, with odd lots of 250 to 260 pounds stopping at $10.25. Light lights were quotable from $10.30 to $10.35, with desirable 190s at $10 to $10.25. Packing sows ranged from $9.15 to $9.35, the bulk landing at $9.25.

Sheep Run Heavy.

Sheep receipts this week approximated 33,000, compared with actual arrivals of 12,124 for four marketing days of the previous week and 33,952 the corresponding week last year. During the first four days salable supplies of sheep and lambs entered an increase of about 150 per cent over the same days a week ago and this large volume inexorably put buyers in a bearish mood. With everything in favor for the buyers a price slashing campaign was started and salesmen were left defenseless in a buyers' market. New crop lambs, down to the scared $11.75, graded as $1.00 to $1.50 on medium to choice grades, while common throwouts suffered a $2.00 loss. One crop lambs were quoted as yearlings, were scarce but declined sharply in sympathy. Sheep were discounted $1.00. Buyers also carried on a campaign to sort out the buck lambs at a discount of $1.00 below quotations on comparable grade ewe and wether lambs and were successful in their efforts. A few decks of choice graded lambs went on shipping account during the week at $12.75 and $13.00, the practical decline to packers being $12.75. At the close of the week bulk of good lambs to packers commanded $11.50, one deck good to choice $11.75 and small lots of strictly choice offerings reaching $12.25. Medium grade kinds went largely at $9.50 to $10.00, some $10.50 with common throwouts bulked at $7.00. Good buck lambs brought $10.50. Fat ewes bulked late at $3.50 to $4.00, with culls downward to $1.00. Bucks turned at $3.00. On Tuesday one deck of road clipped yearlings sold at $9.50.

Horses and Mules.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, June 7.—There was a light week's run of approximately 320 head of horses and mules. Majority of the supply embraced horses and demand centered in good chunks and colts. Desirable mules in the various classes were also in request.

FAVORABLE VIEW OF WEATHER SENDS COTTON PRICES UP

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The favorable view of present weather conditions in the South and the progress now being made by the crop over most of the belt were reflected in a further decline in cotton prices here today. The selling was not particularly active or aggressive but the relatively light demand was attributed chiefly to covering and closing quotations were at about the lowest. The new October contract sold off to 14.03c and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady at new declines of 14 to 18 points. The opening was steady at a decline of 6 to 11 points under selling promoted by reports of good rains in the Eastern belt and continued complaints of a poor demand for cotton goods. There was enough weekend covering to absorb the initial offerings, but the demand was supplied on slight bulges and prices soon eased again under continued selling and liquidation by commission houses and local sources. Some trade buying of July developed around 15.16c, which believed to represent Eastern market and check the decline around 14.34c for the old October and 14.44c for the new December contract. No rallying power developed, however, and buying appeared to be restricted by a favorable view of the weather forecast.

Owing to the Whitsuntide holidays, the Liverpool cotton spot and future markets reopen until next Tuesday morning. Other markets abroad were closed also as there was no influence to be received in that direction either way. Weather reports indicated general showers of rains in the Eastern belt over the week-end with temperatures mostly favorable. A detailed private crop summary from Canada indicated that despite 1930 early seeding, the growth of cotton to date is apparently not further advanced than was the case a year ago.

Week-end forecasts of continued fair weather in Canada were also received, but with the New York stock market closing depressed the predictions had little or no effect toward altering the downward trend of wheat.

Corn and oats receded with wheat and as a result beneficial rains. There were estimated at 66,000 bales against 97,000 last year.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The cottonseed oil market was moderately active today but with trading confined almost wholly to the local element. The tone was of a shade easier as support was generally poor while a few selling orders were brought in by the weakness in cottons and stocks and the easiness in lard and outside markets. Closing prices were 5 to 7 points net lower on old contracts and unchanged to 8 points lower on the new. Sales were 2900 barrels of old and 3 tanks or 450 barrels of new, making 3350 barrels for the day. Prime crude 7.00; prime summer yellow old, spot, 8.30; July closed 8.47; Sept. 8.64; Oct. 8.62; Dec. 8.40; new, Dec. 8.07; Jan. 8.15; March 8.32.

BEAR MARKET IN WHEAT FOLLOWS STOCK BREAK

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—A bear market developed in grain today, swing largely to securities breaking to new low quotations for the year. The upset in Stock Exchange prices caught the wheat market at a time when holidays abroad had temporarily blocked export demand. In addition, weather conditions today were auspicious for the maturing and harvesting domestic winter wheat, and indications pointed to only a moderate reduction in the visible wheat supply on Monday.

With rallying power at a low ebb, wheat prices closed unsteady, ⅝c to 1c a bushel under yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅝c to ¾c off, oats ⅝c to ¾c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15c.

Although many traders were primed for an effort to lift wheat values today, notwithstanding the bearish influences, spring commission houses and local sources. Some trade buying of July developed around 15.16c, which believed to represent Eastern market and check the decline around 14.34c for the old October and 14.44c for the new December contract. No rallying power developed, however, and buying appeared to be restricted by a favorable view of the weather forecast.

Owing to the Whitsuntide holidays, the Liverpool cotton spot and future markets reopen until next Tuesday morning. Other markets abroad were closed also as there was no influence to be received in that direction either way. Weather reports indicated general showers of rains in the Eastern belt over the week-end with temperatures mostly favorable. A detailed private crop summary from Canada indicated that despite 1930 early seeding, the growth of cotton to date is apparently not further advanced than was the case a year ago.

Week-end forecasts of continued fair weather in Canada were also received, but with the New York stock market closing depressed the predictions had little or no effect toward altering the downward trend of wheat.

Corn and oats receded with wheat and as a result beneficial rains. There were estimated at 66,000 bales against 97,000 last year.

Provisions declined, responsive to setbacks in the value of hogs.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Reports now confirmed show that some large purchases of raw silk have been made for future delivery at the lowest price quoted for 2 years or more. Silk goods are selling moderately. There have been some low offerings of printed and woven wash fabrics with sales active on sheer lines. Other cotton goods ended the week quiet. Men's business is coming forward on men's suiting fabrics for fall cutting. Additional business was done on tropical suitings which have been benefited by hot weather. Burlap shipments for May were substantially higher than in April. The market is quiet.

Virginia Hemenway And Paul Goessling Wed at Cathedral

Bride Is Attended at Ceremony by Miss Celeste Hammett as Maid of Honor—Dozen Weddings Yesterday.

THAT June is the month of marriages has again been attested with at least a dozen ceremonies of interest on yesterday's social calendar.

One of the largest and most important was that of Miss Virginia Hemenway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Donaldson Hemenway, 25 Kingsbury place, and Paul Goessling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Val J. Goessling, 4016 Flora boulevard. They were married at noon in the St. Louis Cathedral by Father Frank Gerst, S. J., a cousin of the bridegroom. The bridal party walked on an aisle covering of pale pink canvas instead of the usual white, to a flower banked altar and sacristy lighted by a hundred cathedral tapers. Tall vases of Easter lilies and white spring flowers filled the chancel, with palms as a background.

The bride was attended by Miss Celeste Hammett as maid of honor, and by Miss Susie Singleton, Mrs. William Donaldson Hemenway Jr., Miss Margaret Ryan, Miss Grace Switzer, Miss Gladys Muckerman and Miss Elizabeth Clark, bridesmaids. Gerald Goessling was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were Truman Walker, Rembert La Beaume, David Teasdale, Jack Gordon, William Donaldson Hemenway Jr., Palmer Livingston Clarkson, Charles Rublcam and Edwin Wagner.

Miss Hammett was gowned in pale blue tulle veiling matching blue satin, in contrast to the peach tinted frocks of the bridesmaids who wore similar models over peach satin. The sleeveless gowns were designed with round necks revealing the unusual satin bodices cut with an inverted V in front sloping to the waist at the back. The long skirts were covered with tiny ruffles and were finished at the waist with satin bows having long tulle-ruffled streamers. Their flowers were Tailsman roses and blue larkspur in arm boquets. The attendants wore medium-sized tulle hats to correspond with their costumes, turned off the face and banded with satin tied into bows cut through the brims.

The bride wore an unusually beautiful gown of heavy egg-shell tinted satin. By intricate designing the satin was drawn over the hips to form fullness at the side, and extended into a wide five-yard train, joining the back panel and so forming three petals at the end. The slender princesse bodice was fashioned almost entirely of a rose point lace yoke set into the gown and reaching an appliqued point below the waist. There were long lace and satin sleeves. The bride wore an egg shell tulle veil with cut out motifs of the rosepoint appliqued from the end and bordering it to her hair where it was held with a rose point band. She wore Mr. Goessling's gift, a diamond bracelet and carried lilies of the valley.

A reception for 500 guests followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hemenway. The wedding party received their guests in the living room where Talisman and Joanna Hill roses were combined with blue larkspur for the decoration. Later they were seated for the bridal luncheon at a flower bedecked table seating 28 guests. Space for the guests was augmented by a huge marquee built adjoining the house and decorated to simulate the out-of-doors. The ceiling was painted ciel blue and the latticed walls were covered with asparagus fern and evergreen with clusters of white blossoms.

Mr. and Mrs. Goessling will be away a month on their wedding trip and will live for the summer at the Hemenway country home near Alton, Mo.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Hill's School, Great Barrington, Mass. She is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Goessling is a graduate of Washington University and is a member of the University Club.

MISS MARY HOWELL BETTS, daughter of Mrs. John Frederick Betts, 5150 Westminster place, became the bride yesterday morning of Howard Hanson Hubbell, son of Harry P. Hubbell, 5934 Clemens avenue, at a quiet informal ceremony at Christ Church Cathedral. Bishop William Scarlett read the marriage service at 10 o'clock in the presence of the immediate families. There were no attendants and the arrangements were simple because of mourning. The bride wore a blue flowered crepe gown, made simply on the prevailing long lines with a circular ruffle trimming the bodice and forming short sleeves. A hat of blue hair braid completed her costume, and she wore a corsage of yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbell departed immediately for a motor trip through the West, and will make their home at 319 Taylor avenue.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and Vassar College, and following her debut several years ago became a member of the Junior League. Mr. Hubbell is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and served four years in the United States Navy. He is a member of the University Club and the Missouri Athletic Association.

Alice Meysenburg Bride of F. R. Lynch

BEFORE an improvised altar of bride's roses and spring flowers lighted by tall cathedral tapers, Miss Alice Reynolds Meysenburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Meysenburg of Oak Park, Ill., formerly of St. Louis, was married last night to Frederick Rommel Lynch, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Lynch of Pittsburg. The ceremony took place at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Delia Carr Meysenburg, 5082 Washington boulevard, the Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt officiating. The altar was arranged in a bay window in the library, with feathery asparagus fern as a background, and bouquets of snapdragon and larkspur about the room.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and duchesse lace, fashioned along princesse lines, with lace outlining the V neck and forming caps over the quaint puff sleeves. The train was built into the skirt. She wore a tulle veil attached to a duchesse lace cap, and carried white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Maurine Smith of Dayton, O., the maid of honor, wore an evening gown of pale yellow taffeta, made with a tight basque and long full skirt. Her flowers were yellow sunburst roses. Miss Mary Meysenburg, her sister's bridesmaid, was gowned in pale blue taffeta, made Colonial style, with tiny cap sleeves. Inserts of matching tulle trimmed the long full skirt, and she carried a Colonial nosegay. Miss Mary Helen England of Pittsburg, a niece of the bridegroom, as flower girl, wore a long Colonial frock of pink organdie. Allen Lynch of Pittsburg was best man and Eugene Wallace Van Cleave, a cousin of the bride of Santa Fe, N. M., formerly of St. Louis, groomsman.

A reception followed the ceremony. The table in the dining room was adorned with pink flowers combined with greenery arranged on a lace cloth veiling pale green. For additional space the garden was especially lighted and the punch tables were out-of-doors.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will go to Montreal and later Quebec to embark on the Saguenay River trip for their honeymoon, and upon their return will make their home in Youngstown, O., where Mr. Lynch is associated with Butler, Beadling & Co., brokers.

The out-of-town guests included Mrs. Lynch Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Miles H. England, parents of the flower girl, of Pittsburg; Mrs. Josephine Haynes of Shreveport,

West-Ward Engagement

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS H. WEST JR., of Providence, R. I., formerly of St. Louis, gave a dinner last night at their home, 2 George street, to announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Ann West, and Robert Ward of New Haven, Conn. Miss West is a member of the junior class at Vassar College, and Mr. Ward will be graduated from Yale this month.

Mr. and Mrs. West were in St. Louis for the wedding of their niece, Miss Anne West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West, 48 Westmoreland place, and Clinton L. Whittemore Jr., which took place May 28. They were the guests of Mr. West's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones.

Party for Miss Reyburn

MISS MILDRED DUKER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Duker, 7128 Kingsbury boulevard, entertained at luncheon yesterday at her parents' home in honor of Miss Mary Reyburn, who with her mother, Mrs. Amedee V. Rayburn, 4634 Lindell boulevard, and Mrs. Theodore Benoist of Hotel Chase, will sail Friday for a summer in Europe.

The centerpiece was a miniature steamship surrounded by pink and white spring flowers and the table was lighted by ivory tapers. The guests were Miss Janet Leahy, Miss Rosemary Klinefelter, Miss Rosemary McKeown, Miss Rosemary Hynes, Miss Elizabeth Woolley, Miss Nellie Wagner, Miss Grace Meyer, Miss Delphine Loire, Miss Celeste Nouss, Miss Mariam Garthoffner, Miss Virginia Gibbons, Miss Stella Koetter, Miss Gladys Hughes and Miss Paulina Alonso of Porto Rico.

Miss Reyburn is a student at Maryville College of the Sacred Heart.

JUNE WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS

AT a bridge luncheon in Hannibal last Tuesday Miss Harriet Stillwell announced the engagement of Miss Helen Norton Stewart of St. Louis and William T. Simpson Jr. Miss Stewart is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stewart of 6344 Southwood avenue and Mr. Simpson is a son of Mr. W. T. Simpson of New Orleans, La.

The luncheon was attended by 11 of Miss Stewart's friends. The announcement was made at the bridge tables where the names of the prospective bride and bridegroom were written on the queen and king of hearts.

Miss Stewart attended Washington University where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Mr. Simpson attended Miami University and the University of Missouri. He is a member of the Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Delta Chi fraternities, and is also a member of the Advertising Club.

The wedding will take place on Saturday afternoon, June 28, at the Trinity Episcopal Church in Hannibal. Miss Stewart will be attended by her sisters, Miss Virginia Stewart, who recently announced her engagement to Harold M. Chase, and Miss Isabelle Stewart and Miss Harriet Stillwell. Raymond T. Cole will serve as best man, and Harold R. Towles and Sanford F. Conley of Columbia, will act as groomsmen.

A reception will follow at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Walter Norton. After a wedding trip to New York and Canada, Mr. Simpson and his bride will make their home in St. Louis.

The engagement of Miss Dorothy Mudd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Mudd, 5357 Bartmer avenue, and Jere F. Sheehan, 6239 Washington boulevard, was announced yesterday at a tea for 75 guests, given by Mrs. Mudd at her home.

Miss Mudd is a graduate of the Visitation Academy and received her bachelor of arts degree at the Maryville College of the Sacred Heart last Thursday. She served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball a year ago and in the same capacity at the St. Louis University prom April 24.

Mr. Sheehan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Sheehan.

Preparations and parties are in progress for the wedding of Miss Audre Buchanan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Buchanan, 7019 West Park avenue, and J. M. Loomis, son of Mrs. J. B. Sparks of Kansas City, Mo. The marriage will take place at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon Friday, at the Church of the Unity, the Rev. Dr. George R. Dodson officiating.

Miss Dorothy Deibel will be maid of honor, and Allaine Alvis of East St. Louis, flower girl. Robert E. Hecker of Kansas City, Mo., will be best man.

Miss Buchanan will graduate this week from Washington University, and is a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Mr. Loomis attended Washington University and is a member of Kappa Sigma.

Several St. Louisans attended the wedding at Winnetka, Ill., last week of Miss Jeanette Lutz and Dr. William Grosvenor Cummings. Miss Lutz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Lutz, 750 Bittersweet place, Chicago. Her father is a vice president of the Chicago & Alton Railroad. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Damon S. Cummings of Minneapolis.

The wedding took place at Christ Church, Winnetka, and a reception at the Evanston Golf Club followed. Dr. and Mrs. Cummings will be at home after July 1 at Hubbard Woods, Ill. Among those attending the wedding from St. Louis were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hynes and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McNamara.

Invitations have been received for the wedding of Miss Emma May Dorris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Preston Dorris, 4904 Fountain avenue and Harold Howard Giger, 4368 Lindell boulevard, son of Henry Milton Giger of Elmdale, Kan., Saturday evening, June 21, at 8:30 o'clock at Kingshighway Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Dr. Arnold Hilmar Lowe officiating.

Miss Madeline Closs will be maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Marcella Chapman, Mrs. Albert Kurrus, Mrs. William Mansfield and Mrs. Paul F. Keatinge of Chicago. John Berg will serve as best man. The groomsmen and ushers will be: Bartlett Adams, William Bierman, William Mansfield, Thomas Oebbart and Preston and Krenning Dorris, brothers of the bride-elect. Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dorris.

Miss Dorris is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Giger is a graduate of the University of Kansas and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Among the June weddings will be that of Miss Sarah Gwynne Whitley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Whitley, 5733 Westminster place, and Charles E. Rubicam Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Rubicam, 6225 McPherson avenue. The ceremony will take place Thursday, June 26, at 5:50 p. m., in the Church of St. Michael and St. George, with a wedding dinner for the family and wedding party at the home of Mr. Rubicam's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hamilton Jr., 6443 Wydown boulevard.

Miss Mary Louise Hammett will be the bride's only attendant. Edward Wagner will be best man. Among the out-of-town guests will be Mrs. W. N. Palmer of Memphis, Tenn., grandmother of Miss Whitley and her two aunts, Mrs. John Tucker of Memphis, and Mrs. Anthony Shelton of Covington, Tenn.

TO the long list of yesterday's interesting weddings is added that of Miss Ivy Newman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Newman, 6450 Cecil avenue, and Henry Bernard Steele Jr., son of Mrs. H. B. Steele of Chicago, which took place last night at the Newman home. The bridal party descended a smilax garlanded staircase and passed through a ribbon tied aisle to the living room, where a floral altar of larkspur and white summer blossoms lighted with tapers in branched candelabra provided a background for the ceremony. Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman of Temple Israel officiated.

The bride wore a gown of dotted brussels net veiling cream satin and trimmed with duchesse lace. There was a close fitting bodice with lace outlining the V neck, and long net sleeves edged with lace at the hand. The long circular skirt was adorned with a peplum at the hips, and three tiered lace flounces. The lace adorned Mrs. Newman's wedding gown, and the bridal veil of cream net bordered with lace, was also worn by her mother as a bride. It was attached to a simple cap of net. The bride carried lilies of the valley.

Miss Florence Binswanger of Chicago, niece of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a princesse gown of aquamarine net and carried yellow roses. Eric Newman, brother of the bride, was best man, and the ushers were Alan Joseph, Richard Rubel, Bauer Rothschild and Alex Despres.

A marquee was built into the garden to give additional space to serve the guests at the dinner following the ceremony. The table for the bridal party was decorated with white and pale yellow roses, and there were smaller tables for the guests. The house was lighted with amber flood lights, and the sides of the marquee were raised to afford a view of the rose garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Steele will spend their honeymoon in the West, and will make their home in Chicago.

Mrs. Steele Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Binswanger, parents of the maid of honor, and another daughter, Miss Marion, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mack, were among the members of Mr. Steele's family here for the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and Wellesley College. Mr. Steele attended Dartmouth College, where he was on the staff of the Jack-O-Lantern, the college publication.

MR. AND MRS. EDWIN A. KIESELHORST, 12 Southmoor, will depart today for Norwalk, Conn., to attend the wedding of their son, Wallace W. Kieselhorst, and Miss Mary Clifton Mathews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clifton Mathews of New York and Norwalk, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mathews next Saturday. The marriage will take place at First Congregational Church of Norwalk at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. A reception will follow at the Mathews home.

Mr. Kieselhorst was graduated from Yale University and the Harvard Schol of Business Administration, and Miss Mathews was graduated from Wells College.

Earl H. Kieselhorst and Sidney B. Kieselhorst will be groomsmen for their brother. Sidney B. Kieselhorst will be graduated from Yale University this month. William Moulton of St. Louis will also be an attendant of the bridegroom.

The wedding of Miss Janet Moll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kurt V. Moll, 5636 Waterman avenue, and Charles Elmer Barba Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elmer Barba of Boston, Mass., will take place Saturday, June 14, at Weekepaugh, R. I., where Miss Moll's grandmother, Mrs. N. F. Niederlander, 5315 Waterman avenue, has a summer home. The ceremony will take place in the afternoon at the Presbyterian Church at Weekepaugh and will be followed by a wedding dinner at Mrs. Niederlander's country home. A cousin of the prospective bride, Miss Blanche Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Cooper, 6843 Kingsbury boulevard, will be maid of honor.

Following the honeymoon Mr. Barba and his bride will reside in New Haven, Conn. Miss Moll was graduated from Mary Institute and Smith College with the class of 1929. Mr. Barba is a graduaet of Lehigh University. Mrs. Moll, Miss Moll, Mrs. Niederlander and Miss Cooper left last week by motor for the East. Mr. Moll and a son, Richard, will leave Thursday to be present at the wedding.

Miss Cathryn Pape, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Pape of Country Life Acres on the Clayton road, has selected Wednesday, June 18, as the date for her marriage to Wilson Dart Childs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jewett Childs, 6178 Kingsbury place. The wedding will take place in the garden of the Pape home, the Rev. William B. Lampe of the West Presbyterian Church officiating.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Ruth Pape, as maid of honor; another sister, Miss Madeline Pape, Miss Dorcas Eichler, Miss Edna Sutter, Miss Ruth Ruenzi and Miss Hortense Lucks will be bridesmaids. Charles Jewett Childs Jr. will be best man for his brother and the following will serve as groomsmen: Denny Nelson, Leland Campbell, Jack Wagner, Russel Graves and Jesse Stevens. About 200 guests will be invited to the wedding.

Several parties for Miss Pape will be given in the next fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Weiss, 1221A Montclair avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude, to Max Kornblet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kornblet, 5836 Terry avenue, June 1.

A CHARMING garden wedding took place at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Miss Marie Lucks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lucks, became the bride of Arthur Michael Macheca Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Macheca, 5518 Cabanne avenue, the Rev. Charleville Benoist Faris of the chapel of the Annuncita officiating at the Lucks home, 65 Fair Oaks.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Hortense Lucks as maid of honor; Miss Theo Lucks, a younger sister; Miss Claire Macheca, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Martha Carter, Miss Majorie Grable and Miss Ruth Carr as bridesmaids. Anthony Boyce was best man and William Bartling, John Raleigh, Roland Connell, Henry Oetter and Milton Monroe served as groomsmen.

An aisle of white ivy covered posts topped by boxes of pink and blue flowers garlanded together with white satin ribbon, led to an improvised altar arranged in the center of the English garden. The early June roses and blossoming shrubs were augmented by masses of pink and blue hydrangeas placed at intervals about the lawns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of deep ivory satin. The bodice was designed with a round neckline and long tight sleeves of the satin, horizontal rows of shirring marking the high waistline at the front. The circular skirt reached the floor and the long silver-lined train depended from the low placed hip line. Her tulle veil of old ivory was draped simply with a madonna band and adorned in ivory tinted orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a French blue lace gown with a round draped neckline and a long close fitting bodice. The skirt of two circular flounces of the lace was ankle length and swept the floor at the back. She carried African daisies. Miss Theo Lucks wore a frock of ivory moire and tulle. The full flounced skirt of tulle with a tulle train fell over the underskirt of moire trimmed in an immense flat bow of pink and blue ribbon. The other bridesmaids wore gowns of shell tinted tulle over moire. A double cape of tulle outlined the deep round neckline and circular layers of tulle fashioned the long full skirt. A train of the moire fell from the left side of the extremely high waistline which was defined by a narrow belt fastened with a rhinestone buckle. They all wore medium sized off-the-face hats of net to match their costumes and carried French market baskets half filled with blue cornflowers.

Joan and Jean Harms, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin C. Harms, as flower girls wore frocks of a delicate shade of pink batiste and carried baskets of flowers in various shades of blue. Mrs. Lucks wore a flowered chiffon gown in which brown and yellow predominated and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Macheca was gowned in beige lace and her flowers were gardenias worn in a shoulder corsage. The bride gave her attendants seed pearl evening bags and Mr. Macheca presented silver brushes to his best man and groomsmen.

Three hundred guests were present at the wedding and reception. The bridal party was seated at a U shaped table decorated in silver cornucopias filled with lilies of the valley and cream roses and lighted by ivory tapers in crystal candelabra.

Following the honeymoon in the North Mr and and Mrs. Macheca will make their home at 622 Forest court where they have leased an apartment

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Mildred Louise Epstein, 5641 Clemens avenue, to Gus Memser, 5666 Clemens avenue. After a honeymoon in the North they will live at 5621 Enright avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dugan, 6275 Enright avenue, University City, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Rosalie Marie, to Robert M. Conlon of New Orleans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Conlon of St. Louis. The wedding is to take place July 16.

Dr. and Mrs. Louis N. Temm of 5895 Romaine place announce the marriage of their daughter, Thelma, to Edward J. Heisterberg of Los Angeles, Cal., Wednesday, May 28. Mr. Heisterberg is a graduate of the University of Southern California and a member of Kappa Psi Medical Fraternity.

THE wedding of Miss Mary Eugenia Gowans, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Walter Gowans, 6013 Cates avenue, and Harris Ashley Farland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius H. Farland of Chicago, took place last night at the West Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. William B. Lampe officiating. The ceremony was performed before a background of palms and ferns and smilax garlands, with a central decoration of white peonies and gladioli flanked by tall standards of cathedral tapers.

The bride was preceded to the altar by five attendants, whose filmy net gowns presented a rainbow effect. The matron of honor, Mrs. Herbert A. Strain, sister of the bride, wore pale green, and the bridesmaids were Miss Alice Seidel, in yellow; Miss June Miltenberger, turquoise blue; Miss Helen Brod, pink, and Mrs. Southwood Bell Morse, pale blue. The frocks were designed with close fitting bodices having boleros edged with pleating, and long skirts touching the floor finished with two flounces, similarly edged, and caught with bow-knots of velvet ribbon; there were short puffed sleeves. Tucked off-the-face hats of net to match the gowns completed the costumes. The attendants carried spring flowers.

The bride wore a sleeveless gown of ivory satin, fitting closely to the figure and flaring to the floor from the knees. The bodice was fashioned with a bolero, and a low placed peplum adorned the skirt. She wore a satin court train, lined with flesh tinted chiffon, from her shoulders. Her tulle veil, caught at the end with orange blossoms, depended from a wreath of the blossoms, with a cluster at one side. She carried roses and lilies of the valley.

Dorothy Jane Blackstad, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Blackstad, and Herbert Arthur Strain Jr., nephew of the bride, were flower girl and ring bearer, respectively. The flower girl wore a cream-colored tucked net and lace frock veiling orchid satin, with a net hat, and carried spring flowers. Roy Farland, Chicago, was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were Robert Bray of Chicago, Herbert A. Strain, Southwood Bell Morse, Julius Seidel, Benjamin Sharp and William Blackstad.

A supper for the bridal party, immediately following the ceremony, was given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Gowans. There the decorations were white roses and greenery.

Mr. and Mrs. Farland will make their home in Chicago after a wedding trip.

The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius H. Farland, parents of the bridegroom; Miss Eleanor Campbell, also of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Bass of Oklahoma City, Ok.

The bride is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Farland is a graduate of Culver Military Academy and De Pauw University. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi.

Miss Rachel Metcalfe and Mr. Carlos F. Hurd will be married Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. at St. Augustine's Episcopal church, Bruno avenue and Blendon place. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Frank Maples in the presence of immediate relatives. Mr. Hurd and his bride will go to the Gulf Coast for a short stay, and will live for a time at his present home, 5653 Vernon avenue.

Miss Metcalfe is the daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Metcalfe, 3324 Greenwood boulevard, Maplewood, and the late Dr. Nelson Metcalfe. Mr. Hurd was married in 1906 to Miss Katherine Cordell, who died two years ago last month, leaving three children, two of whom are grown.

The engagement of Miss Frances Jean Peck, formerly of St. Louis, to Wyllys King Ambler of Kirkwood was recently announced at Miss Peck's home. Miss Peck is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson P. Peck, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., now of Buffalo, N. Y. She attended The Principia here for seven years and last year graduated from Columbia University. Mr. Ambler is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Ambler of Kirkwood, a descendant of the Virginia Amblers of Colonial Jamestown and is identified with old St. Louis. He is a grandson of the late Mr. Wylls King and of Mrs. Lucy Graham King. He is a graduate of Park College, Missouri, and is the Western correspondent of the City Bank Farmers' Trust Co. of New York.

Miss Eleanor Holt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Holt, 626 Forest court, has selected next Saturday for her marriage to Christopher A. Dalton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dalton, 7355 Westmoreland drive. The wedding will take place at the home of Miss Holt's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Tipton, 6325 Ellenwood avenue, the Rev. Francis J. O'Connor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church officiating. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Miss Emily Holt will be her cousin's only attendant and Donald Dalton will serve as his brother's best man. Peggy Anne McElwee and Holt Tipton, young cousins of the bride-to-be, will be flower girl and ring bearer, respectively.

Miss Holt attended Washington University and is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority and Mr. Dalton is a graduate of the same university. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Mr. Dalton and his bride will make their home in St. Louis.

The wedding of Miss Charlotte Bowmar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bowmar, 370 Gray avenue, Webster Groves, and Chester Alden Mead, Granville, O., took place Tuesday at 4:30 p. m. at the First Congregational Church, Webster Groves, the Rev. George M. Gibson Jr. officiating.

Miss Katherine Fishback of Versailles, Ky, attended her cousin as maid of honor; Miss Helen Mead, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Josephine Smith of Webster Groves were bridesmaids. Mary Lou Stephenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ray Stephenson of Webster Groves, was flower girl. Paul Williams of Cleveland was best man, and George Fishback Jr. of Versailles and John Gilchrist of Webster Groves were groomsmen.

The bridal party stood before an altar of greenry, with two large baskets of white gladioli at either side. The altar was illuminated by cathedral tapers and the chancel was banked with palms and ferns.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of rose point lace made with a round neck line and cap sleeves. A full tulle skirt fell from the hip-length lace bodice and her tulle veil was arranged with a lace cap. She carried a Colonial bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore pink flowered net gown made with a fit-

Mrs. Hoover to Stay Indefinitely at Camp

WASHINGTON, June 7.

WITH Mrs. Hoover in the President's camp on the Rapidan River in Virginia for an indefinite stay, and Miss Mary Randolph, official White House social secretary, permanently resigned from her position, it looks very much like a long social drought has struck in Washington, at least as far as the White House is concerned.

The reason given concerning the resignation of Miss Randolph was that she had "nothing to do." Mrs. Hoover, however, retains the services of Miss Ruth Fessler and Miss Hall, both of whom she took to the mansion with her and who have always looked after her social correspondence.

Accompanying Mrs. Hoover to the camp were her physician, a nurse, several friends and servants.

When Mrs. Warren G. Harding left the White House as its mistress, she left a large social staff established in the rooms on the ground floor of the mansion. President Coolidge dropped about a dozen stenographers, typists and other clerks in the social secretary's office at one time. There has been but little work for Miss Randolph since the close of the official social program.

Several large weddings to take place this week were two today. One was that of Miss Helen Hoyle Herr, daughter of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. John Knowles Herr, U. S. A., to Lieut. Willard A. Holbrook Jr., son of Maj.-Gen. Willard A. Holbrook, at Bethlehem chapel of the Washington Cathedral.

Lieut. High B. Waddell, aid to Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, was chosen for the duties of best man. Following the ceremony, a reception was scheduled at the Army War College. The other was that of Miss Caroline Charlotte Roebling to Alexander Burton Hagner at high noon in St. John's Church on Lafayette Square.

The British Embassy in Washington is the scene of an everyday moving day which began June 1 and will continue for several weeks.

Already the majestic drawing rooms of the new Embassy building are assuming a stately grandeur and the extensive "orchard" and and gardens which include a swimming pool, tennis and squash courts and other facilities for recreation, are nearing completion.

ted bodice and a full circular skirt edged in rose tulle. The bridesmaids' gowns were also of pink-flowered net over green with green tulle trimming. They wore matching off-the-face hairbraid hats and carried pink larkspur and pink roses. The flower girl wore a frock of pink taffeta and apple green tulle and a pink hairbraid hat. She carried a basket of rose petals.

A reception was held in the garden of the Bowmar home. The bridal table was decorated in baskets of white larkspur and lighted by ivory candles in silver candelabra.

Activities of Women's Clubs

advisory board; Mrs. E. W. Broemmelseik delegate-at-large and Mrs. Evelyn F. Heerich, press chairman.

This chapter will study the English novel during the coming season, beginning with the antecedents of the modern novel, which will include Greek romances; the Elizabethan contributions; the final preparatory stages of the novel and its characteristics and the evolution of the modern novel. During the season novels from the various periods will be read and discussed.

Woman's Auxiliary No. 29, to Typographical Union No. 8, will hold its monthly business meeting at 1 o'clock Tuesday at headquarters, 3745 West Pine boulevard. At this meeting there will be the yearly election of a delegate to represent the St. Louis Auxiliary at the convention of the Woman's International Auxiliary to the International Typographical Union, which will be held at Houston, Tex., in September. Following the business session there will be a social hour, the program being under the direction of Mrs. W. J. Cavanaugh.

Members of the Harmony Literary Club were entertained at the Brownson Hotel, Maplewood, by Mrs. M. S. Keator, Friday, May 30. Mrs. Gordon Z. Davis reviewed, "These are My Jewels" written by L. B. Campbell and Mrs. W. W. Sanders read Percy Marks' short story, "Nancy Disposes."

This being the last meeting for this club year the following officers were installed by Mrs. George Springmeyer: President, Mrs. W. W. Sanders; first vice president, Mrs. A. F. Davis; second vice president, Mrs. Mary Emmett; recording secretary, Mrs. W. F. Storck; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Charles Parker; treasurer, Mrs. Gordon Z. Davis; auditor, Mrs. E. R. Nyroth. The following were appointed on the Eighth District Committee: Mrs. W. C. Markham, American citizenship; Mrs. George Springmeyer, American homes; Mrs. C. M. McMahon, applied education; Mrs. T. R. McCully, international relations; Mrs. W. F. Storck, legislative; Mrs. George Griffith, art; Mrs. M. S. Keator, music; Mrs. George Malone, literature and reciprocity; Mrs. Gordon Z. Davis, press and publicity.

The regular monthly meeting of the Republican Woman's Club will take place at the Statler Hotel, Thursday at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. N. P. Zimmer, president, will preside and the speaker will be Jules R. Field, secretary to Mayor Miller.

Cornelia Greene Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met at the country home, "Red Gables," of Mrs. J. W. Jamison, the regent, last Wednesday. In addition to a full attendance of the membership and a number of guests two new members were present, Mrs. Robert Wycoff Jr. and Mrs. Leslie Knight.

Mrs. Jamison was made State chairman of transportation and Mrs. Moss vice chairman of national defense for the Western district, comprising Missouri and eight other states.

Delegates and alternates to the State conference to be held in Kansas City, Oct. 15 to 17, were elected as follows: Mrs. J. W. Jamison and Mrs. W. H. Dickey, delegates; alternates, Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, Mrs. J. T. Moss, Mrs. F. A. Ruf, Mrs. W. Viley, Mrs. J. Lowis, Mrs. A. Christophel, Mrs. S. F. Silence, Mrs. H. Kreitz, Mrs. H. O'Bannon and Miss E. Matlaek, Miss Jane Lowis and Miss M. Gibney.

The club frolic of the Ever Ready Club at Midland Valley Country Club, Monday, brought to a close a season of philanthropic work. Mrs. M. A. Berg presided, assisted by Mrs. H. J. Mudd, chairman of program. The following officers were installed by Mrs. F. H. Littlefield, president of the Eighth district: Mrs. M. A. Berg, president; Mrs. J. B. Blomberg, vice president; Mrs. J. H. Krabbe, recording secretary; Mrs. Jay Komar, corresponding secretary; Miss Louise Arp, treasurer. Mrs. Elvira Diamond, president of the Musical Research Club, accompanied by Miss Florence Luther at the piano, sang a group of songs and conducted the community singing. Bridge completed the entertainment.

Athena Delphian Chapter will meet at the home of Miss Rosalie Nutt Wednesday evening. Italian opera will be discussed. Papers will be read as follows: "Beginnings of the Opera," and "Early Italian Opera," Miss Rosalie Nutt; "Operas of Rossini," Mrs. Ione Gilmore; "Verdi's Musical Career," Miss Ann Knickman; "Aida" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," Miss Ann Gerock; "Puccini," Miss Amy Collins and "Madame Butterfly," Miss Lida Collins.

The five local chapters of the Daughters of the Confederacy will unite in a program commemorating the birth of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Jefferson Memorial, and the following women will sponsor the program: Mrs. R. W. Thomas, Mrs. William J. Goldsworthy, Mrs. Charles J. McBride and Mrs. J. M. Sloan.

Mrs. David Woods, president of the Confederate Dames Chapter, will pay a tribute to the memory of Gen. R. D. Falls, commander of Camp No. 731 United Confederate Veterans, who died recently.

Miss Dorothy Easton Shelly, a granddaughter of J. R. Weber, a Confederate veteran, will sing several songs. She was graduated recently in art and music at Ward Belmont and will sing over the radio during the summer.

Immediately after the exercises the audience will march to the Confederate monument in Forest Park where appropriate services will follow and flowers will be placed on the monument in memory of Jefferson Davis.

Radio Sets Improved, No Radical Change Seen

Trend Toward Tone Control on Panel, Increased Selectivity and Even Better Tone Quality Observed at Trade Show in Atlantic City

Developments at the annual radio Trade Show, held in Atlantic City, N. J., the past week, included:

Nothing revolutionary or even radical in receivers, speakers or tubes, but numerous definite improvements.

Use of automatic volume control devices in many sets. These are designed to prevent fading.

Use of tone control on receiver panels by a number of lines.

Development of a double detection system in two lines of receivers.

Turning by one prominent manufacturer from push pull to use 2 type 45 tubes in parallel in the last audio stage.

Appearance of television kits and receivers for experimenters. Announcement of plans for television broadcasts by several stations, including one in New Jersey and two in Chicago for their benefit. But nothing was shown to indicate that practical television in the home will be much nearer than a year ago.

Showing of A C pentode tubes for r. f. and audio output stages by three manufacturers. But it was apparent that these tubes must be further developed considerably before they were ready for the set manufacturers. No prominent manufacturer displayed any receiver using a pentode tube.

Announcement of three new tubes for battery-operated sets. These are designed for low battery drain and are of a two-volt "dry" current type. They include a screen grid, a general purpose and an output tube.

Provision for adding a remote control device to a receiver or, in a few cases, inclusion of all the remote control mechanism, except the operating box, in the cabinet.

Use in a number of sets of devices for quickly and easily tuning in desired stations at the peak of reception.

Dominance of the AC screen grid tube in radio frequency stages and increasing use of it as a power detector.

General use of dynamic speakers, with a few of the low-priced sets using the inductor type.

Continuing trend to 45 type tubes in push pull audio. Some of the more costly sets have 50 type tubes in the final audio stage.

Generally finer and more artistic cabinets, the average furniture being much more beautiful than ever before. The highboy leads in popularity, though lowboy and semi-highboy cabinets are numerous. Almost every manufacturer now makes a radio-phonograph model, with several holding the price well under $200. Several makers have models of the suitcase compact type at less than $100.

Definite improvement of receiver reductions through development

Radio Sets Improved, No Radical Change Seen

Trend Toward Tone Control on Panel, Increased Selectivity and Even Better Tone Quality Observed at Trade Show in Atlantic City.

Developments at the annual radio Trade Show, held in Atlantic City, N. J., the past week, included:

Nothing revolutionary or even radical in receivers, speakers or tubes, but numerous definite improvements.

Use of automatic volume control devices in many sets. These are designed to prevent fading.

Use of tone control on receiver panels by a number of lines.

Development of a double detection system in two lines of receivers.

Turning by one prominent manufacturer from push pull to use of 2 type 45 tubes in parallel in the last audio stage.

Appearance of television kits and receivers for experimenters. Announcement of plans for television broadcasts by several stations, including one in New Jersey and two in Chicago for their benefit. But nothing was shown to indicate that practical television in the home was much nearer than a year ago.

Showing of A C pentode tubes for r. f. and audio output stage by three manufacturers. But it was apparent that these tubes must be developed considerably before they were ready for the set manufacturers. No prominent manufacturer displayed any receiver using a pentode tube.

Announcement of three new tubes for battery-operated sets. These are designed for low battery drain and are of a two-volt "A" current type. They include a screen grid, a general purpose and an output tube.

Provision for adding a remote control device to a receiver or, in a few cases, inclusion of all the remote control mechanism, except the operating box, in the cabinet.

Use in a number of sets of devices for quickly and easily tuning in desired stations at the peak of reception.

Dominance of the AC screen grid tube in radio frequency stages and increasing use of it as a power detector.

General use of dynamic speakers, with a few of the low-priced sets using the inductor type.

Continuing trend to 45 type tubes in push pull audio. Some of the more costly sets have 50 type tubes in the final audio stage.

Generally finer and more artistic cabinets, the average furniture being much more beautiful than ever before. The highboy leads in popularity, though lowboy and semi-highboy cabinets are numerous. Almost every manufacturer now makes a radio-phonograph model, with several holding the price well under $200. Several makers have models of the small compact type at less than $100.

Definite improvement of reproductions through development of

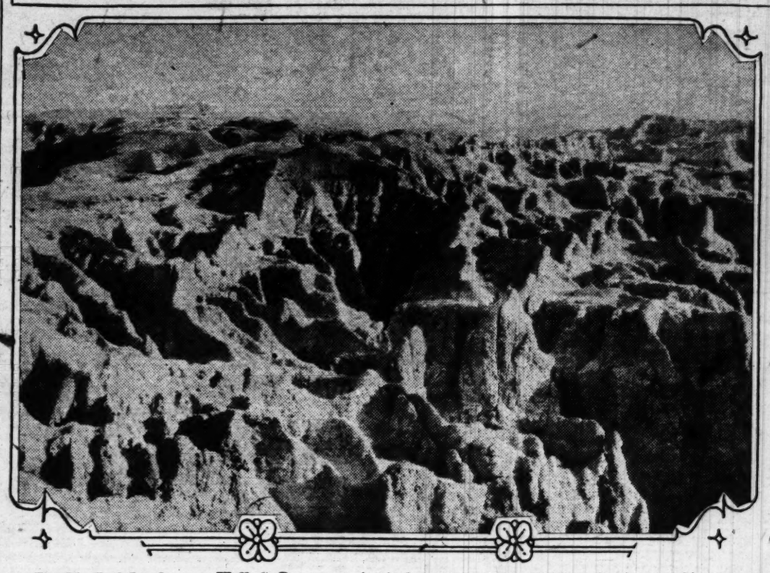
Custer Battlefield Highway a Scenic Route to Black Hills Region



The Big Bad Lands, near Wall, S. D., a scene typical of this section of the country traversed in the tour.

A view of the Custer Highway near Sturgis, S. D.

Route is through Des Moines, Ia., by way of Columbia, Mo.—Bad Lands of South Dakota may be reached by a short side trip—Highway leads ultimately to Yellowstone and Glacier Parks.

AN automobile trip into the Black Hills country of South Dakota, famous for its splendid scenery, by way of the Custer Battlefield Highway, which is being extended to reach from St. Louis to Glacier National Park, will appeal to many persons as an ideal summer vacation tour. The journey as far as Rapid City, S. D., alone may be made in two weeks without hurrying and with ample time to enjoy the mountains and lakes which make this section so attractive.

Or, if one plans a longer vacation, the Custer Highway may be followed as far as Yellowstone National Park, the Big Horn Mountains of Wyoming, or Glacier Park itself. The highway, improved within the last few years so that it is now entirely graded and 70 per cent surface, is growing in favor with St. Louisans, who formerly used more conventional routes to get to the Northwest.

From St. Louis, the route lies over U. S. Highway 40, across the Missouri River at St. Charles, and on to Columbia, Mo. From Columbia, the motorist takes U. S. 63 north to Moberly. Between St. Louis and Moberly the highway is paved. Continuing on No. 63, one travels over concrete, gravel and dirt roads to Des Moines. Between Moberly and Macon, it is half paved and half graveled; from Macon to Kirksville, it is concrete, except for a five and one-half-mile dirt detour at Atlanta; from Kirksville, the road is gravel to the Iowa State line, dirt to Bloomfield and paved to the Iowa capital.

Follows Old Glacier Trail.

On the last stretch, between Broomfield and Des Moines, two other short detours will be encountered, at Pelta and near Monroe, but they are kept in generally good condition.

In the main, the route from Columbia to Des Moines closely follows the line of the old Glacier Trail, used by prospectors, fur-hunters and explorers half a century and more ago. The Columbia-Des Moines route is recommended by the Automobile Club.

Once in Des Moines, which is about 385 miles from St. Louis, the Custer Highway is plainly marked to Rapid City, approximately 760 miles distant. However, for a visit to the Bad Lands, a weirdly beautiful region, one should leave the highway at Kadoka, S. D., and take Dakota Highway No. 40 west to Interior, eastern boundary point of the Bad Lands.

Returning to the Custer Highway, one passes on into Rapid City. The Black Hills region and Custer State Park, lie south and west of this point and may be reached by a short drive. Harney Peak, rising 7524 feet, offers an enchanting view. From a forest lookout station one may look down on an ocean of billowing clouds, that partly obscure the valleys and canyons far below. To the east is that other sentinel of the Black Hills, Mount Rushmore, on whose prow-shaped summit the sculptor, Gutzon Borglum, is chiseling the figures of Washington, Lincoln, Jefferson and Roosevelt.

Down the valley to the south lies Sylvan Lake, its shores silhouetted against an immediate background of towering pines, spruce and balsam and, further away, towering mountain walls. It was here that President Coolidge established his summer White House one year.

One of the trout streams that make the Black Hills region attractive to vacation motorists.

Below Harney Peak one of the most picturesque roads in the United States circles into the range, winding back and forth, touching the mountain tops above Sylvan Lake and proceeding westward through the Needles, a rocky formation of innumerable lofty spires. The grades on this highway, built at a cost of $80,000 a mile, have been reduced to a maximum of 6 per cent.

Cascades, rapids and tumbling falls furnish ever-changing vistas on the trip down to the plains. Deep canyons lend an atmosphere of solitude.

Familiar signs warning against trespassing which you may encounter elsewhere in the country are lacking in Custer State Park. Instead, guide posts will direct you to the better trout streams or the many camping grounds. Much of the surrounding area is under the control of the Government Forest Service, and anyone who obeys the game laws, watches his fire and keeps his camp clean will not be molested.

It is only a step, so to speak, from the park to Wind Cave, near Hot Springs, and to Spearfish Canyon, Lead, Deadwood, Sturgis, Belle Fourche, or any of the other famous outposts of the old West.

Near Lead lies what has been called the richest 100 square miles in America, containing the Homestake gold mines. More than $200,000,000 in gold has been produced by these mines in their 54 years of existence.

It was just that long ago that General Custer and his Seventh U. S. Cavalry, accompanied by geologists and newspapermen, were sent to investigate reports that a band of roving prospectors had discovered gold. Since then hundreds of thousands of adventurers, miners, merchants and, later, tourists, have visited this area.

Outlook for June In Auto Industry More Favorable

Price Cuts and New Models This Summer Add to Optimistic Note.

By MARC BRAUN.

DETROIT, Mich., June 7.—The outlook for the automobile business in June is regarded by automobile men here as more encouraging than at any time in the past month. In fact, it is predicted that June and possibly July will be the year's peak production periods.

Recent price reductions by two companies add to the optimistic note. The fact that several other companies are getting ready to announce new models soon also has had a stimulating effect on the industry.

Two new six-cylinder series will be announced in July and production is about to start for dealer delivery. One well established company is reported to be preparing to switch to straight eights, while another manufacturer whose six-cylinder cars have enjoyed considerable popularity is reported to be preparing to introduce three lines of straight eights, with one of them, possibly, a front-drive machine.

While May output figures are not complete, it is indicated that the total will be substantially greater than in April. The two low-priced cars are expected to duplicate their achievement of the previous month, when their sales represented the bulk of the total.

Several companies have announced their May shipments as follows: Hupmobile, 3348 cars, compared with 3248 in April and 3212 in March; Buick, 9374 Buicks and Marquettes, compared with 9601 in April and 8670 in March; Reo, 1759 passenger cars and trucks, as against 2647 in April and 2870 in March.

The Hudson Motor Co. shipped 12,779 Hudson and Essex cars. For the first five months of 1930 the company's shipments totaled 81,741 units, compared with 55,490 units shipped during the last five months of 1929.

Graham-Paige's output was 4787 cars, as against 6764 in April and 4937 in March. Last year's production totaled 11,677 units.

Shipments of Chrysler motors last month totaled 40,644 units, as compared with 36,491 in April and 42,780 in March. Compared to conditions at the end of May, 1929, the field stocks now in the hands of dealers show a reduction of 29 per cent, officials say. It was due principally to the new line of Plymouth cars that last month's business gained materially. A total of 14,077 of these units were shipped, as compared with 5205 in April.

It is unofficially reported that Ford's May production for the United States will show a gain of approximately 15 per cent over the April total of 179,149 units.

There is much comment in local circles regarding the announce-

Direct Route Is Still Available To Jerome, Mo.

Resort Area on Gasconade Is Known for Outdoor Sports, Fishing.

One of the most popular weekend and summer resort centers near St. Louis—Jerome, Mo., on the Gasconade River—may be reached by a direct route from this city for at least another month, or until U. S. Highway No. 66 is closed from Rolla to Lebanon for paving purposes, the Resort and Travel Bureau of the Post-Dispatch is advised. This section offers almost every form of outdoor sport, including excellent fishing. According to word received Friday from the State Game and Fish Department, the waters of the Gasconade and Maries streams, the latter also near the Jerome District, are ideal for fishing, being neither too clear nor too muddy.

St. Louisans who motor to Jerome within the next 30 days may disregard signs posted at St. James and Rolla, warning motorists that No. 66 is entirely closed to traffic. The highway is closed only to through traffic to Springfield, Mo., and is still open as far as Arlington, where the Jerome road branches off to the north.

Consequently, the detour that will ultimately have to be used, from St. James over Highway 68 to Vichy, No. 63 to Vienna and No. 28 to Dixon, thence by a country road to Jerome, need not be taken for the time being.

Placards and maps posted by the Highway Department at St. James and Rolla have given rise to considerable misunderstanding on the part of persons desiring to Travel Into Ozarks Gains More Than 10 Per Cent

In Spite of Large Construction Program, Vacationists May Reach Resort Area With Little Inconvenience Due to Detours, Automobile Club Reports.

Even though Missouri is building $30,000,000 worth of new roads this summer, the vacationist can reach his favorite spot in the resort centers of the State with a minimum of trouble and inconvenience due to detours for construction work, according to a survey just completed by the travel department of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

Vacation motor travel into Missouri is expected to break all records this year, according to the Auto Club. Fifty million Americans are expected to go on tour this summer and Missouri, at the cross roads, so to speak, and with a national reputation for good roads, will attract a large share of this travel. Last fall figures compiled by the Auto Club and the State Highway Department showed that 6,643,350 tourists drove into Missouri.

The normal increase in tourist travel is recognized by the A. A. A. as being 10 per cent each year, based on several years of observation. Records kept by the Auto Club together with data received from affiliated clubs indicate that the trend of travel to Missouri, largely on account of the Ozarks, is increasing much more than 10 per cent a year. A recent letter from Bert Vanderwarf, manager of the travel bureau of the Chicago Motor Club, declared that within the last two years their inquiries for Ozark information have more than doubled.

Detour on No. 66.

The principal detour in Missouri affecting St. Louis motorists, vacation bound, is that on United States Highway 66, but arrangements for both local and through traffic have been so well worked out by the highway department, that inconvenience is almost negligible. The detour announced extends from Rolla to Lebanon, the main travel detour being south from Rolla on No. 63 to Cabool and via No. 60 into Springfield.

However, local traffic and resorters driving to spots in the Gasconade River resort section may use another route from St. James to Vichy, Vienna, Dixon and the Ozark Trail. Local travel also is permitted to use No. 66 itself as far south as Waynesville. This section of 66 is soon to be closed, however, and access to the Gasconade River country will be by way of the Ozark Trail as outlined.

For the most part, construction work that necessitates detours is well under way in the northern half of the State. A large part of the $30,000,000 program is being carried out on new locations that involve no detouring from present routes.

Detour on Hannibal Route.

On U. S. 61 north from St. Louis to Hannibal, a 35-mile gravel, all-weather detour has recently been established between the St. Charles County line and Eolia. On U. S. 61 south, a detour that has been in effect for the last year between Farmington and Fredericktown has just been lifted for passenger travel. For a short distance at the Farmington end, there is still a

Lincoln Salon At Brodhead Co. Attracts Crowd

Standard and Custom Cars in Display Marked by Exhibit of Gauges.

Thousands of persons visited the Lincoln salon at the Brodhead Co. showroom, 3401 Washington boulevard, during the week, attracted by a display of 16 standard and custom motor cars, as well as mechanical exhibits, which included a set of Johannson precision gauges, used in the factories of the Ford Motor Co. The salon will remain open until tomorrow evening.

A Le Baron all-weather cabriolet, with a delivered price here of $7137, was the most expensive of the 16 models shown. It shared attention with a maroon sport touring car, upholstered in red leather. In the cabriolet the front part of the top is removable, giving the appearance of a town car.

Other models included a Dietrich convertible coupe, in which the front seats fold forward, to permit easy entrance, and the rear seats fold up so that luggage may be carried inside; a two-window Judkins berline in gray; a Willoughby limousine, largest car in the salon, with covered auxiliary seats, and a Derham convertible phaeton, in brown, with sloping rear end. The latter car, one of the most striking of the display, has its windows protected by fabric coverings at the sides, which join the top in a symmetrical line.

Opera seats take the place of the usual auxiliary seats in several of the sedan models. Of particular note, in this regard, was the five-passenger sedan, colored cobalt blue, with black body panels and mouldings and broadcloth upholstery. The seats in this machine disappear completely into the back of the front seat.

Features of the Lincolns this year are the instrument panels of stainless steel, with convenient grouping of the various dials and gauges. Colors, too, are more striking, in innumerable combinations.

The gauge display, in charge of E. C. Callahan of the Lincoln Motor Co., included a master set, built by Charles E. Johannson, Swedish engineer, 30 years ago, and used as a standard of measurement. Accuracy to a millionth of an inch is made possible in the construction of the various parts of the Lincoln car, through use of the Johannson gauges.

Moon Distributers Contract to Sell Ruxton Front Drive

Following the recent announcement by Helm Walker, vice president in charge of sales for the Moon Motor Car Co., that the Ruxton front-wheel-drive motor car will shortly be in full production in the St. Louis plant of the company, the company's sales organization has contracted for the distribution of the Ruxton.

"In taking over the Ruxton distributing organization will possess one of the most complete lines of modern automobiles. Present plans are to continue production of the Windsor cars, thus giving prospective car buyers the choice of a modern rear wheel drive car or a straight eight front-wheel-drive motor car of established reputation."

Walker also stated that interest outside of the present dealers organization is growing. Within the past week, many dealers and distributers from all sections of the country have visited the factory and inspected the Ruxton models now available.

Two weeks ago an 8½-mile gravel detour on U. S. 50 at Linn was removed, opening up No. 50 for fast travel through to Jefferson City. Missouri 21 leading to Arcadia and Van Buren, is open all the way; No. 40, leading to Kansas City, is open all the way, and No. 30, likewise, is open into the foothills of the Ozark.

Highway Maps Covering Nation Are Distributed

THE Resort and Travel Bureau of the Post-Dispatch has for distribution an excellent 50-page auto trails atlas of the United States and Eastern Canada, showing the condition and numbers of highways and mileage between towns. The price is 50 cents, and 60 cents, if mailed.

St. Louis and vicinity maps show all towns, roads, rivers, streams, lakes and other details within a radius of 50 miles of St. Louis. They sell for 20 cents, 24 cents if mailed. Individual State maps are 10 cents, and 12 cents mailed.

City guides giving the location of streets and street car and bus lines, churches, hospitals, theaters, office buildings and containing a map of the city, sell for 25 and 30 cents.

Maps of St. Louis and the suburbs, showing the streets of St. Louis, East St. Louis, Madison, Venice, Clayton, Ferguson, Kirkwood, Webster Groves and University City, sell for 40 and 45 cents.

Unique Tests Given Flywheel Assembly of De Soto '6' and '8'

Of the many tests of materials and parts of De Soto sixes and straight eights, there is one that is believed to be unique in the world of automotive engineering. This is the test of flywheel and clutch assemblies. Samples taken direct from the assembly line are literally exploded in testing the safety, quality and homogeneity of the metal.

The modern automobile engine imposes on certain parts stresses that did not exist when speeds were not so high. Only during the last few years has the speed of the engine reached the point where it would have been possible to tear apart even a very poor flywheel casting as the result of the centrifugal force generated by the rotation of the crankshaft.

Today, with engines running up to 3500 revolutions per minute and higher, this is one of the things that must be guarded against. Material must be specified that has ample strength to overcome the effects of centrifugal force. Since this force goes up with the square of the speed, it is easy to see that an increase of 1000 revolutions per minute in the speed of an engine means a great deal in the stresses imposed on the metal in the flywheel.

A testing well has been built in which sample De Soto flywheels can be whirled at tremendously high speeds to see that they are provided with ample safety factors. In order to protect the safety of those conducting the tests, the flywheel is placed in a well or pit beneath the level of the floor and there is a steel cover plate bolted over it while it is tested.

One of the Firestone gum-dipped balloon tires that carried a race car to victory at Indianapolis on Decoration day is on display at Johnston Bros. Tire & Service Co., Compton avenue and Washington boulevard, a local Firestone dealer.

"Motorista," said W. G. Sabine, Firestone branch manager, "are showing more than usual interest in results of the annual speedway classic this year, because every car entered in the race was equipped with the same size tires that are used on thousands of cars in this city."

According to Sabine, this year's race was the most strenuous in many years and imposed unusually severe wear on the tires, which were of heavy duty construction.

"This race marks the eleventh consecutive time that Firestone tires were on the car of the winner," Sabine stated. He pointed out that all race drivers, because of the nature of their dangerous undertaking, are given the privilege of choosing their own tires.

Seeks Standard Eye Tests for Every Motorist

Organization to Launch Campaign to Reduce Accident Toll.

Plans for a nationwide effort to secure a standard test for motor vehicle drivers as a means of reducing the heavy toll of accidents in which defective vision is a factor are being made by the Eyesight Conservation Council, it is announced by Proctor L. Dougherty, director of the council.

Creation of a wider confidence in motor vehicle transportation, improvement of service to the public, and a large economic saving are among the main purposes of this program, according to Dougherty. Co-operation of business, industrial, civic and social organizations will be sought and efforts made to secure effective state and municipal legislation on a nationally uniform scale.

A survey conducted in 68 cities with populations of more than 100,000 has disclosed the need of immediate steps, Dougherty says, to set up some form of reasonable test which will safeguard drivers and the public. Increased speed on highways, growing density of traffic in cities and the necessity for closer observance of traffic signals have resulted in demands upon the vision of drivers which were unforeseen a few years ago.

The ineffectiveness of such eyesight tests as are now compulsory in many states is indicated, Dougherty points out, by the lack of uniformity in the regulations. A 50 per cent impairment in the vision of a motor vehicle driver is presumably as dangerous to the public in one state, the country holds, as it is in another, making scientific facts the essential basis of any new uniform law.

Co-operation with state, municipal and town groups in efforts to secure uniform eyesight tests will be made possible, Dougherty asserts, by the new expansion plan of the council. This includes establishment of local councils which will be made up of representatives of the medical profession, the schools, business clubs, industries, the newspapers and the various and humanitarian agencies.

These councils will study motor conditions at first hand and work for town, municipal and state regulation under a uniform plan. The council, whose officers and directors include engineers, educators and state and Federal officials, is represented on the Committee on Uniformity of Laws and Regulations of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety.

Speed and Power Of Willys "6" Matched by Beauty

In the Willys six de luxe sedan, Willys-Overland has again demonstrated what can be expected when master craftsmen are given full sway in the production of a motor car. The 65 horsepower development and speed attainment of 72 miles an hour of this new automobile are matched by a beauty of design and attention to detail usually found only in cars selling above the $1000 class.

A decided streamline effect has been attained by the trim narrow radiator, low sweeping body lines and carefully tailored rear quarters. Power is suggested in every line and this is upheld by exhaustive tests in which performance comparable only with that of much more expensive cars was obtained.

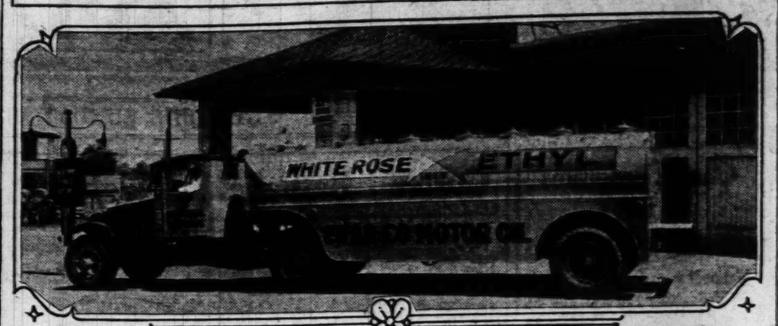
From dead stop, the de luxe sedan, with its 65 horsepower engine, flashes into movement that may be extended from 5 to 50 miles an hour in 21 seconds. It is capable of a speed of 48 miles an hour in second and 72 miles in high, assuring mastery of any traffic emergency.

Wire wheels are standard equipment on this model, with the spare wheel and tire mounted in the right front fender well. Trunk rack also is included.

Motor Rplacements.

Approximately 2,616,269 cars and trucks of the 5,358,414 motor vehicles produced in the United States in 1929 replaced cars scrapped or laid aside. There are more than 26,500,000 cars and trucks in use in the country and the depreciation of this equipment should be large enough to create an annual replacement demand of as many as 3,900,000 vehicles.

One of the Largest Gasoline Delivery Trucks in Use Here



ATTACHED to a 3-ton White tractor, this tank trailer, with a capacity of 2600 gallons of gasoline, is operated by the National Refining Co. for wholesale distribution purposes. With its seven tank compartments, the over-all length of the carrier is 34 feet, six inches.

Marmon's One-Year Warranty Applies Also to Roosevelt

One of the features of the new Marmon one-year guarantee is that it gives the same degree of protection to the purchaser of a Marmon-Roosevelt eight in the $1000 price range as to the buyer of a Marmon big eight in the $3000 to $5000 class.

The same warranty, covering workmanship and materials for a period of a full year of 12,000 miles of driving, is extended on each of the four Marmon straight-eights that comprise the company's 1930 line. No matter in what price range a Marmon is selected, the purchaser is assured of full warranty coverage backed by one of the largest eight-cylinder manufacturers in the industry.

"Because of the Marmon policy of concentration on the straight-eight principle, plus the advantages of quantity production, it is possible to put materials of similar quality and durability into each of the four Marmon lines," says Thomas E. Jarrard, Marmon general sales director. "Moreover, it is possible to manufacture each of these lines with equal precision and attention to workmanship and details."

3 Chryslers Place In Mexico City to Puebla Road Races

Winning two firsts and a third in three classes, Chrysler cars established a unique record in the recent Mexico City to Puebla road races, regarded as an outstanding events in Mexican automotive circles.

Over 74 miles of winding mountain roads, a Chrysler "77" roadster was driven in one hour, nine minutes and 21 seconds, clipping three minutes, 2 2.5 seconds off the previous record time held by a Chrysler "72." Only the final stretch of 18 miles permits sustained fast driving, and here the "77" registered a top speed approximately 75 miles an hour to sprint to the finish first.

A Chrysler "66" won the Class B event by traveling the same distance in one hour, 16 minutes and 51 seconds, attaining a top speed of approximately 72 miles an hour on level stretches.

In the Class C event, a Chrysler six sedan finished third with a recorded time of one hour, 22 minutes and 53 seconds, setting a maximum speed of more than 68 miles an hour on the home stretch.

"77"

PRICES SMASHED
SAVE $200 to $350

The most sweeping price reductions in all Chrysler history are now in effect on the current Chrysler "77" models.

Chrysler "77" prices have been reduced $200 to $350 because a new Chrysler model will be introduced in midsummer to take the place of the "77".

Other current Chrysler models—"70", "66" and new Chrysler Six—are being continued without change.

Reductions as large as $200 to $350 on so fine a car as the Chrysler "77" will quickly dispose of the available supply—so don't delay.

Your present car will be accepted in trade. Chrysler's liberal financing facilities are available.

Praises Record Of Front-Drive Racing Machine

First Time This Principle Has Won at Indianapolis, Ruxton Designer Says.

When Billy Arnold, a comparative novice in the automobile racing game, flashed his front wheel drive car across teh finish line in a fraction less than record time at the recetn Indianapolis 500-mile race, the front drive principle in motoring was given tremendous impetus, according to William J. Of the race, Muller said: "The outstanding significance of the clinching victory of the front drive car this year was the more direct competition between the front and rear drive principles than has been possible heretofore. In the past few years, the 500-mile race was more or less confined to specially designed racers upon which thousands of dollars had been spent in order to secure maximum performance and mechanical perfection.

"The 1930 race was entirely different. A decided trend toward the stock car was evidenced, for under the brilliant array of identifying names representing the racers, were found many cars of popular make, embodying but few changes from stock construction. this fact, to my mind, is that which lends the greatest value to the victory of the front drive principle."

Local Reo Salesman Wins Sales Contest, Trip to Indianapolis

In competition with Reo salesmen all over the United States, R. H. Randolph, a member of the retail sales staff of the Steiner-Fahrenkrog Automobile Co., St. Louis Reo distributer, won first prize in a sales contest covering a 45-day period, ending May 15. As a result, Randolph was given a bonus, a trip to the Indianapolis race and to the Reo factory at Lansing, Mich., with all expenses paid.

R. H. Randolph

In all, more than $20,000 in prizes was awarded in the contest. The class in which the local salesman won first place was for pleasure car salesmen selling the highest net volume in dollars of new cars.

Randolph left St. Louis May 28, arriving in Indianapolis the next morning, where he was the guest of the Reo company for two days. Following the race he went to Lansing, where he was provided with a car and given a trip through Northern Michigan over the week-end. On his return to Lansing, he was the guest of officials at the factory, and taken through the entire plant.

The fleet left Phoenix, Ariz., on May 22 and is heading for United States tire headquarters at Detroit. It is scheduled to arrive here from Kansas City, Mo., and proceed to Indianapolis, Ind.

Fewer Accidents In Germany.

Automobile drivers are improving in skill and care in Germany. Only 27,159 traffic accidents were recorded in Berlin in 1929, as compared with 27,601 in 1928.

Says Cars Require Regular Inspection For Week-End Trips

"Get the maximum pleasure out of your motor car this summer by enjoying a smooth, comfortable ride over all kinds of roads. Now is the time to check your car to see that little pleasure trips over the week-end, or vacation motor trips do not result in aching and tired muscles, thus ruining an otherwise happy holiday"

This advice is given by H. C. Merry, local Gabriel distributer. In sounding his warning about proper preparations for motor trips, Merry pointed out that few motorists fully appreciate the many contributing factors to a truly comfortable ride.

"When a car is not giving the kind of a comfortable ride that the owner thinks it should, the blame is often attributed to the shock absorbers," he stated. "The fact of the matter is," he pointed out, "that springs, shackles, tire inflation and seat cushions all affect the car's riding."

"Rough roads, weather, dirt, rust and accidents are always at work to interfere with the kind of a comfortable ride that the car was originally designed tot give."

Truck Distributers Discuss Legislation And Elect Officers

Legislation affecting the truck and hauling business that will come before the next session of the Missouri Legislature, in January, 1931, was discussed at a meeting of the Commercial Car Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, Monday at Hotel Coronado. The bureau voted to co-operate with truck dealers of Kansas City, Springfield and other cities and with truck dealers' associations, in protecting mutual interests.

M. F. McCarty of the International Harvester Co. was elected chairman and J. B. Suttles of the White company, vice chairman. Robert E. Lee was made secretary. Meetings will be held the first Monday each month.

Representatives of 11 local distributers attended the meeting.

Nine of First 10 Cars In Indianapolis Race Carried Winfields

Both Down and Up-Draft Types of Carburetors Used in 500-Mile Event.

Of all the performance records made during the 500-mile grind of the Indianapolis race Decoration day, perhaps none is more noteworthy as that of the Winfield Carburetor Co. Of the 10 cars that finished in the money, the first nine were equipped with Winfield carburetors, according to word received by the Hoffman Magneto Co., 3143 Washington boulevard, St. Louis distributer.

After the first 10 cars finished, the four cars still in the running were flagged off the track. These also were Winfield-equipped.

The new Winfield series consist of up-draft and down-draft types of carburetors, depending on the construction of the engines. Of the first nine winning cars at Indianapolis three used the up-draft, and the others the down-draft.

Due to the new regulation prohibiting the use of super-chargers on the 366-inch motors, carburetion was of utmost importance in this year's race. The cars were heavier and required more power to hold them at a 100-mile speed, which was the average that Billy Arnold, the winner, attained in his Miller-Hartz front-drive straight eight.

The 16-cylinder car driven by Louie Meyer presented a problem when it came to carburetion. This was solved by using two Winfields, each feeding eight cylinders. In fact, according to McLaren-Sawyer, representative of the Winfield company in the territory which includes St. Louis, most of the cars entered in the race were equipped with two carburetors. In the case of the eights, two methods of manifolding were employed, one carburetor feeding either the four cylinders at the end of the block, or the two front and the two rear.

The absence of super-chargers was scarcely missed, according to Sawyer, who pointed out that the high speed jet of the Winfields enabled the drivers to "give it the gun" going into the curves with little possibility of the motor "cutting out."

"Cannon Ball" Baker Sets Speed Record In Indiana Run

Two events occurred at the annual national meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers the past week at French Lick Springs, Ind., entirely outside the routine of the various scheduled sessions. One was the exhibition of the first air-cooled Franklin ever sold and the other the record-breaking speed run of "Cannon Ball" Baker from Indianapolis in a Franklin sedan.

Exhibited side by side, the ancient Franklin runabout, which was built in 1902, and the modern air-cooled Franklin with its airplane-type engine, were closely inspected by the members of the S. A. E.

In the run from Indianapolis, which was made in a model 145 Franklin, Baker covered the 110 miles in one hour, 39 minutes and 40 seconds, averaging 66.2 miles an hour. This is the fastest time ever made between those two points by a stock car, it is said.

The phaeton was a special creation of Fleetwood, fitted with features of importance to its official passenger. In the tonneau, set against the rear of the front seat, was a panel carrying a chronometer with stop watch for measuring seconds and a special speedometer.

Traveling School For Mechanics Is Held in St. Louis

Studebaker Repairmen Given Thorough Instruction in Repair Work.

One of Studebaker's two traveling schools for mechanics, an innovation by which the various dealers and distributers over the country are spared the expense of sending their mechanics to the factory for instruction, completed a three weeks' stay in St. Louis last week. Under the auspices of Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., local Studebaker distributer, dealers throughout the St. Louis territory availed themselves of the opportunity of giving their shop and repair personnels the beneft of the most modern practical instruction.

The school was held on the second floor of the Lindburg company's used-car building at Locust and Cardinal avenues, daily. Attendance averaged 32 persons. H. E. Johnston, manager of field service schools for the Studebaker Corporation, was in charge of the classes, assisted by H. A. Goodbody. J. E. Youngblood, district service supervisor in the St. Louis territory, was also in attendance.

Accompanying the school, wherever it goes, is $8000 worth of equipment, with which every type of repair work is demonstrated. In each city visited, according to Johnston, some particular problem is presented which has proven troublesome for the mechanics. These problems are ironed out before the classes.

All parts of the chassis and motor are studied in the school. Each unit is taken apart and reassembled, including transmission, axles and engine blocks. Carburetors, magnetos and electrical equipment come next, following which the various special tools used in Studebaker servicing are demonstrated.

Accessories are studied next, including batteries, distributors and starting motors. Lubrication is next, following which actual trouble cases are taken up thoroughly, cases which mechanics have not been able to solve by themselves.

"We try to get away from guesswork at the owner's expense," Johnson declared. "In the past owners often have had to pay for the mechanic's blunders. When a car is driven into a shop for service, the diagnosis of the trouble should be just as accurate as that of a reputable physician or surgeon. Our schools prepare the mechanics to play specialist's roles."

The Studebaker schools are the only ones of their kind in the country, according to Johnston. Salaries of the mechanics are paid by their employers while the former are attending the classes.

Pikes Peak Ascent Still Regarded as Stiff Test for Autos

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., June 7.—An example of the tremendous strides made by engineers toward the goal of mechanical perfection in the motor car is provided daily on the Pikes Peak highway.

A few years ago a car that would scale the peak was acclaimed throughout the country, while today, thanks to the automotive engineer, a car's ability to perform ably and satisfactorily in the thin rarefied air and on the long steep ascents of the peak is more or less taken for granted.

Despite a greatly improved highway up the peak, the long continuous climb and the light air pressure in the high altitudes, which used to mean a boiling radiator and an engine too hot to make the grade, provide one of the severest tests in America of the mechanical condition of a car.

Even more outstanding than the performance of those tourist automobiles which make a single trip up the steep incline is the record of a fleet of trucks used to maintain the highway in constant repair. The fleet now in such service includes three Chevrolet sixes which see almost daily use up in the region above the cloud-levels.

Recently the fleet has been used to haul away huge mountains of snow to prepare the highway for the summer tourist travel. The route was expected to be opened early in June. With the snow cleared away, the fleet will continue in daily service doing maintenance and repair work on the highway.

The Chevrolets used in this work have been in operation for more than a year. That the cars are operating today with the same degree of economy and dependability as a year ago is a fitting tribute to the achievements to those engineers who work quietly behind the scenes in the interest of improved performance at lower cost.

New Motoring Laws.

Hitch-hiking and the practice of policemen, firemen and other persons in stopping automobiles to sell the occupants tickets to benefit affairs, are now made unlawful in New York State. The new law also forbids the erection of fake traffic signs near hot dog stands and prohibits the practice of college boys and others riding four and five in the front seat of a machine. Another provision makes it unlawful for a private automobile to follow closer than 500 feet any fire apparatus which is responding to an alarm "or to drive or stop any vehicle within the block where fire apparatus has stopped in answer to a fire alarm."

Factory Officials Supervise Traveling School

THE Studebaker field service school, in charge of H. E. Johnston and his assistant, H. A. Goodbody, which was held in St. Louis for three weeks, was attended by mechanics from every town in the St. Louis territory. One of the classes is shown. Goodbody and Johnston are at the left of the blackboard, with Arthur R. Lindburg, local Studebaker distributer, and A. R. Weber, his service manager, at the right.

W. S. Walsh Joins City Sales Force of Fisk Rubber Co.

William S. Walsh, for six years manager of the St. Louis branch of the Dunlop Tire & Rubber Co., has been appointed sales manager for the western half of the city by the Fisk Tire & Rubber Co.

W. S. Walsh.

According to H. L. Flood, manager of the local branch of Fisk, who made the appointment, Walsh has been in the tire business in St. Louis for the last 10 years. He is a native of the city. Walsh will aid in the merchandising program of the new Fisk "air-flight" tires.

ment by Chevrolet of the production of its seven millionth car. Chevrolet's steady and consistent growth is no less a "romance" of the industry than was the growth of Ford, many persons feel. It is perhaps even more remarkable when it is remembered that for many years the Dearborn manufacturer had practically no competition.

There is also much comment on the new American Austin car, now in production at Butler, Pa., for dealer delivery. It is said the retail price will be considerably lower than that of any other American car.

* * *

It is expected that the sale of automobile tires in May will show a decided increase over April and that it will continue to gain in June. Consumption of crude rubber has been increasing but is still far from the 1928 record.

* * *

It is regarded as not unlikely that one of the important features of the motor car in 1931 will be the automobile radio. While opinion as to its feasibility is still divided, there is an increasing demand for such appliances and a number of new models are being brought out.

* * *

The announced intention of British automobile manufacturers to establish branch plants in Canada is causing little concern in Detroit, at least, for the time being. Builders at present are more concerned over the effect of the proposed tariff measure, and are bending every effort to block its ultimate enactment.

Opening of the new Chrysler Building in New York last week was an event of more than local interest. It is a monument to Walter P. Chrysler, who less than 20 years ago was comparatively obscure figure in the industry. His rise in the last decade has been remarkable.

Salt Spray Tests For Dodge Parts In War on Rust

Much of the progress that Dodge Brothers' metallurgists have made in their war against rust has resulted from what is known as the salt-spray test. In a specially constructed booth, parts taken at random from factory production are submitted to the corrosive action of a mist of salt that represents in concentrated form what a car endures when used regularly at the seashore, where it is constantly exposed to the salt-laden ocean breezes.

The salt-spray test is one of the most interesting of all automotive experiments and is believed to be the most severe for plated or enameled parts that can be devised.

A saturated solution of sodium chloride or common salt is pumped under pressure through small jets or orifices which act as atomizers. The resulting spray is many times more penetrating than natural ocean mist, because of the greater content of salt in the solution and also because of the pressure built up in the booth. Although double doors, the outer one of immense thickness, are used on the salt-spray room, the penetrating solution finds its way through infinitesimal openings that otherwise would be imperceptible to the naked eye.

An unprotected piece of metal placed in this booth would be almost unrecognizable in the space of a few hours, according to the metallurgists in charge, yet parts for Dodge Brothers cars are required to meet these conditions for long periods of time without deterioration.

Prizes Awarded in Hudson-Essex Sales Contest During May

Awards in a sales contest conducted during May by the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson-Essex distributer, in its entire territory, were announced last week by R. C. Frampton, president. Prizes, aggregating more than $1000, consisted of cash and merchandise.

First prize was won by the Mount Vernon Hudson-Essex Co., Mount Vernon, Ill. Second went to the Baum-Jones Motor Co. of Overland; third to the Wedertz Motor Co. of Fort Mason, Ia., and fourth to the Tigue Sales Co. of Keokuk, Ia.

All of the winning dealers more than tripled their sales of Hudson and Essex cars over the previous five-week period, Frampton said.

Service Managers Elect Officers at Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Service Managers' Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, held following a dinner at the Gatesworth Hotel, May 29, was attended by 69 service managers.

Thomas E. Crosby, service manager of the Federal Truck Co. was elected chairman of the bureau. Crosby was formerly vice chairman.

Dolph Moore, service manager of the Lambert-Tigges Motor Co., was elected vice chairman and the following were named directors: Emil Weber of the Weber Implement & Auto Co., L. B. Stults of the West Side Buick Auto Co., and W. J. VandaGrift. VandaGrift was the retiring chairman. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, was elected managing director of the bureau.

Thousands of Elks To Motor to Annual Convention in East

There will be a material increase in the number of automobile tourists during the next few weeks, according to reports from the representatives of the Elks-Viking tour which is covering the country in the interests of the Elks national convention starting July 7 in Atlantic City, N. J.

It is expected that thousands of Elks and their families will make the pilgrimage to the sea coast resort in automobiles this year. A substantial part of this number has been influenced to combine the convention with a motor tour by the glowing reports of the tours now being made by the Elks' representatives in their Viking eights.

The four Elks-Viking tour cars have completed more than two-thirds of their scheduled trip and have visited Elks lodges throughout the entire Pacific Coast, far West, Central West and Great Lakes district. The tours are continuing through the southern part of the middle Atlantic and the New England states.

Per Capita Ownership of Cars.

There are now 26,501,443 registered motor vehicles in the United States, or one for every 4.5 persons in the country. California, with a total automobile registration of 1,974,341, leads all other states in per capita ownership of automobiles, there being 2.3 persons for each motor vehicle registered.

Carrying 15 Persons, Oakland Surmounts Steep Hill in "High"

Carrying 15 men whose combined weight almost equaled that of the car itself, an Oakland eight sedan recently made a remarkable "stunt" demonstration of high-gear pulling power on the famous Kettle Hill at Altoona, Pa.

Crowded inside and perched outside on fenders, bumpers and running boards, the passengers represented a dead weight of 2456 pounds which flattened the springs until the rear fenders touched the tires every time the car encountered a road bump.

Durant Announces Four-Door Coach to Sell at $750, F. O. B.

Durant dealers in St. Louis will shortly place on display the new four-door coach, the latest addition to the Durant line and the only car of its type on the market, according to R. T. Hodgkins, general sales manager. The factory list price on this car will be $750.

"Our factories are now in full production of the 6-14 coach, which has resulted from the urgent requests of many dealers and distributers and our own recognition of today's buying tendencies," Hodgkins said.

The new coach is calculated to appeal to those desiring the "town sedan" or "club sedan" type of car and at the same time meet the requirements of those motorists who think of coaches in terms of combination business and pleasure service. The car is really a sedan, the sole major change being elimination of the rear quarter windows. Hydraulic shock absorbers, upholstery fabrics, window regulators and most other details are the same as in the Durant 6-14 sedan.

Hodgkins cited statistics showing that 38 per cent of all cars sold last year under $1000 were coaches and that 31.4 per cent were sedans. Together these represent virtually 70 per cent of all automobiles sold under the $1000 mark, according to Hodgkins.

At St. L

Beginning tomorrow St. Louis will have another aerial passenger line operating on daily schedule. The new service will be operated to Fulton and Jefferson City by the Shelton-Jefferson Airways, Inc., of which W. Gentry Shelton Jr., is active head.

Two round trips daily, except Sundays, are scheduled, one plane stopping at Fulton and the other going through as an express. The fare is $10.85 one way, and $17.50 the round trip. Lockheed-Vega monoplanes seating four passengers and the pilot will be used. Departures from Lambert-St. Louis field will be 8 a. m., and 4 p. m. Arrivals will be at 10:50 a. m., and 6:30 p. m. Capt. Phil R. Love and Harry H. Knight are directors of the concern.

Curtiss-Wright Clubs.

The Curtiss-Wright Flying Club plan is being developed as a steady outlet for Moth training planes manufactured at the Curtiss-Robertson plant at Lambert-St. Louis field.

Since the club plan was announced less than a month ago eight clubs have been organized, five of which have purchased Moths and the sixth an OX-Robin. One of the organizations is the Woman's Club of Washington. A Curtiss-Wright Club is being organized here under the direction of Capt. Arch Johnston. It is also probable that a woman's club will be organized locally through the efforts of Mrs. John T. Milliken, Miss Laura Ingalls and Mrs. Rutledge Stewart, licensed pilots.

More Pilots Than Planes.

A current bulletin of the Department of Commerce shows that there are more licensed pilots than airplanes in the United States, all classes, number 11,499 pilots, as compared with 9678 licensed on identified planes. California leads all other states in both pilots and planes. Missouri is fifth in the number of planes with 503, and seventh in pilots with 384.

Parks Graduates 14.

Fourteen flying students were graduated by Parks Air College last week following written and flying tests. The graduates, who include three transport, nine limited commercial, and two private flyers are: Transport, Edward and Robert Dolan of Pottsville, Pa., brothers, and Thomas Livermore, Sarasota, Fla.; limited commercial, George Neudling Jr., 6021 Southingshighway, St. Louis, Leo Druif, Alton; Russell Davis, Centralia, Ill.; William G. Taylor, Hooner, Wis.; Joseph Dalton, Brighton, Mass.; Clyne Keller, Electra, Tex.; Harold Smith, Kaukauna, Wis.; Elmo Barger, Aurora, Ill., Edward Supple, Bayou Goula, La.; private pilots, Waldo Peter, Pittsburg, Pa., and Ollie Cyt, Toledo, O.

To Improve Road to Airport.

The St. Clair Highway Department last week voted to improve the road leading from Illinois Highway No. 3 to the new Curtiss-Reinberg Airport before the formal dedication of the field June 8. The road will be graded, widened and surfaced with crushed rock. A new railroad depot, known as Port St. Louis, has been established near the airport by the Missouri Pacific Railroad. A station building is being erected.

U. S. Lighting Airways.

Upon the completion of a program calling for the lighting of 3000 miles of airways during the next fiscal year, there will be 17,000 miles of Federally lighted airways available for aircraft operation, it is announced by the Department of Commerce. Twenty additional airways radio stations will be established under the program.

Ralph Damon Returns.

Ralph Damon, who placed the Curtiss Robin in production here and later went to New York as assistant to J. A. B. Smith, of the Curtiss-Wright organization, has returned to St. Louis and is in charge of production at the Curtiss-Robertson factory at Lambert-Field, and the Travel-Air Co. a Jobs for Graduates.

David Harris, transport graduate of the Universal Flying School, is employed as co-pilot by Universal Airlines. Roland Weber, a recent limited commercial graduate, is flying for a Cleveland, O., concern.

Von Hoffman Flies South.

Bernard Von Hoffmann, head of the Von Hoffman Flying School, and Pilot James Lewis, departed last week for a three weeks' business trip to Georgia, Florida and Texas.

Charters Plane to Flagstaff.

Wesley M. Sears, son of the president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., chartered a ship last Monday at Curtiss-Steinberg Airport for a hurried trip to Flagstaff, Ariz. Pilot Otto Graff made the trip.

Guard Air Service at Celebration.

The Thirty-fifth Division Air Service participated in a highway opening celebration at Carthage, Mo., last Wednesday and Thursday. Six planes participated in the event. Brigadier-General W. A. Raupp, commanding Missouri National Guard troops, was an observer on the trip.

Hired to Carry Passengers.

Ralph Knapp, Thomas Livermore and M. G. Finton, recent transport graduates of Parks Air College, have been employed at Parks Airport for passenger carrying work.

Touring Country by Air.

Two former Von Hoffman School students visited the institution last week, flying their own planes. They are I. M. Rush, who owns a Lincoln, and M. Hicks, flying a Waco. Both are touring the country building up time for a transport license.

Edward Gropp, a recent graduate of the Von Hoffman School, bought a Waco biplane, which he flew to his home at Owensboro, Ky.

Tuberculosis Society Day.

Next Sunday will be Tuberculosis Society Day at Lambert-St. Louis Field. A special program is being arranged by Field Manager Parks.

L. G. Hadley Flies to Ottawa, Ill.

L. G. Hadley, president of the Hadley-Dean Glass Co., flew to Ottawa, Ill., and back last Tuesday on business, making the trip with Maj. C. Ray Wassall of the Curtiss-Wright organization. Hadley who is 62 years old, was one of the first St. Louisans to fly to California and return several years ago.

Visiting Pilots.

Twenty-seven visiting pilots registered at Lambert-St. Louis Field during the week. Thirteen visitors registered at Parks Airport during the same period, and the transients dropping in at Curtiss-Steinberg Airport included Lieut. Harvey Ogden, one of the army round-the-world flyers.

To Try for Endurance Record.

Walter Hunter, pilot on the St. Louis-Kansas City-Omaha air mail route, and his three brothers, who are also pilots, are preparing for an attempt to break the world's endurance flight record at Chicago. John Hunter, formerly an air mail pilot on the Chicago-Atlanta run, and brother "Beans" will be in the endurance plane, with Walter and "Red," a former instructor at a Davenport, (Ia.) flying school, manning the refueler. Walter obtained a leave of absence to take part in the flight.

Demonstrating New Machine.

The "Aeronca," a powered monoplane of the glider type, made at Cincinnati, is being demonstrated at Lambert-St. Louis Field. "Bud" Gurney, former air mail pilot, put the ship through its paces Thursday.

Texan Buys a Moth.

H. S. Jones of Fort Worth, Tex., purchased a Moth biplane here last week for flight instruction at Tampico, Mex., where he has 10 students. E. B. Vary of Elgin, Ill., was another Moth purchaser last week.

Protecting the Workmen.

The tractors, trucks, mowers and other equipment used in keeping Lambert-St. Louis Field in shape have been painted a bright orange in an effort to make the apparatus visible to flying students, who have a habit of landing on the machines to the discomfort of the operators.

Safety to New Drivers.

Great success is being made in different parts of England where new drivers are learning to operate cars. They are placing on the back and front of their machines a notice: "Caution! Driver Is a Novice!" At once the difficulty has been overcome, for a way has been found of making every motorist or cyclist in the vicinity take particular care.

A Flying Cadet

TRANSPORT pilot graduate of the Universal Aviation School, is one of 10 graduate transport flight students in the United States selected from commercial flying schools as a flying cadet in the Army's advanced school at Kelly Field, Tex.

Fronty Special Which Will Race Today

ONE of the 30 cars which are entered for the race at the Creve Coeur track, sponsored by the Greater St. Louis Speedway Association, is this machine, entered by the General Brake Service Corporation. A top speed of more than 100 miles an hour is claimed for the car, which will be driven by "Red" Campbell.

F. D. Hastings Buys Gilbert Tire Concern

F. D. Hastings, who has been actively engaged in the tire business in St. Louis for the past 10 years, has purchased the Gilbert Tire Co. The new firm will be known as the Hastings Tire & Battery Co. It is located at 819 Walnut street, and will handle Goodyear tires and U. S. L. batteries.

"Stop" and "Go" for Walkers.

Walkers on streets in New York City are to be placed under the regulations applied to traffic. Pedestrians, as well as vehicles, will be obliged to observe the same "stop" and "go" signals.

Chemical Baths Are Given Graham Motors

Most automobile owners are thoroughly familiar with the Sunday morning bath given their motor cars, with the aid of the garden hose and a chamois. Few Graham owners, however, realize that their car's engine is given a special bath, including live steam, oil spray, and a chemical and hot water wash, at the factory before it is ever placed in the chassis.

A series of these special cleansing operations are performed along the assembly line at the Graham-Paige factory, rendering motor as free from dirt and other foreign matter as is humanly possible.

Auto Taxes Increasing.

Taxes on automobiles last year in the United States increased at a rate more than three times as great as the increase in automobile ownership over 1928, gasoline taxes having registered the greatest gain. The net revenue from gasoline taxes in 48 states was $422,216,641, according to their figures, as compared with $319,906,417 in 1928. Special taxes against car owners went from $624,335,670 in 1928 to a new high record of $767,001,595, while the average vehicle tax rose from $25.24 in 1929 to $25.56 in 1929. This was exclusive of personal property taxes.

No thrill like an Eight

No Eight like a HUDSON

Easy to buy—Inexpensive to Operate

The great and envied cars of the world are Eights. Except for cost all would own them.

Swept aside, now, is that barrier of high price and upkeep costs. And Hudson's Great Eight, through an amazing development, is giving thousands the brilliant performance and distinction that only the exclusive few have known.

Come, see and ride in this most modern of Eights. Beautiful, luxurious and powerful, it is excelled by no car in fast get-away, smoothness and reliable operation. It will renew your first glorious zest in motoring. It will thrill you with the power of its eight-cylinder motor. And it will delight you with operating economies never before achieved in a car of equal performance.

These are the reasons why Hudson is being praised everywhere, even beyond the great successes of Hudson's past.

From the moment you take the wheel you will be conscious of its superiority. You need scarcely touch the gear shift. Loaf along in high, slowly as on a Sunday stroll. Then push your foot to the floor and dart ahead at express train speed. For Hudson delivers its power surely and without effort.

Sixty miles an hour will seem as quiet and easy as thirty. The steepest hills will level out before you with a rising speedometer. The brakes will bring you to a sure, smooth stop, no matter what your speed. Its roadability is so sure that you will feel secure at all times. And, you will say, as thousands are saying, "Here is a car."

Improved Sets, But No Radical Change, at Show

Showing of a number of automobile sets, both for building into cars at the factories and for installation by local dealers. Predictions as to the number of motor car receivers to be sold in the next 12 months range as high as 1,000,000.

Several manufacturers are reaching down for a lower priced market in the $55 to $85 limits. The number of lines priced just under $60 is increasing. These sets are portable and usable wherever there is AC current. On the other hand, there seems to be tendency to raise the prices of the medium and higher-priced sets.

The concensus of leaders of the industry at the show was that the depression low point had been reached and that the trend from now on will be upward.

That facsimile transmission and reception may soon play an important role was indicated. One radio manufacturer is planning a receiver for such use. The Radio Corporation of America has carried commercial facsimile transmission to a high point.

All show week, the New York Evening World carried on an impressive demonstration of photo-radio by sending and receiving pages of its editions for reproduction.

Decision to co-operate with broadcasting interests in two cases pending in the courts which seek to test the rights of authors and composers to exact license royalties was reached yesterday by the board of directors of the association.

The cases involve a restaurant in Los Angeles and a hotel in Kansas City, sued for using their radio receivers without paying license royalties to the authors and composers of music. The Kansas City hotel is opposing an appeal in its case and the RMA board decided to support this and also the Los Angeles case.

The board also decided to challenge the constitutionality of a license-to-operate tax impcsed by the South Carolina Legislature on owners of receivers. The tax ranges from 50 cents to $2.50 a year.

The increasing tendency of the broadcasting chains to emphasize trade names in program listings was deplored by resolution adcpted at a meeting of the Newspaper Radio Editors' Association. The resolution recommended use of program listings sufficiently descriptive to make unnecessary the use of trade names of program sponsors.

A statement given out by Ernest Kauer of Providence, R. I., president of a large independent tube company, said: "Radio manufacturers must recognize the fact that control over broadcasting has gotten away from the radio industry and take steps to regain that control.

"If the existing situation is permitted to develop, it will be much as if advertisers were permitted to dominate newspapers. Publishers have always been toc alert to allow such a condition in their field.

"The radio manufacturers have a considerable investment. We must make broadcasting more and more attractive. It becomes very much our concern when too much commercialism in programs reflects discredit on the radio industry. If the industry can bring no influence to bear on the sponsors, it would pay us as manufacturers to buy up the time and sponsor it collectively."

No new Atwater Kent sets were shown. The company had a large booth at the shew, but instead of displaying new models, put up signs telling of something new on Aug. 1.

Four new Lyric sets had tone control, improved dynamic speaker, phonograph, plug-in, and included a reasonably priced phono-radio combination.

Bosch sets have adjustable tone control, automatic volume control, "line-o-lite" turning by which a hairline of light indicates the exact place on the dial where a station comes in best. In the de luxe models, a "mute" cuts out the speaker when one is tuning.

A feature of the new Brunswick sets is a "uni-selector," which performs seven functions—turns the set on and off, increases or decreases volume, adjusts for local or distant reception, and tunes in the stations. There is also a tone control and elaborately shielding also are features. Two 45-type tubes are used in parallel in the last audio stage.

The new Colonial sets feature screen grid detector, automatic interstage coupling that greatly increases the R. F. gain and a new type inductive volume control. There also is a remote control device which can be set for 10 stations.

Automatic volume control and antenna compensator are found in two new Columbia receivers, which come in two models.

A four-tube De Forest short wave set covers the tuning range of 20 to 200 meters, but is so compact that it measures only 5 by 6 by 8 inches.

"Light-o-Matic" tuning and automatic volume control are among features of the new Edison models, which include two new de luxe receivers. The Edisons using 27 type tubes are continued. The added sets have screen grid tubes.

New Loftin-White direct coupled amplifier kits with tuners, were shown by Electrod.

A "Flash-o-Graph" device, which lights up at the peak of reception, is a new Fada feature. These receivers have automatic volume control, noise filter which cuts out high frequency disturbances, and a double detection system in which one tube does the rectifying and another the amplifying between the R. F. and audio stages.

A five-tube AC short wave National set, using three screen grid tubes, was shown for the first time.

Among the new Kennedy sets shown was an 11-tube receiver designed for both broadcast and short wave reception. This is a far more powerful set than is usually built for short wave work. It is designed to pick up foreign stations as well as the American short wave transmitters. Another model has remote control.

A tone control, which can be set for "brilliant," "bright," "mellow" or "deep" quality, is a new Philco feature. So, too, is an illuminated dial designed for permanently logging stations. There are 7-tube and 9-tube chassis with screen grid detection. The latter has automatic volume control to counteract fading, and is designed for superior distance reception, as well as quality on local stations. It also has a built-in aerial.

Screen grid Majestic receivers made their debut at the show, as had been predicted. With improved speaker, even more fully shielded chassis and radio frequency stages designed for especial sensitivity and selectivity, those new Majestics were credited with exceptional distance getting ability.

In addition to the showing of the new screen grid Majestic sets, it developed that the Grigsby-Grunow Co. has joined Purdue Naiversity in television research. Experiments are to be conducted jointly, and as soon as it is believed that technical difficulties have been overcome, the company will begin manufacturing televisors. Grigsby-Grunow will get exclusive commercial rights to the university's patents. The company is backing Purdue's application to the Federal Radio Commission for an experimental television station and a channel on which to operate. Commercial production of television receivers for home use is not yet practical, the company states.

Especial attention has been paid to the audio system of the new Stewart-Warner sets so as to cover all notes, both low and high, with fidelity. Shielding is of copper. Extra pre-contacts guard against too low or too high voltage. A built-in aerial is provided for reception of local and near-by stations. Special sockets make changing of tubes easy.

Two Silver-Marshall screen grid receiver chassis will be featured the coming season, as well as period cabinets. One chassis has seven tubes and a four-gang condenser, while the other is a nine-tube, five-gang condenser type. Band pass tuning, with special attention given to shutting out interference from unwanted stations, and then to tuning sharply yet at the same time preserving tone quality, distinguish each chassis. A panel knob gives control of tone, whether one desire to emphasize the bass or the treble. The nine-tube chassis has automatic volume control. Remote control is optional. Both sets have been designed for exceptional distance reception as well as quality on locals.

Uniform tone quality, selectivity and distance getting ability clear across the dial are featured in the new Stromberg-Carlson receivers. There are two chassis, one using three screen grid tubes, the other four of these valves. Five tuned stages, "bi-resonators" to make tuning sharper, automatic volume control using an extra tube and a visual tuning meter, feature several models. There are also two phone-radio combinations, one with automatic record changing device.

New R. C. A. superheterodyne receivers of greatly increased power and selectivity have special band pass tuners designed to prevent "cross talk" interference from affecting reception. These sets are said to rival the performance of the best custom built superheterodyne receivers used by "fans" who specialize on tuning in distant stations or stations that are "covered" by other transmitters on most sets.

Three new Sentinel models were shown, including a radio-phonograph combination all use screen grid tubes.

Screen grid tubes are used for the first time in a Victorian set in a 14-tube receiver exhibited. This model is designed for super performance and is shielded with heavy cast aluminum.

Sampson Industries, Inc., of St. Louis, organized by Julian and Jack Sampson to manufacture radio devices, had a booth at the show. The company exhibited its stip-tape indoor aerial.

The new General Electric sets were shown. These are of the superheterodyne type, but have a band pass device to eliminate interference from powerful stations. Circuit details were not available.

Further development of the equalized band pass filter tuning which has been a Grebe feature, was found in the new Grebe models. Sufficient signal power is built up in the screen grid R. F. stools to make possible use of one audio stage, which makes for elimination of hum and microphone noises.

A new line of Westinghouse sets were displayed at the show. These were superheterodynes with band pass tuning feature. Details of the circuit used were not announced.

The new line of General Motors sets, which were introduced about a month ago, were on display at the show. These receivers have screen grid circuit, push pull audio and cabinets of distinctive period design. Their special feature is a panel tone control that can be set for any degree of brilliance or depth of tone that the individual owner desires.

Silver Marshall's new receivers have the band pass pre-selector tuning feature still more highly perfected.

The new Sparton sets continue use of a band pass pre-selector tuner, but the amplification and selectivity have been made greater.

Zenith receivers were exhibited in several displays apart from the trade show. These new sets, which are said to embody perfected screen grid circuits of the all-wave general type as used in the previous Zenith models, also have the new double push pull audio system. Push pull for a first audio s

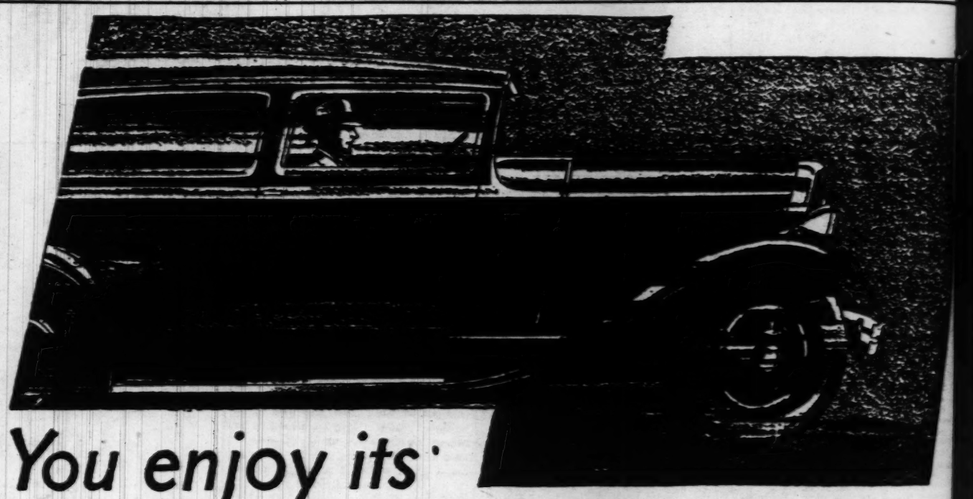
"Knowing How" Is Important

Under the constant pounding of high speed—and rough roads, something is certain to happen occasionally to the best of cars. Knowing where to look for the trouble, under the hood or under the car, is half the job; the other half is fixing it, and best of all is the guarantee of satisfaction that you get from patronizing a member of the National Garage Owners Association.

If your repair job proves expensive, the National Garage Owners Association will finance your repairs on an easy payment plan.



You enjoy its

even on the rouqhest roads

You probably know the Oakland Eight best as a car of superior performance. Its exceptional speed—its thrilling pick-up—its masterly hill-climbing power are qualities that people are apt to note and remember. But the Oakland Eight is a car of unusual comfort, too!

A car whose remarkable roadability invites you to open the throttle—and take even the roughest roads with a feeling of restfulness and safety. Reasons? Here they are: An 85-horsepower engine whose high ratio of power to the weight of the car eliminates all sense of effort or strain. A low center of gravity that minimizes swaying and keeps you hugging the road securely. A wheelbase of 117 inches, and carefully worked out springs whose action is controlled by Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers. Skillful distribution of weight that contributes to harmony of motion. A steering gear that works on roller bearings.

Performance on the perfect road is one thing—performance where the going's rough is another. You get them both in the Oakland Eight. Come in—and let us prove it!

SO COMFORTABLE SO EASY TO DRIVE

If you want to know what restful riding comfort and what delightful ease of handling you really can have in a moderately priced car, come drive an Oldsmobile.

For both Oldsmobile's beautiful Fisher body and its fine, dependable chassis are designed with particular attention to comfort and convenience.

Body interiors are generously proportioned—with ample head room and leg room. Seats are wide and deep-cushioned. Relaxation is invited the minute you take your place in the car.

Examination of the chassis reveals additional reasons why travel should be so restful. Springs are long and flexible . . . controlled in action by four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers. A low center of gravity and balanced weight contribute to roadability—an important factor in comfort and safety.

As for ease of handling, you will discover the reasons as soon as you take the wheel and drive. True fingertip steering . . . smooth, quiet gear-shifting . . . instant acceleration . . . and quick-acting, fully-enclosed, four-wheel brakes.

You will enjoy driving Oldsmobile because it is so comfortable, so easy to handle . . . and so alert and capable in every respect. Come try it—over roads of your own choice. You will find it an unusual car in many ways—and a great one in all.

TWO-DOOR SEDAN $895 f. o. b. Lansing, Michigan. Spare tire and bumpers extra.

British Symphony Concert to Be Heard In St. Louis June 11

Sixty minutes of symphonic music will be dispatched by short wave from the London studios of the British Broadcasting Corporation next Wednesday, June 11, inaugurating the first European musical program series designed specifically for American listeners, the National Broadcasting Co. announces.

KSD to Broadcast Sharkey-Schmeling Bout on Thursday

NBC to Bear Entire Expense of Putting Bout on the Air.

Thursday night's broadcast of the Sharkey-Schmeling bout will be carried by KSD and KWK. It is scheduled to begin at 7:30 o'clock St. Louis time. The broadcast will not be sponsored by any commercial interest, according to a statement by the National Broadcasting Co., which will bear the entire expense.

NBC observers will take the air at 7:30 for a description of scenes in the Garden and probably for a running account of the semifinal.

In addition to regular NBC announcers, a woman observer will take the microphone to describe the spectacle from a feminine viewpoint. This will be an innovation in fight broadcasting. NBC officials pointed out that the Milk Fund fights are social events, as the audiences invariably include large numbers of women prominent in the social world. Already "box parties" have been arranged by invitations extended by hostesses in the "four hundred." These will receive special attention from the woman announcer. Arrangements are being made by the National Broadcasting Co. for other special features in connection with the fight.

During the week preceding the fight, radio activities promise to take on almost the aspect of a political campaign. Representatives of Schmeling and Sharkey are to take the microphone and tell facts about their principals in training camp work. Mrs. Hearst has been invited to address the radio audience in behalf of the Milk Fund Committee to explain the aims and purposes and activities of that organization. Various news writers and sport experts familiar with the present condition and past performances of the fighters will give views and analyses of the situation.

Radio Sets Improve, but No Radical Changes

has the same advantages as for the output stage. The new Zenith cabinet designs are especially featured in all the exhibits.

The models of the new Story & Clark receivers seen at the show reveal that this company intends to compete in the higher class field. The sets are unusually well shielded and constructed, and a special effort has been made to develop an audio system that will give exceptional fidelity of reproduction. The cabinets evidence the company's experience in making fine pianos for many years.

A new "mantle" type set, in the under $60 class, and a relatively low-priced phono-radio combination are featured in the new Crosley line of receivers. Crosley is the first of the large manufacturers to take up the small, compact, easily portable AC set that has been so popular in the Far West. There are also, of course, Crosley sets of the same general types as in the past. The new cabinets for both Crosley and Amrad sets are claimed to strike a wholly new note in radio furniture. The Crosley plant is so sure that these designs will start something, that each cabinet is being covered with patents, patent designs and copyrights.

Five tuned circuits, designed especially for selectivity, are a feature of the new Victor receivers. As in the past, the audio system of these sets has been designed as has the speaker, for exceptional tone fidelity. The shielding is most complete. A number of improvements have been added to the receivers, but circuit details were not disclosed generally at the show. Radio combinations, of course, will be especially featured the coming season.

Ten models, twice as many as ever before, make up the new line of Sparton receivers, two of them being in the just over $100 class. In addition, a Sparton automobile set was shown, as well as an elaborate radio-phonograph combination. The auto set is to be available at once. These receivers continue to use the Technidyne circuit, with its band pass pre-selector, which does all the tuning before the radio signals are passed on to a radio-frequency amplifier. A number of added features and refinements in design, to make for even better tone quality, are incorporated in the new sets.

The General Motors receivers have a double volume control, which acts in the antenna circuit and also in the screen grid circuit, but there is only one control knob for both.

Trade Notes

W. E. Fuetterer has taken over the Inland Holding and Finance Corporation of Chicago, and has moved it to St. Louis, where its ofifces are 2133 Locust boulevard. Its offices in Chicago and Milwaukee have been closed. The company will handle radio and appliance sales paper for dealers. W. E. Fuetterer is president and treasurer, L. E. Fuetterer, vice president, and William Grunz, secretary.

Herman S. Hollender played in three polo games at Atlantic City during radio show week. The first game was between teams representing Silver-Marshall and the Radio News.

Seeks Radio Trade Show for St. Louis

H. W. Geller, president of the Geller, Ward & Hasner Hardware Co., went to the radio trade show at Atlantic City the past week in a double role to look over a new line of sets which his firm is to distribute and, as head of the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, to invite the Radio Manufacturers' Association to hold its show next June in St. Louis.

Geller took with him invitations from Mayor Miller, the convention bureau, the Chamber of Commerce, the Associated Retailers and the Arena Association. He also was armed with detailed information about hotel facilities, the Municipal Opera and other matters of interest. B. C. Brinkman, president of the Arena Association, also went to Atlantic City for the same purpose. The radio show annually attracts 30,000 and more jobbers and dealers.

Metcalf Heads R. M. A.

By the Associated Press.

Morris Metcalf of Springfield, Mass., was elected president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association. He succeeds H. B. Richmond of Cambridge, Mass. Other officers include Joseph L. Ray, New York, first vice president; G. B. Erskine, Emporia, Pa., second vice president; Arthur L. Welsh, Orange, N. J., third vice president, and E. N. Rauland of Chicago, treasurer.

Eight new members of the board of directors were elected for three-year terms. H. S. Hyde, Bay City, Mich.; R. W. Jackson, Chicago; Ernest Kauer, Providence, R. I.; A. C. Klockner, Racine, Wis.; James M. Skinner, Philadelphia; E. N. Rauland, Chicago; Joseph L. Ray, New York and Arthur I. Walsh, Orange, N. J.

In a recent "Adventures in Science" broadcast talk over KSD, Floyd Gibbons was timed as speaking 4930 words into a microphone in 13½ minutes, at the rate of 217 words a minute.

"NINA ROSA" SETS ATTENDANCE RECORD FOR MUNICIPAL OPERA

Largest Crowd in History Saw 10 Shows of Romberg Play, Management Announces.

Following the checkup of last night's audience at the Municipal Theater it was announced that the six performances of "Nina Rosa" given from last Monday to last night, inclusive had exceeded all attendance and receipt records for any opening week of seven performances in the history of the opera. Receipts and attendance for the 10 scheduled presentations of the Romberg operetta will be greater than were ever recorded for any single attraction at the theater.

"Nina Rosa" will be offered for the last time tonight. The opera management states that desirable seats are available at all prices for the final performance. Seats may be purchased starting today at noon at the opera's downtown box office in the lobby of the Arcade building and at the box office at the lower main entrance to the Municipal Theater. Telephone reservations will be accepted at both offices.

Placing Receiver for Best Reception.

A room, to assure the absence of echo, should be well furnished. Rugs, draperies, curtains, and table covers help. Paper or cloth walls are best. Otherwise, a rough coated wall is better than a smooth one, and a dull dark finish better than a glossy light one. Beamed ceilings and brick fire-places are assets. Tile is a liability.

There should be no piano or stringed instrument in the same room as the set. Strings of such instruments, representing the frequencies of the sounds emanating from the loud speaker, will vibrate, distorting the sound from the radio. If a speaker is placed near a piano and the radio suddenly turned off, one may hear the piano strings quite clearly. If a piano must be in the same room, its soft pedal should be pressed down.

The speaker should face a curtain or other absorbing material. Since waves go out from the back of the speaker as well, it would do no harm to have a tapestry on the wall behind the cone. Pictures that are liable to rattle in answer to their natural frequencies, should be avoided.

FINAL EFFORT TO GET SUBSCRIPTIONS FOR SYMPHONY

Fund Now Totals $495,000, With $105,000 Needed to Reach Goal.

A final drive for funds for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will be conducted this week, it having been decided to continue the campaign for an additional week.

At a meeting of workers held Friday at the home of Mrs. H. B. Collins, 50 Portland place, it was announced that subscriptions now total $495,000. Every former contributor who has not subscribed to the fund has been appealed to, and more than 800 new subscribers have been obtained so far. The original goal was $750,000, but this was later reduced to $600,000.

Subscriptions may be mailed to Room 548, Boatmen's Bank Building.

Here and There on the Air

Alwyn Bach Wins Radio Diction Gold Medal—Charles Marshall, Tenor of Chicago Opera In Broadcast Tomorrow Night.

Alwyn E. W. Bach, who has just been awarded the radio diction medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, which last year was won by Milton J. Cross, has been broadcasting for eight years.

Alwyn Bach.

He was born and educated in Worcester, Mass. After graduating from high school, he entered a law office, but left that for a print shop, where he worked as compositor and proof reader. He already had begun to study singing. He appeared as a soloist in Worcester churches, and frequently sang in amateur musical productions. Then, after some experience as a choir conductor, he went to Long Meadow, Mass., where he directed the Community Choral Association and a church choir, singing as a baritone soloist.

Bach saw service in France with the Forty-fourth Coast Artillery and was in the Somme-St. Mihiel offensive.

After the war, Bach returned to the print shop, although he still found time for concert engagements. In 1922, he was asked to sing for WBZ in Springfield, then his home, and was taken on as staff announcer.

In Springfield he met and married Olive C. Murphy. They have a 7-year-old daughter, Joyce Elizabeth Bach.

In 1926, he was transferred to WBZA in Boston and made more than a local reputation by his announcements of the broadcasts of the Boston Symphony concerts.

Two years ago, NBC officials heard of the Boston announcer and soon afterward he joined the NBC announcing staff. In addition to his work as an announcer, he sings on the air and on the concert stage.

Bach is a crack bridge player and plays tennis and handball. He also reads a great deal. He is six feet tall, weighs 170 pounds and has dark hair, dark eyes and dark complexion. He is popular because of his poise and lack of nervousness or excitability.

His home is in West Hempstead, L. I.

WLW microphones and a short wave transmitter have been installed in a 30-foot boat in preparation for an attempt to broadcast at 7:30 Tuesday night a running description of an hour and a half of tarpon fishing. Ben Seale, a noted fishing guide at Sarasota, Fla., will have charge of the boat. Powell Crosley Jr., of Cincinnati, will describe the attempt to hook and land one of the big fish. An experienced fisherman and a novice will be depended on to do the fishing. June 10 should be a moonlight night.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

SCOUTS TO TAKE PART IN FLAG DAY PROGRAM

Troops to Have Three Members in Scottish Rite Temple Ceremony.

Boy Scout troops have been invited to participate in Flag day exercises at the Scottish Rite Temple next Saturday evening by the St. Louis Masonic Service League, sponsors of the exercises. The troops have been asked to send their colors and color-bearers to take part in one number, while two other places on the program, a pageant and a drum and bugle corps, will be conducted by the Scouts.

Nearly every civic and patriotic organization in the city will be represented. About 150 troops are expected to send their colors, while 50 Scouts will play in the drum and bugle corps, and 20 others will take part in the pageant.

Two individual troops will be leaders in these latter events, and 30 Scouts from Troop 88 of Salem Evangelical Church, forming the nucleus of the drum and bugle corps. A number of other north district troops, however, will also send drummers and buglers for this number. The corps will be headed by Drum Major Russell Stumpf of Troop 88.

Troop 60's pageant, "The Evolution of the Flag," will be the same this troop presented at a mass meeting of scouts and their fathers in the Municipal Theater during the Boy Scout Camparall May 25. The pageant takes the American flag through every one of its steps, from the British flag used in the colonies to the flag as we know it today. The pageant ends with a tableaux of all the different flags.

RECEPTION FOR FATHER COREY BY GONZAGA HALL ALUMNI

Pro-Vicar of Catholic Missions in British Honduras to Be Guest Tuesday Evening.

The Very Rev. Anthony H. Corey, S. J., pro-vicar of the Catholic missions in British Honduras, will be guest of honor at a reception Tuesday evening in the Knights of Columbus building, Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, by alumni of Gonzaga Hall, one-time preparatory division of St. Louis University, where Father Corey once taught.

Father Corey is visiting Jesuit colleges in the Middle West on the business of his missions and will return to Central America in a few weeks. His missions are among the descendants of the Carib and Maya Indians, the traces of whose ancient culture are the subject of current archeological study.

Father Corey will occupy the pulpit at all masses in St. Francis Xavier (College) church today.

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR U. S. MARINES KILLED IN WAR

Ceremony to Be Held at 5 P. M. Today at Jefferson Memorial.

Memorial services for United States Marines, who fell in the World War, will be held at 5 p. m. today at Jefferson Memorial in Forest Park.

Dr. D. C. Todd of the Board of Education will deliver the address. Other speakers will be the Rev. P. G. Dooley, Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman of Temple Israel, and the Rev. Harold Reeder of the First Baptist Church of Webster Groves. Gold Star Mothers and members of other patriotic bodies have been asked to join the Marine Corps League in the service.

The Marines suffered their heaviest losses at the Battle of Belleau Wood, which started on the second Sunday of June, 1918.

ORPHANAGE 80 YEARS OLD

German St. Vincent Society to Celebrate Next Sunday.

Celebration of eightieth anniversary of the founding of the German St. Vincent Orphan Society will take place next Sunday at the society orphanage in Normandy. A thanksgiving high mass at 9:30 o'clock in the morning will open the ceremonies.

The organization was formed June 14, 1850, to take care of children of parents who had died in a cholera epidemic of that year. Only two German Catholic parishes existed in St. Louis at the time. The present building in Normandy was dedicated in 1917.

BOY SCOUT SWIMMING PARTY

To Be Held at New Coliseum Pool Friday, 2 to 8 P. M.

A free swimming party for Boy Scouts of the city and county will be held at the New Coliseum pool Friday afternoon and evening, from 2 to 8 o'clock. The party will be under the joint auspices of the Boy Scout council and the management of the pool.

All scouts will be admitted free, the only requirement being that registration cards must be presented at the door. It will not be necessary for the scouts to wear uniforms unless they wish.

Masonic Flag Day Service.

With 29 military and patriotic organizations participating, the Masonic Service Association, representing the Thirty-third and Fifty-seventh Masonic Districts will sponsor a Flag day celebration Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3627 Lindell boulevard. Six hundred and thirty colors will be displayed. Samuel R. Freet, grand master of Freemasons of Missouri, will deliver the principal address.

Troop Notes

North District.

A lecture on swimming was given at the last meeting of Troop 3, of the Grace Holy Cross Church, by Assistant Scoutmaster Louis Thompson, who just recently passed the Red Cross life saving tests. The Bob White patrol, leader in an inter-patrol contest with 96 points, won another inter-patrol event conducted after patrol meetings were concluded. A contest in use of the knife and axe is scheduled for the meeting this week.

The Fox patrol, which Troop 88 of the Salem Evangelical Church entered in the recent Camparall, came in second in the district meet. The troop has just registered again with 42 members, both scouts and officers. The troop drum and bugle corps has been asked to play at the annual Tuberculosis baseball game, and Drum Major Rus Stumpf is assisting other North District troop drum corp at their practice for Flag day exercises.

Instruction in first aid was given, and games were played, at the last meeting of Troop 205, of the Bates School. An inter-patrol contest also was held.

Twenty-one scouts of Troop 148, Hyde Park Congregational Church, spent Decoration Day, Saturday, and Sunday at the Meramec State Park near Sullivan, Mo. The troop is planning a number of other camps of one and two weeks, at the "Wigwam," the troop came near the Chain of Rocks. A troop Camparall is also being planned, with a visit to the State Capitol at Jefferson City as a prize to the winning scouts. The troop celebrated its birthday May 20 with a party, to which parents and friends were invited. The five patrols put on a program of scouting and games. A talk was given by Field Executive Nusser. The troop registered June 1 with 29 old scouts and three new recruits.

South District.

A fathers' and sons' meeting was held by Troop 247, of the Froebel School last week. The program opened with a pledge of allegience to the flag, led by Scout Edward Horner, followed by the Scout oath and scout laws, repeated by the members of the troop. Judge Hartmann, a guest at the meeting, gave a talk on Boy Welfare, while Field Executive Carl H. Laemmli spoke on scouting. Scout activities were demonstrated, songs were sung, and games played. When the refreshments were served, each scout escorted his father to the table. Troop Committeemen Mertens, Cheek, and Pemberton were guests at the meeting.

Plans for a troop camp on the troop's new campsite near De Soto, Mo., are being made by Troop 234 of the Church of the Messiah. The camp site, consisting of 40 acres of timber land, was obtained by the troop two weeks ago.

West District.

Five star scout badges, one first-class, one second-class and eight merit badges were awarded to seven scouts of Troop 26 of the Delmar Baptist Church. A silk streamer for placing sixth in the recent Camparall was presented to the troop as a whole, at the West District Court of Honor, May 28. Presentation of the streamer was made by E. N. Birge to Patrol Leader B. D. Moss Jr., who headed the Camparall patrol. The scouts receiving the badges were: Bob White, star and first aid to animals; Tom McConnell, star, first aid to animals, firemanship, personal health and carpentry; Donald Weir, star, first aid to animals; George Tooley, star; Harry Svatek, star, physical development and pathfinding; Bob Whorton, first class, and Bob Schoenthaler, second class.

Prizes for winning the West District Camparall were presented to the members of the Troop 30 Camparall patrol at the meeting of the troop at the Y. M. H. A. last Thursday evening. Another award also was given Assistant Scoutmaster Louis Platt for assisting the two patrols. The presentations were made by Scoutmaster Goldsmith and Assistant Scoutmaster Schwab. A hikhe for today was planned, and a surprise promised for the next meeting.

Troop 70, of the Jewish Community Center, is reorganizing under Scoutmaster Jacobs. A membership campaign is also planned for boys who live in the neighborhcod. The troop meets from 8 to 9 o'clock every Tuesday evening. Scouts Bill Price and Herman Fleishman won a trip to Irondale this summer, as an award for being the two scouts most helpful to the troop during the last year. This award is made yearly.

The Panther patrol won an inter-patrol contest conducted by Troop 246 of the B'Nai Amoona, while the Comanche patrol came in second. First aid, signaling, drill and knot-tying were featured in the contest. Scoutmaster Charles Fischlowitz and Assistant Scoutmaster Sam Banet will be members of the Camp Irondale staff all season this summer, while Assistant Scoutmaster Simon Becker will go to the camp each week-end to conduct religious services for Jewish scouts. During the absence of the troop leaders, the meetings will be conducted by Senior Patrol Leader Harvey Rudolph and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Abe Gallant. Twelve scouts of the troop held a two-day camp in the county recently. The trip was made possible by Scoutmaster Wisebart of Troop 11 and Sam Siegel of that troop, who lent the scouts a truck for transportation.

REFLECTIONS FROM PRIVATE LIFE

By Calvin Coolidge, Former President Of the United States.

Prohibition Question Not Likely to Be Settled for Long Time, in His Opinion—Tariff Perplexities and Farm Relief—Most Business Men and Most Legislators Are Fair and Honest, He Is Convinced.

Second Instalment.

WE have but one President. His success is the success of the country and his failure is the failure of the country. After he takes office the common interest requires that the people should not oppose him and try to build up a case against him, but should support him and try to assist him in the general discharge of his duties.

That does not mean any subserviency on the part of the legislative and judicial branches of the Government to the executive branch, any abolition of independent action, or any diminution of constructive criticism. Nor is there any obligation on the part of the country or his party to follow a President when he goes outside the well established tradition, policy and platform on which he was elected. But it does mean that opposition merely for the sake of opposition is wrong in principle, and where it exists, in order better to serve the welfare of the country, should be superseded by a spirit of co-operation.

The country cannot always be tranquil. There come times when there must be rearrangements and reorganizations. Such a period always creates more or less uneasiness and commotion. While it lasts it is inconvenient and in many ways disagreeable. But it would be a great mistake to confuse the process with the result.

The making of repairs, or the erection of new structures, always cause considerable discomfort while they are proceeding, but when they are finished they contribute to the beauty and fullness of life. We are continually tearing down and rebuilding. Our activities in that direction are usually the measure of our progress.

We require a periodic survey of the administrative machinery of the national Government to determine what replacements, alterations and new construction are necessary. Without it we would soon run into a system of rank bureaucracy or decompose in a dry rot.

Changes Unpopular in Washington.

It is never popular in some quarters of official Washington. Its need can be very accurately measured by the displeasure those regions manifest.

Scraping the hull of the ship of state is a very uncomfortable operation for the barnacles. But it has to be done if the craft is to remain seaworthy.

It is difficult, however, to secure a continuity of policy, which is the main basis of certainty in governmental affairs, without a considerable continuity in the civil service. Fossilization will be avoided if the heads of departments and the bureau chiefs are competent. The only reason for making changes is to secure improvement.

If promotion should depend on merit, demotion should depend on lack of merit, otherwise the service becomes excited, timid, disloyal and ineffective. There are many reasons for insisting that those who are vested with authority shall have the sole responsibility for its administration. Chief among these is the fact that the foundation of a republic rests on the principle of delegated authority.

When a business gets into difficulties oftentimes a thorough reorganization will afford a complete remedy. The reason for this result lies in the ability to construct a really new business. There is a wide difference, however, between our national Government and a business concern in this respect.

Our Government is made up almost completely of the human element. Our real Government is not located in the departments at Washington; it dwells in the hearts of the people. It can have no other habitation in a republic.

For that reason, however much we shuffle and change our departments, we do not thereby provide a new Government. That will remain the same. But, of course, we may increase our respect for it by providing a better administration of it.

Liquor Question Here for Long Stay.

Probably few people expected a reorganization of a bureau for the administration of the law concerning alcoholic liquors would settle the prohibition question. Under our institutions of government it can only be settled when public opinion concerning it is settled.

Considering that people have differed most radically on the best method of regulating the sale of liquor for generations, it is not likely to be settled for a long time to come.

Of course, enforcement is necessary under the law and may be one element in determining the future course of action in relation to prohibition.

No law on this subject has ever been free from criticism.

So long as the human appetite for stimulants on one side, and for money on the other side, remain what they are, there are likely to be some violations of a prohibition law.

If, judging by the past, this agitation is destined to continue far into the future, attended by considerable fanaticism on both sides, the question arises as to what attitude the people can take concerning it.

We have the amendment. There is no immediate prospect of its repeal.

It seems to me the country can get considerable assistance by recalling the attitude of Lincoln in all his discussion of the slavery issue. He was opposed to slavery and thought the decision of the Supreme Court in relation to property in a slave was unsound. Yet he was not an abolitionist and did not approve of the violence of John Brown, or the nullification and secession proposals of the radical groups in the North.

He declared it the duty of citizens to support the Constitution, observe the fugitive slave law, and accept the decision of the Supreme Court in dealing with property in a slave until, by the process, these were changed. Lincoln did not recognize any abuse so great, not even human slavery, that he was willing to try to remedy it by a violation of the law of the land. This may well be pondered by those who feel aggrieved by prohibition.

Advises People to Accept Lincoln's View.

It is my judgment that the great body of serious minded people, who think there are other subjects of superior importance to a drink of liquor, may well continue to follow the principle Lincoln so clearly stated, realizing that we have a well defined con-

SWEDEN'S EXPOSITION ATTEMPTS TO SHOW THE WORLD HOW TO LIVE

Buildings, Furnishings, Decorations Are All Designed Chiefly With a View to the Functions They Are to Perform and the Good-Natured War of Functionalist Against Traditionalist Is Exciting the Whole Nation.

By M. W. Childs.
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 26.

THERE has come into being on the shores of one of the many arms of the Baltic, about which this spacious city is built, an exposition that, unlike those of the past, is devoted almost entirely to the art of living. Sweden has undertaken to show the world how to live in the modern age.

Already a stream of artists, architects, designers and craftsmen from Europe and America has started to flow here. For during the last 20 years word has gradually got abroad that important developments in the arts and crafts were going forward in Sweden.

The present exposition, which was opened several weeks ago, is a dramatization of several movements which have taken firm hold. It embodies the development of the arts and crafts, fostered for 50 years by the Swedish Crafts Society and other similar organizations, the products of the machine as influenced by native design and tradition, and certain social phenomena.

Latest Developments in Co-Operative Housing

The most important section of the exposition, that given over to co-operative housing, combines all these elements. Here are a series of homes and flats for families of varying size and income that are complete throughout. They represent the very latest developments in modern housing, with something that is peculiarly Swedish added in many instances.

Both the houses and the flats, as is true of the whole exposition, are functionalist in architecture. That is to say they have been designed entirely from the point of view of the functions they must perform. The arrangement and the lighting of the interiors have been the factors which have dictated the shapes of these buildings. Which is probably the reason they appear a little startling at first glance, rigid, cubical shapes relieved, if at all, by color. The architecture of the exposition has, as a matter of fact, aroused a nationwide controversy that has spread to the remotest provinces and the smallest towns.

It has been argued that it violates Swedish architectural traditions and Dr. Gregor Paulsen, exposition director, freely concedes that the buildings are international in style, with, he insists, a special Swedish element.

Old Styles Translated Into the Modern Idiom.

It is, however, in the interiors that an outsider is most likely to see a native influence. Artists and designers throughout Sweden have undertaken to work in terms of the machine, to translate the old styles into modern idiom. Particularly with rugs and textiles they have employed most successfully adaptations of old patterns and color schemes.

Even in the most modest types of flats and the smallest houses an effect of spaciousness and dignity is achieved. But this is never at the cost of convenience. Materials are freely and courageously used. There is a great deal of metal furniture, of chromium plated steel and aluminum. In many instances it is successful, but often it appears illogical and absurd. Yet it is experimentation in the right direction. And always color is used with a high degree of intelligence.

Co-operative housing has had a rapid growth in Sweden during the last 20 years. Whole suburbs have grown up around Stockholm and smaller cities composed of co-operative apartment buildings and small homes built on a co-operative plan.

Even more remarkable has been the growth of the co-operative stores since 1900. There are 3000 co-operative stores in Sweden, and they control a considerable percentage of the merchandising on a basis of cost plus a small profit. The Stockholm unit alone owns and operates 271 stores in the city, the largest of which sell nearly every form of merchandise. And within the last decade the Union Kooperativa, the central organization, has entered the manufacturing field successfully.

One of the most interesting exhibits is the model store for a rural community of the Union Kooperativa. It is constructed on the lines of the highest efficiency and cleanliness and it contains many a lesson for an American store manager. Above the store proper and the storage rooms is an apartment for the manager and his family which again is a model of simplicity and convenience, done in a modified modern style. Stores such as this one, selling every form of merchandise, are in operation in the remotest parts of Sweden.

THE functionalist note in modern architecture, as exemplified in one of the homes shown in exposition in Stockholm. It is criticised for lack of those features which identify Swedish architecture, but is defended on utilitarian lines. Much of the furniture is of metal, but brightly colored in most cases.

There is also a series of model schoolrooms into which the keenest intelligence has gone. They are designed throughout from the point of view of convenience and utility, of light and of spacing. There is a model hospital and sanitarium as well as a model cafe. Scarcely any department of life have the Swedes overlooked in their desire to live intelligently.

In addition to the housing section there are, of course, individual pavilions given over to the various branches of the arts and crafts, work in glass, silver, pewter, iron, wood, textiles. Here there are objects of art for the individual wealthy purchaser. But even here it is possible to find distinguished objects combining both utility and beauty at very modest prices. Such artists as Edward Hald and Simon Gate, in glass, Nils Fougsted, in pewter, Ivar Johnsson, in iron, Karl Malmsten, wood, and numerous others have created individual works of art for the wealthy connoisseur. But also they have given a simple beauty to the commonest objects of household use, objects that can be bought in the stores of Stockholm. Nothing has been overlooked, it would seem, from tea towels to book bindings.

Carried Off Most of Crafts Prizes at Paris in 1925.

The Swedish arts and crafts movement has had many triumphs to its credit in the past. At the Paris exposition in 1925, the Swedish exhibits carried off a majority of the prizes. During the last five years Swedish artists and craftsmen have exerted a strong influence in Europe. Their works have frequently been seen in American museums. The present exposition represents the result of the arts and crafts movement.

It must be remembered that this has occurred in a country with a population of less than 6,000,000, about the size of greater New York. But the Swedish people of all classes, it is apparent, have a strong interest in architecture and the arts. They are vitally concerned with the kind of houses in which they live and the kind of objects they use in their daily life. And this is not true of a small educated class alone.

It is difficult to imagine in any other country so heated a controversy over architecture as that which has raged in the Swedish newspapers for nearly a year over the exposition buildings. Letters have poured in to the newspapers. It is a subject for street-corner debate. The word functionalism has been abbreviated to a slang expression,

"funkis." It is heard on every hand. It is not too much to say that the nation is divided into two groups, the functionalists and the traditionalists. For the most part this dispute has been good-natured. But in certain instances it has estranged architects and designers of the older school. They have felt that the architecture of the exposition should have been more typically Swedish; that it should have embodied traditional elements of Swedish architecture. They point to the fact that Sweden has many notable modern buildings which embody the rich background of the past.

Gay Brilliance Displaces Ornate Ponderousness.

Most critics from the outside agree, however, that the exposition directors were correct in choosing the functionalist architecture, as carried out by E. G. Asplund. It is simple and dramatic. There are great expanses of glass that show to best advantage the displays within. The flat white of the exposition buildings is contrasted with vivid blues and reds. There are flags everywhere and flowers that were forced into bloom in time for the exposition by the ingenious use of electrical wiring in the ground to produce heat. The guides and the venders are dressed in costumes of brilliant color and smart design. The music from several bands is carried throughout the exposition grounds by means of loud-speakers. It is all gay and clever and amusing, as it should be. There is none of the ornate ponderousness that has so often characterized expositions in the past.

The natural setting is beautiful. The buildings of the exposition are arranged along the shores of Djurgardsbrunnsviken, a quiet arm of the sea, one of the many that have given to Stockholm the name, Venice of the North. A great fountain, which is illuminated at night plays in the little body of water that is spanned by several bridges. The exposition is extremely attractive in appearance at night. The play of light along geometric lines is highly effective.

There also are a complete planetarium and an equarium and an amusement park that is done with a clever, modern touch.

"Sweden of Today" Shows Development of the Nation.

One of the most ingenious of these special pavilions is that called "Sweden of Today." Here every form of representation is used to show the growth of Sweden to its present point of development. Photographs, motion pictures, small scale models, all are employed to tell a coherent and logical story that the visitor is able to read at a glance as he moves through the three floors of the building.

The exposition was organized and is under the direction of the Swedish Craft Society. But the society was largely subsidized by the Federal Government and the City of Stockholm. It cost about $1,500,000, a fact which customarily amazes Americans, for the exposition buildings cover an impressive expanse. It is a tribute to Swedish thrift and ingenuity and a proof of the practical value of functionalist architecture—simple materials used with absolute severity.

One of the visitors from America most interested in the exposition, its organization and plan, is Edward Hungerford, advisory director of the board in charge of the Chicago exposition of 1933. Hungerford recently completed a two-weeks' study of the Stockholm fair. He found much to interest him and carried away many ideas which he hopes to put

Britain Wants to Do Right Thing In India, but Real Independence Is Unwise, Lloyd George Says

To Appease Revolutionary Leaders Would Mean Anarchy and Civil War and Conditions Worse Than in China.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

LONDON, June 7.

THE situation in India is undoubtedly grave. How serious it is and how menacing it may become it is difficult even for those best acquainted with the country to surmise with any feeling of certainty. In recent conversations which I have had with men of wide experience in Indian affairs, I have been struck with the note of hesitancy in their estimate of the prospects. This is by no means confined to Anglo-Indians. Native born Indians seem to be just as much in the dark as to what is likely to happen. How wide and how deep is the disaffection? Is it confined to the intelligentsia and town artisans or has it spread to the peasantry? Have the fighting races of the north become affected by the revolutionary sentiment? How long will the present movement last? I can find nowhere firm and satisfactory answers to these vital questions.

There is an equally fundamental question. What measure of reform will satisfy such a majority of the Indian population as to restore contentment to the country as a whole? Nothing short of real independence will appease the revolutionary leaders. This Britain cannot concede. It would end in complete anarchy, confusion and civil war. The state of China would be repeated and thus more than one-half of the population of the whole continent would be consigned to a state of sanguinary and devastating chaos.

Mohammedan and Hindu.

In India there are over 200 different races all talking different languages. There is nothing in common between the warlike races of the north and the gentler races of the center and south. You have also to reckon with the fierce rivalries of the two antagonistic religions, Mohammedan and Hindu. For centuries the religious animosity of the followers of these two great faiths has been a source of concern and constant trouble to the central government. The Hindu, in the greater part of India, constitutes the vast majority of the total population. But the Moslems number 70,000,000 and as a whole they are opposed to any settlement of Indian Government that would place them at the mercy of Hinduism. As the so-called fighting races are largely Moslem this provides a most formidable obstacle in the way of any concession in the near future of independence to India as a whole. That is one reason why the Moslems are in the main opposed to the turbulent attack which has been organized against British rule.

Nizam of Hyderabad who carries greatest weight with Mohammedan opinion in India has issued an important appeal within the last few days to his fellow religionists in the course of which he says: "I earnestly appeal to all, and more particularly my co-religionists, in India to realize that their common welfare lies in orderly progress and the provision in a future system of government of such safeguards as will ensure to all communities and interests their rightful position in their motherland. Let everyone therefore set himself against the attempt to destroy the foundations of order and range himself boldly on the side of constituted authority in the state or province in which his lot is cast. For myself I take my stand as my ancestors took theirs, on the time-honored treaties between my state and the British Government. In these it has been declared that the friends and enemies of either shall be the friends and enemies of both. To this declaration I have always adhered and God willing, will ever adhere."

This represents the general attitude of responsible Moslem opinion. It would welcome moderate and cautious reform but it has no sympathy with insurrectionary methods which imperil good order.

A Socialist Advantage.

The debate in the House of Commons last week struck the same temperate but resolute note. The Secretary of State for India left no doubt in the minds of the members that the Labor Government, whilst fully prepared to make all necessary concessions compatible with the authority of the central government, were determined to suppress all demonstrations which undermine good order. In this declaration the government carried with them almost the whole House of Commons without distinction of party. A few extremists protested against the steps taken to restore order but they found very little sympathy even amongst their fellow Socialists. From this point of view it is an undoubted advantage that at this moment there should be a Socialist Government in power. It will help to consolidate opinion in Britain behind the Viceroy in his struggle to quell lawlessness in India.

But the struggle is not yet over by any means. So far there has been a good deal of rioting but it has been suppressed without much shedding of blood. But if the stoning of police, which is a feature of most of those outbreaks, continues there is a limit to human patience and the government of India may be forced in order to protect the guardians of order to resort to sterner action. The military up to the present have been kept in reserve and there is an obvious anxiety not to bring them into action unless circumstances make it absolutely necessary to call them in. But if the casualties among the police continue to multiply the Indian Government will be driven to take steps to which it has been extremely reluctant to resort. Even now its forbearance is subject matter for considerable criticism in certain quarters. And the murmur is swelling. The British public as a whole puts its trust in the Viceroy and his advisers. They are confronted with an extremely difficult situation and there is no desire to criticise or rattle the man on the spot.

The delay in the arrest of Gandhi long after he had announced his intention to defy the law passed here without any audible protest. It was felt that Lord Irwin must know his business best and that it would be unwise to interfere with the man at the wheel in his steering of the ship through the dangerous shoals. But there are symptoms here of growing unrest and exasperation with the mob attacks on the men who are standing loyally by the flag.

Upholding Authority.

Are repressive measures the only answer Britain intends to give to the Nationalist movement in India? Far from it. Britain is determined to uphold with all its strength and authority of central government in that great country. It is convinced that unless it does so the condition of India will be infinitely worse than that of China. United India has learned by long experience forbearance of self-government and it would be criminal to leave its numerous races and its passionate creeds to fight it out amongst themselves. The world cannot afford to add another anarchist state to the list which al-

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy, or predatory poverty.

More About the Southwest.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Southwest, let me remind you, is not Texas alone, great though it be and destined for vastly greater things; nor Texas plus gallant, galloping Oklahoma. No, the Southwest is these with Louisiana and Arkansas added, both great in oil and cotton, too, with timber resources beyond the others.

The "lignite of Texas" begins in Arkansas and sweeps through Northwest Louisiana into East Texas. Let us call it, then, the lignite of Louisiana-Arkansas-Texas.

Louisiana contains the South's greatest city and the nation's second port. We do not yet know the showing of New Orleans in the census, but picturesque Shreveport, economic capital of Northwest Louisiana, Southwest Arkansas and East Texas—as much Texan as Louisianan—showed a greater per cent of gain (74) than either Dallas or San Antonio, while Monroe, in the heart of the world's greatest gas field, more than doubled.

And when speaking of strawberries, pray don't forget that Louisiana, around Hammond, grows more of these luscious delights than any other state and no finer are grown anywhere.

Louisiana, too, is the leading producer of furs, most of which reach market through St. Louis. It leads also in sugar and is great in salt and rice.

Again, when speaking of coal, let it be borne in mind that Arkansas has a wealth of this, not only Oklahoma, and in addition is blessed with the largest potential water power in the Southwest. When it comes to mineral resources, indeed, Arkansas is easily first. That it contains our chief deposits of bauxite (the basis of aluminum) is well known. It also contains one of the largest and finest glass sand deposits at Guion. Even diamonds occur in Arkansas. "In mineral resources," states Henry Mace Payne, consulting engineer of the American Mining Congress, "Arkansas is the richest of any state and the least developed."

Your editorial in the issue for May 30 on "The Southwest" was fine, but it did not go far enough. In speaking of this great and most rapidly developing of all sections, let us in the future remember to include Arkansas and Louisiana, also important parts of "the hinterland of St. Louis."

Wartime Conscription of Property.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

BOTH houses of Congress have approved a commission of inquiry to study a proposal to amend the Constitution to authorize wartime conscription of property. It is a dangerous proposal, constituting a menace both to international relations and to the rights and liberties of the citizens. The state is designed solely to safeguard the citizenry, and should be subservient to the citizenry as a whole. An amendment of the nature would grant the state powers that would make the citizenry subservient, and reverse the theory of democracy.

In all governments there is an increasing tendency toward centralization of power. The amendment in question would be another, and undesirable, increase in centralization, and that in the direction of war. Increase the potential war power, and the incentive for war is increased. Wartime powers, also, have a tendency to carry over into peace times. O. F.

Unequal Warfare.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

HAVING successfully demonstrated the use of machine guns and bombs in modern crime, Chicago gangsters have gone a step farther in bringing the battlefield to the boulevard by laying a smoke screen in escaping from a pursuing police car after a holdup. As a rule, police officers are hamstrung by antiquated equipment and methods.

Yet in the face of mounting evidence of the unequalness of the struggle, there are still some sincere people who think police radios are foolish playthings. State police capitalistic tools and all other moves for modern facilities mere political patter. Police might well demand parity. C.

Gen. Pershing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REFERRING to the almost continuous sojourning of Gen. Pershing in France, mentioned by Ray Peterson, the undersigned has often wondered whether the French people had perhaps made him a present of a house, as well they might; or whether he is being retained by the French Government to advise them on securing the security they are always clamoring for, or whether our Government is maintaining him over there as a sort of military ambassador extraordinary. AN UNFORTUNATE SITUATION.

While the disposition to believe that there are secret commitments in the London treaty is probably very limited, it is unfortunate that Mr. Hoover's administration has been forced into a position of refusing to let the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee see the correspondence that preceded the conference.

Mr. Stimson's refusal upon the score that to give out the correspondence will jeopardize the public interest is, of course, allowable in governmental usage. Nevertheless, it will have the effect of lending strength to the opponents of the treaty and inflaming public feeling upon such irrelevancies as the World Court and the League of Nations. The recent primary fight in Illinois on the World Court issue illustrates the intrusive possibilities of such an issue. The London treaty is something quite apart from all other international considerations. It is an agreement in which the United States, Great Britain and Japan undertake to stop competition in naval construction. But we have learned that in such an unfamiliar sphere as foreign affairs the American people are easily carried off into fields far removed from the subject. It was our unfamiliarity with foreign affairs that kept us out of the League of Nations. Article X has not been interpreted to mean that the soldiers of any country can be dispatched by a super-government to die on foreign shores, but the people were made to fear that it would mean this. The bugaboo of super-government awaits only the demagogue.

In our opinion Mr. Hoover can afford to stretch a point in this matter. It is not easy to believe that there is anything very embarrassing in the private correspondence. The worst one could imagine of it is that Mr. MacDonald might have confessed the plight of Britain, and Britain herself has done that by admitting that she no longer rules the waves. There is at the time apparently very little opposition in the Senate to the treaty, and Mr. Hoover should be careful not to increase it. Refusal to send the correspondence to the Foreign Affairs Committee will be likely to lend credence to reports of secret commitments. It does not look good, and the country may fear that there is something to charges that the American delegation has not been quite frank with the Senate. The best way to reassure the country is for Mr. Hoover to take the Senate into his confidence. It shares his responsibility, and it has a perfect right to see everything appertaining to the treaty. That ought not necessarily to mean making public what would jeopardize the national interest.

NOTE ON CIVILIZATION.

An Associated Press dispatch from Kansas City, headed "$5,000,000 Moved Safely," says:

> Five million dollars was moved from the Liberty National Bank to the Fidelity National Bank and Trust Co. under an armed police guard . . . . Sixteen detectives with riot guns, rifles and pistols lined the two blocks between the banks while an armored truck made five trips, carrying $1,000,000 in securities each time. Two detectives with a machine gun, and 10 motor cycle officers escorted the truck.

Judging from the Grand National Bank's recent experience, there should also have been a couple of trench mortars, a French .75, an observation balloon, an airplane pursuit squadron and a cavalry troop. Such are our necessities after 6000 years of civilization.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE BISHOP.

The Lobby Investigating Committee is somewhat confused as to what next to do with Bishop Cannon. Several courses of procedure are open, none of which, however, stands out as the most desirable. What has been agreed on is that the committee will await the return to Washington of its chairman, Senator Caraway, before announcing a decision. Meantime, the country must possess its soul in patience, always a more or less trying experience.

Were the moods and personnel different, suggestions might be offered. The impasse in debatable affairs is, as everyone knows, a familiar phenomenon. Men have been known to pause in such deadlocks, press a button or crook a finger and over glasses divinely tall or pungently squat, resolve their differences and sail forth happily into the night on tides of song and laughter. That would not do in this case at all. The righteous Bishop and the ascetic Senator Walsh, both thou-shalt-notters under the skin, are not to be mellowed by any such factitious persuasion. And Senator Caraway's bonhomie is solely intellectual. He points a verbal barb with gusto, drives an epigram to the hilt with toreador precision; but he stalks along the paths of deportment, a grim, forbidding figure. As for Senator Borah, he wouldn't know a fleshpot if he saw one; his is the congenital virtue that has never had to steel itself against temptation; he was born under a rare, saintly conjunction of stars. Senator Blaine talks like an erring fellow mortal, but if such be his graceful estate he is a solitary sinner in his present company. Last of all is Senator Robinson of Indiana—last and least.

But there must be a way out of this contretemps. Chairman Caraway's change of heart may be considered. His earlier zeal for examining the Bishop has vanished and he would now have the committee radio a belated good-by to the witness that left it interrogating the air. So, perhaps, a pleasant solution would be to let Senator Caraway and Bishop Cannon adjourn to a cozy corner and talk it over like two turtle doves.

DEATH VALLEY IN BLOSSOM.

Death Valley reappears on the front page, but, if her name were not announced, no one would guess her identity. The blistering old hag we have known as the chatelaine of Scotty's mythical gold mine which really existed in the safety deposit box of a Chicago broker—this old hell-cat beams upon our sight in flowering chiffon, a blessed damozel, as radiant as the unexpressive she whose name Orlando carved on every tree. She comes with apple blossoms in her hair, while from the miraculous bounty of her conjuring hands stream larkspur and orchids and roses and lilies and poppies and those humbler bits of beauty the poets sometimes sing of but are never found in the best sellers—daisies and buttercups and bluebells and black-eyed susans. The Plutonian plateau is as a Garden of Allah, through which one walks on a carpet of purple velvet along lanes of hyacinths, starred with asphodel and canopied in wistaria. What has wrought this wonder? The press reports accredit it all to the rains of May which transmuted the sage and the sand and the cactus into acacias and clovered gladness and beckoning greenery. With all due respect to the rains of May one has only to spread out the map to know that Death Valley has been made a blossomy wonder by the California climate.

MR. WOLL AND THE TARIFF.

Matthew Woll now steps forward to raise his voice in defense of the pending tariff of abominations. Mr. Woll is a former president of the Photo-Engravers' Union, a vice president of the American Federation of Labor and president of the Union Labor Life Insurance Co. He now speaks as president of the American Wage-Earners' Protective Conference, which claims to represent the interests of American labor in tariff legislation.

In a letter to Senator Hatfield of West Virginia, Mr. Woll attacks the 1000 economists who protested the passage of the Smoot-Hawley bill. "They are neither producers nor creators of any commodity or article of trade," says he. "They are generally cloistered in the atmosphere of the schoolroom, and their mental wares do not enter into competition with foreign producers. Briefly," he concludes, "these economists and college professors are consumers, one of our selfish interests."

But now there come forward President Sloan of General Motors, President Erskine of the Studebaker Co., President Nash of Nash Motors, Harvey Firestone and Henry Ford to join with a host of leaders in business and industry in condemning the pending bill. Here are men who are scarcely "cloistered in the atmosphere of the schoolroom."

Mr. Woll returns to the fray. He writes another letter, addressing a copy to each of the members of Congress. Says he: "The international bankers and importers, partially through their desire to further their selfish interests and partially to cater to the desires of those in control of foreign markets, have been conducting an insidious campaign to make the American people believe that we should reduce our tariff rates, or, better still, eliminate our tariff altogether. Behind this campaign is either a desire to force American workers to the same level of low living conditions as exists in European countries, or a total disregard for the well-being of America's wage earners."

Everybody is selfish, it seems, but Mr. Woll. Let us look at the record. Last summer he appeared before the House Committee on Ways and Means as a lobbyist representing the International Allied Printing Trades and appealed for higher rates on printed matter. Here Mr. Woll admitted, when questioned by Congressman Hull of Tennessee, that out of 25,000,000 wage earners in the United States, not more than 5,000,000 could look for higher money wages from protection.

Mr. Woll, it seems, was willing to raise the cost of living to the 25,000,000 in order to increase the wages of the 5,000,000. Congressman Rainey of Illinois asked Mr. Woll whether we might not be able to get along without raising the prices of Bibles at least to consumers. "We are not interested in the matter of the price to the consumer," said Mr. Woll.

Does Mr. Woll not realize that higher prices for goods cut the demand for goods, thus destroying the market for all industry and depressing the standard of living?

A TRUE SUCCESS STORY.

In these days when American youth grows pessimistic about the chances for carving out a future, every young man should ponder over the true success story of David M. Milton Jr. Just past 30, he has already made an astonishing record in this busy world of affairs. Milton was born near New York, the son of parents not to be classed as wealthy. After applying himself assiduously through grammar school, high school and college, he studied law at Columbia University, to fit himself for a career. Associated with a New York law firm, he worked hard and long, a point not to be overlooked by a younger generation that is coming to consider success a mere matter of luck, or, as it slangily termed, "the breaks." Then Milton fell in love, as every young man should do now and then. His young sweetheart became his life partner, willing to share with him the upward struggle toward success and recognition. David Milton, launched into a business project for himself after five years, now may fittingly be described as a successful man by the world's exacting standards. His inspiring accomplishment is as unusual as it is enviable. He has just borrowed a million dollars from his father-in-law, John D. Rockefeller Jr.

What the St. Louis census will show is that the people have pretty much moved to St. Louis County.

SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI.

Springfield, Missouri, might be one of those leaping Oklahoma or Texas cities, judged by the census report. With a gain of slightly more than 45 per cent over the 1920 figures, she now has a population of 57,000. Her claim as Missouri's fourth city, contested by assertive Joplin in the latter's heyday, has long been securely established. Indeed, if she continues to advance as in the past decade she will presently be requesting St. Joseph to step aside.

Should that come to pass, Springfield will make the request politely. For Springfield has the air which "marks the caste of Vere de Vere." No daughter of a hundred earls was ever more serenely free of self-consciousness. Thus she was, even in her days of fading fortune. One recalls the town when her commercial setting was almost shabby. One searches in vain to remember a distinctive bit of beauty in her business architecture. But beyond the square was pillared elegance, the dignity of elm and oak, glimpses of old gardens. In the Springfield that was one can see duennas in their carriages pausing at shops to be waited on by clerkly deference. One can see ancient beaus bowing low over gloved fingers, chatting happily in leisurely oblivion of trade and tradesmen, and making adieus with proud punctilio.

Prosperity has come to Springfield, a modern city located upon one of the most picturesque of motor highways, the Springfield road. Her modest brick tradition is gone. She has been seized by the skyscraper contagion. She swings along through the clamor of crowded days in towered success. Some family names of manorial legend have disappeared in the mutations. Landmarks have vanished which fascinated the visitor of 30 years ago, scarred survivals of dreams and struggles, breathing of romance, fine in their immemorial fitness. Other times, other manners. But the quality of Springfield endureth. A competent city, alert and energetic and thriving, but yet a city of charm which men and women delight to call home.

The anti-saloon racket is not doing so well.

COMING HOME TO ROOST.

In Medieval Carcassonne

Towers, moats and drawbridges, civic assets in days when ancient city was pawn of conquerors, now impress the traveler; tourists in greater number than armies of old have captured venerable stronghold; ruins date back to time of Visigoths; slits for pouring molten lead on enemy show what war was when knights were bold.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Elizabeth Lord Driemeyer.

PARIS, May 25.

WE left Barcelona in the afternoon, and, after riding through beautiful green fields, acres of poplars set out neatly in rows with gentle rolling hills in the foreground and higher mountains at a distance, behind which the sun set, we came to Carcassonne. It was about 10 o'clock at night and the hotel bus in which we rode through the lower town at length turned into a dark little street which wound about and at last brought us to the great entrance gate in the walls of the old fortress. Thus we came over a moat now dry and grass-covered, across a bridge, which was once raised at will, and up the narrow little cobblestoned streets of the inside town.

The hotel turned out to be not the ordeal of which we had been warned, but a charming new place—done in old Gothic style and in keeping with the ancient church of St. Nazaire, which is its next-door neighbor. The hotel has pointed arches and windows, leaded glass panes, a royal coat-of-arms and banners, the fleur-de-lis and the lion rampant patterned on the walls of the dining room. It is altogether lovely. The stars were out and we could see from our balcony the pointed towers and high walls of the fortifications.

In the morning we walked around the city between the inner and the outer walls. In the lists, as they are called, we climbed onto the walk on the inside of the outer walls. Then we climbed about some of the towers which had an outside walk and marveled at the impregnability of the whole.

The top of the wall is not continuous but broken. Solid blocks alternate with open spaces and a walk runs along the top. There are towers at intervals and some open baywindow-like upon watch platforms. There are many square openings to shoot through and long thin slits sloping at the base for pouring hot lead on the enemy. The gate through which we had entered was strongly fortified with the moat and drawbridge. There were several gates of spikes which they dropped, and just inside the pathway turns to make entrance harder for an army. The towers were built to give access for shooting in all directions and to house troops.

There is an old church from the twelfth century and a chateau which was the home of the lord of the district. There is a third and inner fortification, for even when the enemy was inside the city he was still far from inside the chateau. The inner has no connection with the outer defense and is separated from the town site by a moat and bridges.

Within the last 50 or more years the fortress, considered the most picturesque relic remaining from those days of old when men were bold and barons held their sway, has been restored to its former glory. It is now a great show place, but the walls and towers are still partly old. They show evidence of the various peoples who held it and built onto it and the different ways in which they did it.

There was a settlement here in prehistoric days, just as the Basques settled around the Bay of Biscay in the stone age. The Romans passed by on their conquest of the world and had a fortress of a sort here, for Carcassonne is strategically located on the road to Spain and the highway from the Mediterranean to the Atlantic. Pliny mentions its being held by the Gauls. The Visigoths held it for a long time and built many towers and walls, part of which are still to be seen. Clovis stormed the town but was unable to take it. Even the Saracens got in temporarily. Later Louis IX, our own St. Louis, and after him Charles the Bold, added extensively to its fortifications.

It is an impressive old place, with a checkered past. It has been battered down and rebuilt and stormed time and again. The little River Aude runs at the foot of the hill on which it is built. The little river was a raging torrent when we were there, but it runs now with water instead of blood.

After walking about for several hours and getting thoroughly wet, we came back into the town and through the narrow little streets, still cobblestoned, with a depression running through the middle to carry off the water. There are several little open squares, with old medieval wells in the center. People were scarce about the town as they all take to shelter when it pours. One dreary little street which ends in nothingness—or a bit of open ground looking toward the chateau—was called the Rue de la Paix! A far cry from its showy namesake, where diamonds as large as hen's eggs are a common sight in the windows. After lunch the sun almost came out. We went out again and took a guide through some of the towers.

It seemed bad luck striking such a day to see Carcassonne when we had to leave that night—having our tickets and not being able to change them. Yet in a way the weather fitted in with the place and the grim old fortress looked more grim through the rain. We saw Port Arthur, the old prison settlement at the bottom of Tasmania, in just such weather, and you get the impression that in such an unhappy place as that the skies must have always wept. It is only right that they should—to see such beautiful places turned into such hells.

Carcassonne, like so many places in Western Europe, was the scene of a Huguenot massacre in 1566, and there probably is not a tower in the fortress which was not at some time the scene of foul murder. What pictures of the past are conjured up at this one of the old cross-roads of time, a way traveled in turn by the swift-footed armies of Caesar and the crack legions of Trajan, the wild hordes of Attila, and at length the irresistible armies of the great Napoleon. It is not apparent that faith, whether pagan or Christian, ever made any difference. Whatever they professed, they all practiced arms in the same way. It was the discovery of gunpowder that ended the tumult and the shouting around Carcassonne. When it was confined to battering-rams and broadswords its great walls and ivy-covered towers served very well. The feudal lord could sleep within and let the enemy howl without. It is amusing to think upon this historic fortress and realize that one of our Chicago gangs, with a basket of pineapples, could blow much of this unimpregnable set-up into the River Aude in a few minutes. Its sole army today is armed with cameras, its manual a Baedeker and its jabber something that would have made the Goths and the Vandals wonder.

But Carcassonne is very lovely—so historic and picturesque and proud. It was for centuries the symbol of power in Southern France, a frowning challenge to whomever came that way on conquest bent. Nothing could be more aloof in our own time than the old fortress at the top of the hill is from the modern town at the bottom. Nor could anything be more unlike the great highways of our own time than Carcassonne, which one time saw the colorful traffic of another era, even unto the elephants of Carthage and the men who came down from the Rhine and the Danube dressed in the skins of the bear and the wolf.

We will be fortunate in another city if we leave anything half so interesting as Carcassonne.

Bishop Cannon's Case

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

BISHOP James Cannon Jr. of the Southern Methodist Episcopal Church in charge of Brazil and the African Congo, Ecclesiastically speaking, those regions are his field of labor. No criticism has ever been offered of his work in foreign missions; not even at the recent Dallas conference of Bishops and national congress of the church, in which he was the storm center, did his antagonists seek to deprive him of his vast missionary diocese.

It may be deplored, however, that a motion requiring Bishops to make their residence within their own dioceses failed to pass. The motion was directly aimed at Bishop Cannon; and, perhaps, for that very reason it was rejected. His friends controlled the conference, even so influential a Southern Methodist as Josephus Daniels being ineffective in his anti-Cannon drive. Yet what better place could there be for the Bishop in the next few years than Brazil and the African Congo? He not only belongs there; he belongs nowhere else.

It was natural for a fighting Bishop to beat his enemies, if he could. Had he been a mature churchman in the Civil War, he would have become a General in the Confederate Army like Bishop Leonidas Polk. But the trouble is that, while continuing to make his residence in Washington, D. C., the Bishop will hold on to his position as chairman of the Board of Temperance, Public Morals and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In this office his public usefulness has been discredited and largely destroyed. He escaped a church trial on the stock speculation charges only by a confession that he had sinned—or at least had gravely erred in judgment. And he wept on the platform before the whole conference when the confession of errancy was made public.

Brazil and the African Congo are crying for Bishop James Cannon.

Story Told by Visitor.

He introduced himself as an ad[mi]tive officer of the French staff who, forced by necessity, had to take a step which was liable to make him seem contemptible to me, but which he had very carefully considered as being absolutely inevitable to save his wife and children from ruin.

Through unfavorable circumstances; through unfortunate speculation; through the illness of his wife, he had been put in a financial predicament, and to save his small estate near Chalons he was forced to secure money from any attainable source.

All his attempts to do this in an honorable and legal way had failed, and he could see no other way out of his difficulties than to offer his services to the German staff, hoping that by so doing he would shortly be in a position to live up to his manifold obligations.

After careful consideration, he had decided that this was the only way left to him. If unsuccessful he would be forced to commit suicide. The thought of leaving his wife and children unprovided for had until that time prevented him taking this last step, though he was fully convinced that it would be the best way out of his worries.

He claimed to be in a position to offer important services, having been in Algiers for a long time and therefore being very familiar with the military conditions there; in addition to which he had been doing service at the Italian frontier and was thoroughly acquainted with the frontier defense. In 1918-19 he had worked in the Intelligence Service Office of the War Office.

Rebuffed at First.

He further stated that Col. Sandherr, Chief of the Intelligence Office, was his friend and President Casimir Perier his fellow scholar. Another of his friends was Deputy Jules Roche, who had promised to promote him to the position of Sous-Chef, should he (Roche) become Secretary of War.

German Army Officer Who Dealt With Capt. Esterhazy Proves Dreyfus Innocent Of Charge of Selling French Military Secrets

Military Attache at the German Embassy in Paris When the Dreyfus Case Began.

(This manuscript has been released by Kulturpolitik of Berlin, Germany, publishers of book on the Dreyfus case, which will later be brought out by an American publishing house.)

ON July 20, 1894, between 3 and 4 o'clock p. m., the usher, August Burdet, at the Military Attache's Office in Paris (Rue de Lille 78) announced to me a Frenchman who desired my advice in passport matters. This was nothing unusual, because there existed at that time a passport control for Alsace-Lorraine, and French officers who desired to spend their vacations there, had first to obtain the permission of the Governor of Strassbourg.

These requests were often refused, and for this reason the French officers addressed themselves very often to the German Military Attache for his intervention. I asked the usher to have the visitor shown into my room and a gentleman entered I immediately recognized to be a French officer in civilian attire.

He might have been 42 or 45 years of age, was of middle height, slenderly built with a sinewy face, sunken black eyes, thick, rather gray hair, and a heavy, gray, military moustache.

In the buttonhole of his frock coat he wore the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor. When entering he showed a certain embarrassment and nervousness, his stealthy glance examining my room to make sure I was alone.

Story Told by Visitor.

He introduced himself as an active officer of the French staff, who, forced by necessity, had to take a step which was liable to make him seem contemptible to me, but which he had very carefully considered as being absolutely inevitable to save his wife and children from ruin.

Through unfavorable circumstances; through unfortunate speculation; through the illness of his wife, he had been put in a financial predicament, and to save his small estate near Chalons he was forced to secure money from any attainable source.

All his attempts to do this in an honorable and legal way had failed, and he could see no other way out of his difficulties than to offer his services to the German staff, hoping that by so doing he would shortly be in a position to live up to his manifold obligations.

After careful consideration, he had decided that this was the only way left to him. If unsuccessful, he would be forced to commit suicide. The thought of leaving his wife and children unprovided for had until that time prevented his taking this last step, though he was fully convinced that it would be the best way out of his worries.

He claimed to be in a position to offer important services, having been in Algiers for a long time and therefore being very familiar with the military conditions there, in addition to which he had been doing service at the Italian frontier and was thoroughly acquainted with the frontier defense. In 1881-82 he had worked in the Intelligence Service Office of the War Office.

Rebuffed at First.

He further stated that Col. Sandherr, Chief of the Intelligence Office, was his friend and President Casimir Perier his fellow scholar. Another of his friends was Deputy Jules Roche, who had promised to promote him to the position of Sous-chef, should he (Roche) become Secretary of War.

At present he was doing active service outside of Paris, but would return to Paris soon to take up his manifold connections with the War Office. In a few days he would have the opportunity to attend important military demonstrations in the camp at Chalons. To prove that he actually was in the possession of important information, he drew a document from his pocket, requesting me to read it.

I was greatly surprised and shocked. An active French officer who is not ashamed to betray his country, and, without hesitation, requests a brother officer for his mediation!

Returning the document I replied that it was not my business to assist an officer to depart from duty and honor and that I could only advise him to refrain from his purpose and to forget the entire matter, as I would forget it.

He replied that he had carefully considered his action, that he was fully aware that by doing so he had abused himself to a "canaille," but that it was impossible for him to undo his action. Should I refuse to assist him, he would try other ways to utilize his knowledge, because it was essential for him to obtain money.

I again impressed upon him the infamy of his action and dismissed him with the remark that it was impossible for me, in my position, to consider his proposition. He left, saying that he would return in a few days.

Ordered to Negotiate.

On July 21, the next day, I received a letter from him in which he informed me: "I am leaving very soon for the trip which I have mentioned to you" (to Chalons for target-practice of the Army), and that owing to his family relations he would be able to give me important Russian news.

On July 22, I reported to the Intelligence Service Office in Berlin concerning this meeting, and on the 26th received an order to negotiate with the agent.

In the evening of July 27, he came unannounced to my office in the Embassy, introducing himself as Major Count Walsin-Esterhazy, commander of a battalion of the Seventy-fourth Regiment of Infantry in Rouen. The family name of his wife was de Nettencourt-Vaubecourt, he being the owner of the castle Dommartin near St. Menehould. The families Clermont-Bonnaire were his relations.

To confirm the truth of his statement he submitted to me the journal of mobilization of the Seventy-fourth Regiment and demanded a monthly compensation of 2000 francs.

Again I tried to convince the major that his action was inexcusable. He repeated, however, that he was forced to do so, and would address himself elsewhere if I did not accept.

In Strictest Secrecy.

To meet the desire of the Intelligence Service Office in Berlin, I suggested to the Major that I put him in direct communication with that office, not wishing personally to have anything to do with the matter. He firmly declined this proposition, stating that matters of this nature could be effected only between two persons from hand to hand, every additional person being a danger.

It would be perfectly all right for him to be in direct connection with me, because nobody would believe him capable of such action. He would solely and exclusively visit me at the Embassy, which could be done without causing suspicion, since so many people called at the Embassy.

I dismissed the Major with the words that I could not consider his offer and again requested him to desist from his plan. He went away, leaving me the journal of mobilization, stating that he would return for it, thereby announcing further visits.

I felt it my duty to discuss the matter with Maj. Muller, Chief of the Intelligence Service. He was on his vacation in Michelstadt in the Odenwald. I went there and on Aug. 4 had the desired conversation with him.

Maj. Muller advised me to get in touch with this apparently very valuable source if I felt sure that we could expect important information.

The connection should be severed immediately if the information did not prove essential. We were, however, not in a position to offer a fixed monthly compensation. It was up to me to judge the value of the information.

Paid 1000 Francs.

I returned to Paris on Aug. 6. Esterhazy visited me again on Aug. 13 at my office in the Embassy at 10 p. m. I again expressed my dislike to accept his offer, again showed him the risk we ran, returned the journal of mobilization to him, stating that it did not contain important information and advised him to discontinue these negotiations, since I could not see the value of such a dangerous undertaking.

Esterhazy again tried to explain that he was in a position to supply documents of the utmost importance, and that this would be possible without any danger to me or to him. He engaged himself to supply the new mobilization of the artillery, which he actually submitted to me on Aug. 15.

A quick perusal of his document made me recognize its value, and I felt myself in duty bound to acquire this document for the staff, having been requested more than once to obtain detailed news concerning the mobilization of artillery. I gave Esterhazy 1000 francs and he assured me that he would supply very interesting news within the next few days.

By this action my course was decided, although I was fully aware of the serious responsibility I had taken upon myself. I took this step, believing that in the interest of my army I was forced to take it, but never for a moment did I forget that my personal position was in danger and that, as a Prussian officer, I could be put in a very disagreeable position.

Brings More Documents.

On Sept. 1 Esterhazy again visited me at my office and submitted much interesting information and the following documents written by him personally:

1. Schedule of protective troops.
2. Description of the short gun 120 (Canon Court 120).
3. Manual Plan of Artillery practice in campaign.

He informed me that the expedition to Madagascar was a fact; that he had just now returned from the maneuvers of the artillery in the Camp of Sissone, Department of Aisne (in the bordereau: "I am leaving for the maneuvers.") and would send me his information concerning his observations within a short time.

This report was submitted to me by Esterhazy personally on Sept. 5, and by letter on Sept. 6, a report on the intended expedition to Madagascar.

Start of "Dreyfus Affair."

I am giving here detailed reports and data because they form the starting point of the so-called "Affair Dreyfus." The submitting of the bordereau to the reporter of the embassy must have preceded the handing of the documents on Sept. 1, 1894—in the period between Aug. 16 to Sept. 1. Bordereau means an explanatory letter accompanying certain inclosed documents, enumerating these documents in detail. In this event, however, only the bordereau was submitted, which read as follows:

"Without any news that you desire to see me, I am addressing to you, sir, the following interesting information:

"1. Information on the 'Frein hydrolique' of 120 and the manner in which this contrivance must be handled.

"2. Note on the protective troops (some modifications are made in the new plan).

"3. Information concerning a modification of the formation of the Artillery.

"4. Information concerning Madagascar.

"5. Manual purpose on Artillery shooting. (March 14, 1894).

"The last mentioned document has been extremely difficult to supply and will be at my disposal for a few days only. The Secretary of War has dispatched a limited number to each Corps and these Corps are responsible for same. Each officer must return his copy immediately after the maneuvers.

"If you will kindly take what is of interest to you and then hold the document at my disposal, I shall take it back unless you prefer that I copy the entire document and forward the copy to you. "I am leaving for the maneuvers."

This clearly shows that the bordereau never came to my hands, that it was delivered to the Embassy by Esterhazy during the period between Aug. 16 and Sept. 1, before his departure for the maneuvers and without having reached me, was submitted by a third party to the French Intelligence Office.

Printed by Paris Paper.

By a peculiar coincidence this matter never was referred to between Esterhazy and me, so I learned of the existence of such a bordereau not earlier than 1896, when the facsimilie of it appeared in the Matin.

Esterhazy evidently assumed that the document reached his address. Who was the party who handed it to the French Intelligence Office has never been ascertained, but, after all that we have learned concerning the intelligence services rendered by Mrs. Bastian, who was employed at the German Embassy as charwoman, there remains no doubt that she has played a part in this matter.

Mrs. Bastian already was employed at the Embassy when I came to Paris. I have always said it is dangerous to have a French woman in German employ, but have always been told by various parties that Mrs. Bastian not only was absolutely trustworthy, but also too stupid to do intelligence service.

It was her duty to clean the studies of the military and naval attaches, to light the stoves, etc. She did the same work in the private apartment of an official of the Chancellery, who lived in the house.

Speculation Over Discovery.

Her further duty was to empty the waste paper baskets in which were thrown all harmless—in my opinion—papers torn into small pieces. Since I assumed that Mrs. Bastian utilized papers to light the fire or destroyed them, it is possible that pieces of paper may have been thrown in the basket which probably may have interested people desirous to learn something about my life and my connections. But I feel sure that no important news has found its way to the French Intelligence Office in this way. Doubtless other dishonorable methods were used in this instance.

That the bordereau could not have been found in the waste paper basket is proved by the fact that I never received it. Mrs. Bastian or a secret service agent must have discovered it in my letter-box at the porter's lodge, and to prove authentically that it had been found in my waste paper basket, somebody tore it to pieces. The old porter Pessin as well as his wife, a born English woman, in my opinion had no part in this affair.

Esterhazy Comes Again.

On Sept. 24 I left for Berlin and on Oct. 9 returned to Paris. On Oct. 13 Esterhazy visited me again and submitted to me among other matters the "reglette" of the correspondence as well as an extensive work on the conditions of the French army.

It is not my intention to enumerate all the visits of Esterhazy to my office, the documents which he submitted to me and everything of interest which he told me. I merely mention that he visited me approximately every fortnight and that the value of his information increased with his visits.

However, when I noticed that Esterhazy, when not in a position to give interesting authentic information, simply invented such information or submitted news that was already known, I severed our relations in March, 1896.

On Monday, Oct. 29, 1894, the following notice appeared in the Libre Parole:

"Is it true that a very important arrest has been made by the command of the military authorities? The arrested person apparently is accused of espionage. If this information is correct, why the silence of the military authorities? There is only one reply to our questions."

Dreyfus' Names Brought In.

This notice naturally was commented on by all newspapers and the strangest rumors were spread in connection with it. The Matin of Oct. 31 for the first time published the news that this espionage affair concerned Germany, and on Nov. 1 the same paper for the first time mentioned the name Alfred Dreyfus, Captain of the 14th Regiment of Artillery, commissioned to the Staff.

When I learned that this affair was connected with Germany I was more than surprised. Notwithstanding the repeated assurances of Esterhazy that I should not worry on his account, I felt that there was always a possibility of his relations with me being discovered.

This burden was lifted from my shoulders when I heard the name Dreyfus, since my conscience was clear in connection with Captain Dreyfus. The fact that Esterhazy when visiting me at the Embassy on Nov. 3 (three days after the papers had published the news concerning the arrest of an active French officer), behaved as if nothing had happened, added to my peace of mind.

Another instalment of Gen. Schwartzkoppen's revelations will appear in an early issue of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MARTYR AND BETRAYER.—Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, above, and Maj. Count Esterhazy, below, whose sale of French military secrets to Germany in 1894 provided a world famous scandal.

Broke Silence When Dying of War Wounds

"FRENCHMEN, listen to me! Herewith I declare, so all may hear it, that Alfred Dreyfus is innocent! He has never done anything! It has all been intrigue and falsifications! I repeat it again—Dreyfus is innocent!!"

General Max von Schwartzkoppen, former Military Attache at the German Embassy in Paris, lay dying of war wounds in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Berlin, in 1917. Aroused from a long period of unconsciousness, he started up in bed and shouted those words—the outpouring of a troubled conscience. His wife, seated at his bedside, wrote them down.

Several days later General von Schwartzkoppen died. He had been an outstanding figure in the Dreyfus affair. It is now revealed that he left a memorandum on the Dreyfus case—actually a confession on his part in that historic scandal that convulsed France and arrested world-wide attention more than thirty years ago.

As Colonel von Schwartzkoppen, German Military Attache in Paris in 1894, he was a pivotal personality in the scandal. It was to him that Captain Alfred Dreyfus, a French Army officer, was accused of conveying military secrets of France, was tried, convicted, degraded and sent to Devil's Island, the dread French penal colony off French Guiana.

After a long effort by his family and friends, Dreyfus was finally officially exonerated, restored to his rank in the French Army and decorated with the Legion of Honor.

Count Esterhazy, another French Army officer, was shown to have been the real betrayer of military secrets. But amid a tangle of powerful political intrigue, he was acquitted by a court martial and died in exile under an assumed name in 1923.

Schwartzkoppen could have saved Dreyfus, but was never permitted by the German Government to give testimony in the latter's behalf.

In his confession, just brought to light and published in St. Louis for the first time, Schwartzkoppen reveals the details of Esterhazy's treasonable dealings with him.

to use in Chicago. Later the Ambassador to England, Charles G. Dawes, a Chicagoan who is vitally interested in that city's exposition, is expected to visit Stockholm. Hungerford is continuing a tour of Europe in search for further material and ideas.

Exposition Is Proving Magnet for Tourists.

It remains to be seen, of course, whether or not the exposition here will be a financial success. There are several indications that it will be. It has served already to stimulate very greatly the movement of tourists to Stockholm. Hotels and pensions are reserved through the entire summer. In addition, the management has arranged to bring large parties from all parts of Sweden to Stockholm for the exposition. This was carefully planned in advance.

On the opening day, when the King, the Crown Prince and other members of the royal family attended there was an attendance of 57,000, and, for so early in the season, the attendance from day to day has been good.

But whether the exposition comes up, financially, to the hopes of the directors—and those hopes are very high—it will have served its purpose. It will have shown the cultural and social significance of Sweden in the world today, a significance that has too long been obscured by certain characteristics of the Swedish temperament—a kind of formalism and reserve, which might perhaps be called modesty.

Real Independence For India Unwise, Lloyd George Says ready covers hundreds of millions of the people of the earth.

But within these limits the boundaries of liberty can be considerably extended. In fact it is only within these limits that they can be safely extended at all. What recommendations the Simon Commission have agreed to make is not yet known. No one can complain that its members have courted failure through lack of deliberation. They have taken their time to think out their conclusions. There has been a certain amount of impatience shown with their tardiness. That will disappear when the report comes out. It was essential that there should be no disagreement amongst the members. Conflicting reports would have encouraged conflict. Disaffection on one side or another either in India or here might have rallied around a minority report. Sir John Simon has achieved a real triuumph of unanimity in a commission consisting of Conservative, Socialist and Liberal members. I fear there is little hope of any proposal they may make being accepted by the revolutionary leaders. But if moderate reformers are reconciled, peace will ultimately be restored on the basis of good will. There is a genuine desire amongst all parties in Britain to do the right thing in India without any regard to selfish interests.

But never was it more difficult to find out the true course of justice, wisdom and right. Independence would certainly not be wise; it is more than doubtful whether it would be just and right under present conditions to the minority races and creeds and to the depressed classes.

Reflections From Private Life

stitutional method of changing our statutes and our fundamental law, whenever the people desire, but that so long as the Constitution and the laws remain, the duty of all people to observe them in good faith and of all duly authorized public officers to enforce them in good faith can only be denied by an appeal to anarchy.

No one need feel that a country which maintains this attitude will not, candidly and without prejudice, examine any proposals that art made for the improvement of its people and the betterment of its condition.

If we could all keep in mind that nothing, not even the art of finding fault, is yet perfect, and that the burden of proof is on those who propose a change to show that it would result in an gether with less bitterness and improvement, we should dwell tomore good will. The ultimate determination of human conduct will not be made in terms of appetite. It will rest on the finer and higher, more permanent and more divine qualities of our nature.

The very young and the very wise are always certain they know just what to do to cure all the ills of the world. They are quick to advocate a chnage in the laws as a sovereign remedy.

Those who have had more experience and are not gifted with omniscience oftentimes doubt whether perfection can be conjured out of an enactment or a repeal by the Congress. They are content to let the Ten Commandments stand, realizing that human progress comes through the teachings of religion and the development of moral character brought about by striving to live in accordance with definite declared standards. The good citizen will do his best to shape his conduct to conform to the divine precepts and the laws of his country.

Every session of the Congress creates some uncertainty, but a special session charged with a revision of the tariff is always destined to provide the largest amount of trouble in this respect. A new President usually feels that this is a risk that he must take.

When there has been a change in parties as the result of an election, the situation is not so difficult. That usually comes about by the development of a clearly defined public opinion in favor of specific economic changes. With that opinion behind him a President can secure a revision of the tariff in accordance with it in a minimum amount of time.

Troubles in Revising the Tariff.

But that was not the situation with the new administration. The country had done so well under the old tariff law that there was no definite demand for a general revision. As some lines of production needed more protection it was entirely logical to propose a limited revision for their relief.

The disposition of the Congress, however, would be constitutionally hostile to that proposal.

The business of that body is to legislate, and it always feels that it magnifies its importance by the exercise of its prerogative.

When a tariff bill is introduced it opens all the schedules: It can be limited somewhat in the House by a series of special rules, which will keep its consideration well within the report of the committee with the support of a working party majority. But when it comes to the Senate it is likely to be rewritten by the committee, is subjected to almost unlimited amendment on the floor, and is uncontrolled by special rules or a working party majority.

There would be little opposition to increasing the duties on those lines of agriculture which needed it, but there were certain lines of industry which felt that foreign competition placed them in an even worse plight than the farmer. No Congress would deny them consideration.

In fact, all lines of business, both industrial and agricultural, fear foreign competition and are sure to present demands when the tariff is revised, many of which are so strong that Senators cannot withstand them. They could not face their constituents with a bill that relieved some farmers and refused some equally deserving wage earners.

The Senate adopted its classical course of procedure in having one committee that invited the presentation of evidence by holding hearings, and soon directing another committee to investigate the activities of those who responded to the invitation.

This proved to be a fertile field, because, as there was little crystallized sentiment in the country about tariff revision to direct the course of the bill, it fell into the hands of special representatives who were working for individual concerns. The investigations delayed action, confused the public mind with the imputation that very many of the claims for relief were tainted, so that the all important element of public confidence in our commercial structure was shaken, and when this situation was prolonged, injured industry and is having its repercussion in some of the staples of agriculture.

These are some of the results which flow from a factious opposition to the program of a President. They give a false impression of the country and Congress.

Business Men Are Mostly Fair.

The great body of business is fair and deserving. The great body of legislators is industrious and conscientious. But it is the derelictions of a very few industries and the fulminations of unimportant members, that get the front page, while the rectitude of our commercial life, and the wisdom of our completed legislation, get little credit.

The blame for this condition does not lie with the President. He cannot help it. Nor, as a general thing, should it be imputed to individual members of the Congress. It results from our political system. They are usually not its authors but its victims.

Under our system of direct primaries and elections with fixed terms of offices, each Senator has to be very largely his own party. He looks out for himself. He does not have to seek a new election if his nominal party fails of a majority on some important vote in the Congress. He can have his party in the White House, hold his party committee places, and hold his State patronage, while voting most of the time with the opposition in a combination which often defeats the policy of his party President.

This makes our processes of legislation tortuous, extended and uncertain. But it has the redeeming quality of cutting both ways. If a President loses some of his own party designates, he is rather sure to have the support of some of the opposite party designates, so that while the process is uncomfortable, the resulting legislation is almost always fairly reasonable. The bad feature of this system is that it so largely destroys party responsibility.

But things are what they are. The wise course is to make the best of them.

It is not probable that a change to a parliamentary system would be helpful. There are always certain innate difficulties in dealing with human nature which a change of system does not eradicate. If we are to make any progress we must endure the inconveniences of the process to secure the benefits of the result.

While our system has the disadvantage of sometimes causing irritating delays, it also prevents too precipitate action. It provides us with indispensable safeguards to liberty and sanity which it would be unwise to sacrifice for the sake of expedition.

To deal with it, a President needs to comprehend the deeper politics of a situation and be able to interpret his position to the people. Others can supply him with almost anything else, but this quality he must possess himself. With it he will be able to secure from the Congress, in time, any action that is sound and to prevent most actions that are unsound.

The Weakness of Farm Relief Plans.

We have recently had an example of this in the effort for farm relief. The substance of the bill which was adopted was proposed years ago. Probably it has been perfected in its details by subsequent study. But the subject was so complicated, and lent itself so easily to radical action, that it was most difficult to secure an agreement that warranted legislation. By a long process of trial and rejection, a solution was finally adopted.

The weakness of a measure of this kind lies in the inference that is likely to be drawn by too many of those it seeks to benefit, that the national Government has assumed responsibility for the price of commodities, which it is bound to maintain at some artificial level by the support of the public treasury. Its strength will lie in the sound business judgment with which it is administered and in the proper response by the farmer to the service and counsel that it provides for him.

The people are recovering from the shock of an abrupt decline in the price of securities. A study would probably reveal that it was brought about by a multitude of causes.

Too many people were trying to make speculation take the place of production. That hampered business. The result was inevitable.

With this liquidation accomplished, capital and industry are now in a position to proceed with our national developing and trade appears to be reviving.

It was a painful experience, but when it is over confidence in the future of business is all the more justified. Production and consumption can have more assurance of a normal, healthy and stable basis.

We have always had periods of expansion and recession. Nature seems to require seasons of rest and recuperation. The most that we have yet learned about them only helps us avoid some of their evil effects and diminish their duration. They have always been followed by seasons of growth.

The country needs to keep its faith in self-government, which is a democracy. The more it can take charge of its own affairs, without the interference of bureaucratic control, the safer it will be. The country, too, needs to keep its faith in delegated authority, which is a republic. The more it can permit its public officers to discharge their duties in accordance with their own conscience, without the interference of outside dictation, the safer it will be.

I believe in permitting the administration to do just that and in giving it helpful support wherever I can.

I should like to be known as a former President who tries to mind his own business.

SUES GRAND NATIONAL FOR LOSS IN BURGLARY

First Action Against the Bank by Safety Deposit Box Renter.

Suit for $35,410, representing the value of jewelry which he alleges was stolen from his safe deposit box in the $1,000,000 robbery of the Grand National Bank May 25, was filed against the bank yesterday by Henry Kramer, retired jeweler, 3340 Olive street.

This is the first suit against the bank growing out of the robbery which has been the subject of an unsuccessful police investigation for the last two weeks.

Kramer recites that "while his property was in exclusive control of the defendants, jewelry and merchandise was unlawfully removed from the safe deposit box and lost to plaintiff."

The petition names as co-defendants, Ed Mays, president of the bank; Gifford J. Herbert, former cashier, and William A. Britin, former custodian of the safe deposit department.

The bank has disclaimed responsibility for the losses of deposit box holders, although the robbery occurred at a time when the 17-ton door of the safe deposit vault had been removed to the bank's new quarters in the Continental Life Building, and only a Negro janitor was in the building. Herbert last week said he was wholly responsible for having failed to provide guards at the vault on Sundays. He requested removal of a police guard at the bank a few days before the robbery.

Foreign Trade Bureau Speakers.

Clarence E. Macy, former United States Consul at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, and Merwin L. Bohan, United States commercial attache at Guatemala City, Guatemala, are speakers scheduled to appear at a luncheon meeting of the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce at the Mayfair Hotel at noon Wednesday. Macy is en route to a new position at Tampico, Mexico.

ROBBERS MISS PAYROLL

Get Only $5 at Sugar Creek Creamery.

Two employes of the Sugar Creek Creamery, 3301 Park avenue, were held up at noon yesterday by three armed men, who sought a payroll, but obtained only $5 from a safe.

"Where is the paymaster?" inquired one of the robbers, who was masked. When told that employes had been paid earlier in the day the robbers forced Albert Shepard, the manager, to open the safe, which contained $5 in change. When the robbers entered the office Miss Lela Best, the telephone operator, screamed, and was ordered to keep quiet. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

ONLY THREE JURY TRIALS IN WEEK

Many Pleas of Guilty in Criminal Divisions of the Circuit Court.

Pleas of guilty were frequent last week in the criminal divisions of the Circuit Court, where many chose to accept punishment rather than put the State to trouble and themselves to expense to shake off charges of crime. Only three jury trials were held. These resulted in two convictions and a mistrial.

Those convicted by jurors were Elmer J. Smith, who received a 15-year penitentiary sentence for shooting a woman during a holdup, and Ben Dismuke, charged with burglary and larceny, who received a five-year sentence. James Landrum, charged with robbery, raised reasonable doubt in the minds of the jury, which failed to agree, and was discharged. He will be tried again.

Among those who pleaded guilty were Oliver D. Chalmers, formerly an employe of the Frisco railroad, and Thomas C. Jones, former president of the General Neon Corporation, an electric sign company of 3327 Lindell boulevard. Chalmers pleaded guilty to two charges of forgery and two of embezzlement, taking total punishment of seven years in the penitentiary. Chalmers appropriated to his own use the proceeds of checks given to the railroad company for the handling of newspapers by freight. He made a confession in which he admitted $150,000 of the Frisco's receipts had been deposited in banks to his own account. Jones pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy. He was fined $750 and costs for his marriage to Marguerite Brenholts of Newark, O., on Feb. 18, 1929, although he had not been divorced by his wife, Mrs. Irene Stayart Jones of Chicago.

Others who pleaded guilty and received penitentiary sentences were William Lee, a former "honorary" Deputy Constable of Central Township, and Joe Deves, 26 years old. Lee is to serve 10 years for two violations of the Henry law, robbery with a deadly weapon, and Deves is to serve a like sentence for robbery and assault to kill. Deves shot it out with a policeman in a South Side filling station when he was about to rob the place, and was subdued by a bullet from the revolver of Patrolman Marshal Haynurst of the Mounted ceived fines or punishment. They District. George Martin pleaded guilty to a charge of attemtped criminal attack and was given two years in the penitentiary. Ralph Baskin pleaded guilty in a misconduct case and will be imprisoned for two years. Carlton Eley and Aaron Wilbanks entered pleas of guilty to the larceny of motor cars and were given penitentiary sentences of two years and paroled from the bench to report for three years to probation officers. R. C. Kane was given two years on an embezzlement charge.

During the week six men entered pleas of guilty to charges of carrying concealed weapons and were: James E. Bell, $100 and costs; William Pates, four months workhouse; Paul Speckman, one year workhouse; Sherman Kendrick, $100 and paroled; Tony McKay, 50 days workhouse, and Wilbert Lee, 90 days workhouse.

Persons charged with major crimes who were permitted to take less than penitentiary punishment on pleas of guilty were: Earlie Palmer, petit larceny, six months workhouse; Joe Nieman, false pretenses less than $30, one year workhouse; William Bohannon, larceny of motor vehicle, three months workhouse; William Page, keeping a gaming device, $100 and costs; Victor Coleman, assault, one year workhouse; Raymond Sheehan, assault to rob and larceny from person, one year workhouse; Howard Mays and Frank Gerdine, petit larceny, one year workhouse; Ulysses Smith, assault, six months workhouse; Francis B. Jones, assault to rob, one year workhouse; Edward Mollett, assault, six months workhouse; Charles Allen and Eddie Rodgers, receiving stolen property of less than $30, six months workhouse; James Washington, receiving stolen property less than $30, five months jail; Serge Schewelew, keeping gaming device, $100 and costs; Joe Hock, assault, six months workhouse; Clarence Lewis, receiving stolen property less than $30, one year workhouse, and August Brooks and George McFarland, petit larceny, 4 months in workhouse.

FRISCO LINES
ST. LOUIS-SAN FRANCISCO RAILWAY COMPANY
Travel by Train at Bus Fares
To the Public:
The St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company has an exceptionally well maintained and efficiently operated railway as between St. Louis and Memphis. For quite a long distance it is along the Palisades of the Mississippi River. The scenery is beautiful and second to none in the American continent. We operate three high-grade passenger trains each way daily, as between St. Louis and Memphis, the schedules of which are indicated below:

Lv. St. Louis	8:10 AM	1:30 PM	11:40 PM
Ar. Memphis	6:30 PM	9:20 PM	7:20 AM
Lv. Memphis	8:00 AM	8:35 AM	11:30 PM
Ar. St. Louis	3:20 PM	6:45 PM	7:20 AM

By virtue of improved highways there has been a persistent and insistent effort upon the part of bus lines operating over these highways to take the passenger travel away from the railroads. It is, as we view it, a question of the difference as between the fare of the railroad and the fare which the bus lines assess. In order to demonstrate whether the people prefer the bus lines, versus finely equipped, properly operated trains, the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company will, effective June 10th, and continuing until further notice, charge $6.00 for the round trip, between St. Louis and Memphis, and this rate will apply to intermediate points, tickets to be honored in coach equipment; also in Pullmans upon payment of the usual charges for traveling in such equipment.

The bus rate as of today is $6.00 one way. We make the tender of $6.00 for the round trip, with limit of two days, first, to develop whether the business can be retained for the railroad; second, to give great numbers of our traveling friends the opportunity of seeing the especially attractive scenery and country as served by the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company between St. Louis and Memphis, and third, to test out the wishes of the people in the matter of the transportation which they would prefer.

Would be glad to hear from any one who may have especial views on this particular question, and especially would be delighted to hear from anyone who might use our railroad under the basis as herein offered.

ALUATION PLACED AT $1,250,000

ree Stories to Be Added to Structure at Ninth and Locust—Garland's to Occupy Six Floors.

By Berry Moore

Arthur Blumeyer, president of Board of Education said yesday that an agreement had been ered into to lease to W. J. Holok, president of the Holbrook-kwelder Real Estate Co., the ard of Education Building and , at the northwest corner of th and Locust streets, for 99 rs at a rental of $62,500, or 5 cent of the estimated valuan of $1,250,000.

Holbrook is obligated to erect e additional stories involving a t of between $160,000 and $200,, which would make the lding 10 stories high. Be- the lease is delivered a guarce bond for $450,000 to insure erection of the additional ries and for alterations costing proximately $250,000, must be ted by Holbrook.

The three additional stories are be leased to the Board of Edu- on as administrative offices ich now occupy the three upper ors the building. The rental be paid by the board is to be at rate of 90 cents a square foot the usable floor space. Gard's Apparel Shop is to occupy first six floors and the baseent. A life insurance company considering renting the seventh or.

Syndicate to Be Formed.

The life insurance company is ked to for the money for the ditional stories and the altera- ns and also for the guarantee nd. It is understood Holbrook s formed a syndicate to lease d operate the building.

Skouras Bros., montion picture erators, had previously sought a -year lease on the property, with ns for replacing the present lding with a 37-story structure cost $3,300,000. An annual ntal of $49,000, or 4½ per cent a valuation of $1,000,000, was fered by Skouras Bros., with the oposed building as security for e lease. Privilege of purchasing property at this valuation also s stipulated.

The present building is about 30 ars old, with old-fashioned high lings. The lot fronts 127 feet Locust and 112 feet on Ninth. al estate men have agreed, Bluyer said, that the property is rth more than $1,000,000.

Skouras Bros.' offer aroused reewed speculative interest in ts site, with the result that many fers have been forthcoming for e property. It is understood that e Skouras interests are prepared make a new offer, should the al with Holbrook fall through.

The Board of Education properhas been a magnet because of e possibilities of the Federal ilding block, bounded by Olive, ocust, Eighth and Ninth streets. ese include plans for a mercanle and office structure, which ould enhance materially the comercial importance of this part of e down town district. The block as challenged the atetntion of both cal and outside department store terests, in view of its central loation.

As is known, a site at Twelfth oulevard and Market street has en selected for a new Federal uilding.

EAL FOR LEASE F SCHOOL BOARD OFFICE BUILDING

olbrook - Blackwelder Re-alty Co. Agrees to Pay Yearly Rental of $62,500 for 99 Years.

VALUATION PLACED AT $1,250,000

Three Stories to Be Added to Structure at Ninth and Locust—Garland's to Occupy Six Floors.

By Berry Moore

Arthur Blumeyer, president of the Board of Education said yesterday that an agreement had been entered into to lease to W. J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Co., the Board of Education Building and site, at the northwest corner of Ninth and Locust streets, for 99 years at a rental of $62,500, or 5 per cent of the estimated valuation of $1,250,000.

Holbrook is obligated to erect three additional stories involving a cost of between $160,000 and $200,000, which would make the building 10 stories high. Before the lease is delivered a guarantee bond for $150,000 to insure the erection of the additional stories and for alterations costing approximately $250,000, must be posted by Holbrook.

The three additional stories are to be leased to the Board of Education as administrative offices which now occupy the three upper floors the building. The rental to be paid by the board is to be at the rate of 90 cents a square foot for the usable floor space. Garland's Apparel Shop is to occupy the first six floors and the basement. A life insurance company is considering renting the seventh floor.

Syndicate to Be Formed.

The life insurance company is looked to for the money for the additional stories and the alterations and also for the guarantee bond. It is understood Holbrook has formed a syndicate to lease and operate the building.

Skouras Bros., mention picture operators, had previously sought a 20-year lease on the property, with plans for replacing the present building with a 37-story structure to cost $3,500,000. An annual rental of $49,000, or 4½ per cent on a valuation of $1,000,000, was offered by Skouras Bros., with the proposed building as security for the lease. Privilege of purchasing the property at this valuation also was stipulated.

The present building is about 30 years old, with old-fashioned high ceilings. The lot fronts 127 feet on Locust and 112 feet on Ninth. Real estate men have agreed, Blumeyer said, that the property is worth more than $1,000,000.

Skouras Bros.' offer aroused renewed speculative interest in this site, with the result that many offers have been forthcoming for the property. It is understood that the Skouras interests are prepared to make a new offer, should the deal with Holbrook fall through.

The Board of Education property has been a magnet because of the possibilities of the Federal Building block, bounded by Olive, Locust, Eighth and Ninth streets. These include plans for a mercantile and office structure, which would enhance materially the commercial importance of this part of the down-town district. The block has challenged the attention of both local and outside department store interests, in view of its central location.

As is known, a site at Twelfth boulevard and Market street has been selected for a new Federal Building.

PLANTERS BUILDING NOW 'THE COTTON BELT'

Name to Be Changed When the Railroad Takes Over New Quarters.

With the closing of a 10-year lease with the Cotton Belt Railway for the entire fifth and sixth floors of the Planters Building, together with the ground floor office at Fourth and Pine streets and 6000 square feet of basement space, the building becomes 99 per cent occupied.

The railroad company will take possession of its new quarters the last of this month and the owners of the building have agreed that after July 1 the building will be known as the "Cotton Belt Building," replacing the name "Planters," which has been connected with the property at Fourth and Pine to Chestnut street for more than 105 years.

The moving of the Cotton Belt Railway into the Planters Building increases the number of railroad tenants in the building to 14 and increases the number of railroad companies in buildings on Broadway and Fourth street to more than 40.

The quarters vacated a week ago on the seventeenth floor of the Pierce Building by the St. Louis Court of Appeals have been leased to the law firm of Allen, Moser & Marsalek, and the Diamond Match Co., which occupied quarters in the Planters Building that were leased to the Cotton Belt Railway.

All office buildings under the management of the John M. Robertson organization are now more than 95 per cent rented and a recent survey shows that all the office buildings east of Eighth street are more than 90 per cent occupied at this time.

The Pierce Building Co. announces that by July 1 the $300,000 of improvements to the building, including 10 new elevators, will have been completed. The management announces 98 per cent of the building is occupied by the insurance firms on leases running for many years.

During the past six months that portion of the Boatmen's Bank Building formerly occupied by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., has been completely rented. The brokerage firm of Mark C. Steinberg & Co., entered into a long-term lease for the north half of the second floor and has installed improvements costing in excess of $80,000; one feature of which is a large board room with a high arch ceiling, without columns, and ventilating and cooling system.

Since the re-organization of the City Improvement Association, investors and lessees of large quarters have shown great interest in the district east of Sixth street.

GLENCOE CO. LEASES SECOND FLOOR AT 1608 PINE ST.

The Glencoe Lime & Cement Co. has leased the second floor at 1608 Pine street, and will occupy it after July 1 for their general office and salesroom. This lease was made for the account of the Manhattan Rubber Manufacturing Division. Both parties were represented by Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co.

LUMBER FIRM HAS PLAN FOR FINANCING NEW HOMES

A monthly financing plan for the building of new homes by payments corresponding to rent and a home modernizing service have been introduced by Bay Brothers Lumber Co., wholesale and retail lumber dealers, whose large plant at Florissant and Goodfellow avenues is devoted to the exclusive manufacture of interior trim.

The plan for financing new homes includes building plans for houses of various prices. These plans are selected from prize-winning designs in architectural competitions.

The home modernizing department, for the remodeling of old houses to meet modern standards, is under the supervision of an architect, who will supervise the execution of plans and will give advice as to interior and exterior decorating. Especial care will be taken in the selection of material from the lumber company's stock for the construction of "certified homes" under the plans.

H. T. BRINKWIRTH HOME IN CARRSWOLD NEARLY READY

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Brinckwirth, approaching completion in Carrswold, is one of the most attractive in the residential park.

The building is built of a mixture of brick and stone and has a variegated thatched slate roof. It is built on a sloping hillside overlooking a park to the west. The building is of reinforced concrete construction and was designed and is being erected under the supervision of Maritz & Young, Inc., architects.

8 Sales Reported by Strodtman.

The Strodtman & Strodtman Real Estate Co. reports the following sales: Four-family flat, 4051-53 Shreve avenue, to Jacob Maisak; flat, 5362 North Kingshighway, to Celsus A. Bailey; residence, 336 Plant avenue, Webster Groves, to a client of the First National Realty Co.; bungalow, 111 Waverly place, Webster Groves, to Arnold H. Rolfing; dwelling, 2509 Goode avenue, to Alvina Whetsel; store and flat, 3230-32 Hickory street, to Jake Goldberg; dwelling, 4314 Kennerly avenue, to Alma Schubert; dwelling, 6243 Fyler avenue, to Gilbert Mallrich.

TRORLICHT-DUNCKER CO. GETS WAREHOUSE LEASE

The Trorlicht-Duncker Carpet Co. has leased the two-story fireproof warehouse at the southeast corner of Spring and Chouteau avenues owned by the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. of Cincinnati. Griffith & McMillan, real estate agents, negotiated the lease.

The building was erected a few years ago by the Piggly-Wiggly Corporation of Missouri and was acquired by the Kroger Co. when it absorbed the Piggly-Wiggly company. Inasmuch as the Kroger company already had warehouse facilities it decided to lease the Chouteau avenue property.

The building contains slightly more than 100,000 square feet of floor space, is equipped with a sprinkler system, a steam heating plant and two large freight elevators. It is served in the rear by a Frisco switch of six-car capacity.

The Trorlicht-Duncker company will house its furniture, carpet and drapery workrooms in this building and will give up its annex at 1124-26 Locust street, the upper floors of which have been used for workrooms. It will move from its present warehouse at Third and Spruce streets by July 1.

The residential sales department of the Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co. announces the following sales: 6046-48 Westminster, from Frank J. Watts to Alice Viefhaus; lots in Cityview place, from Alice Viefhaus to a client; lots in University Terrace, from Alice Viefhaus to a client; 5162 Cabanne, from Ruth I. Stanton to Minnie Spohr; 3759 O'Meara, from Minnie Spohr to a client; 5554-56 Page, from Albert I. and Joseph B. Wand to Lizzie R. Ingham; 1206-8 Longwood, Los Angeles, Cal., from Lizzie Ingham to Albert I. and Joseph B. Wand.

ALBERT T. TERRY & CO. SELLS 12 ACRES IN COUNTY

Albert T. Terry & Co., through Whitelaw Terry, reports having closed the sale of 12 acres in the Von Schrader Subdivision, south of the Clayton road and adjoining the Log Cabin Club and Bogey Club, from S. W. Fordyce and Perry Francis to Mr. and Mrs. John B. O'Day. O'Day will eventually build a home on his property.

THREE BUSINESS LEASES CLOSED BY MARTIN & BREITT

Cynthia Mills Inc., closed a long-term lease for space on the third floor of the Silk Exchange Building at the southwest corner of Twelfth and Washington avenues. This is a new firm opening a branch in St. Louis; their main office being located in Boston, Mass. The local branch will be under the management of H. N. Church. The lease was made for the account of Jacob Rubin by Martin & Breitt.

The Modern Pleating Co. has taken over a long term lease on the entire fifth floor of the building at 819-21 Washington avenue. It will use this space for the manufacture of pleating and sundries. Hugo V. Steiner is president of this company. The lease was made for the account of Kessler & Kolb, Inc. Martin & Breitt represented both parties.

Satz & Goodman Garment Co. has taken a lease on the entire sixth floor of the building at 819-21 Washington avenue. This firm consists of Harry Satz and Oscar Goodman, who specialize in the manufacture of clothing, and they will use the floor for salesroom, office and manufacturing purposes. The lease was made for Kessler & Kolb, Inc., through Martin & Breitt.

IVANHOE PARK MODEL HOMES OPEN TODAY

Hauer-Lustkandl report the model homes on Oleatha avenue in Ivanhoe Park will be open for inspection all day today and this week. The homes are in the 6400 and 6500 block on Oleatha avenue, which is 3500 south. on Watson boulevard. The lots are wide and deep and are on one of the high spots of St. Louis, with all streets, alleys, city sewers made.

Site on Lindell Purchased For 10-Story Apartment

Structure Near Sarah Will Cost $650,000 — Chauncy P. Heath Co. Handles Deal — Purchaser's Name Is Withheld.

Plans were disclosed for a 10-story fireproof apartment building to cost $650,000, with the purchase yesterday of the property at 4111-15 Lindell boulevard through the Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co. Identity of the purchaser is withheld. Ben Anschel was the grantor in the transaction.

The purchase price was on the basis of $600 a foot on Lindell, Heath stated. The lot fronts 75 feet on Lindell with a depth of 160 feet. A two-story stone front residence now occupies the east half of the premises. The purchase adjoins the property at the northwest corner of Lindell boulevard and Sarah street, owned by Anschel.

Heath denied a report that negotiations were pending for the corner property with plans for an apartment hotel, to embrace both lots. The corner lot is now occupied by old two-story stone-front dwellings.

As now planned, the 10-story structure is to consist of four-room units. A garage in the basement available for elevators is included in the plans. Foundation and super structure will provide for a much higher building.

Lindell-Sarah Rumor.

Several rumors have been reported for the northeast corner of Lindell boulevard and Sarah street, 150x308 feet, owned by the White Oil Co., which occupies the site with a filling station. The extensive depth makes the property available for a large combination hotel structure, with stores in the rear of the premises on Sarah street.

It is recalled that this corner was purchased in 1923 for $31,000 by the Knights of Columbus as a site for a new 10-story club building. Two years later, the Knights apparently, not realizing its potential value, sold it for $71,000, approximately $473 a foot, figured on a basis of the Lindell frontage of 150 feet, or a profit of $40,000. It has since doubled and trebled in value, according to real estate men. Additional value is given to the site by its extraordinary depth. It is now occupied by a filling station which refuses to surrender it.

Last year members of the Knights of Columbus purchased the Columbian Club Building on the north side of Lindell boulevard, 100 feet west of Vandeventer, for $175,000, through the real estate firm of Eugene J. Altheimer, Williams & Calmer. This property has a frontage of 187 feet on Lindell and runs through to McPherson, its maximum depth being 151 feet. It has a much higher valuation, in the opinion of real estate men, in view of its double frontage. The purchasers have had several opportunities, it is understood, to resell at a handsome profit. A large insurance company is said to be a prospective purchaser.

Other Buildings Projected.

A record price, it is reported, has been refused for the adjoining strip 100 feet wide, including the northwest corner of Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, and the southwest corner of McPherson and Vandeventer avenues, owned by the Gasoline Automobile Co. The company occupies the strip as a filling station, with approaches from both Lindell and McPherson. The triple frontage of this strip gives it an unusual value for commercial purposes. Real estate men are speculating as to the identity of the prospective purchaser.

Alex and Fred J. Cornwell have had several opportunities to sell the seven-story fireproof apartment at the southeast corner of Lindell boulevard and Sarah street, erected by them several years ago. This project, which has been a noteworthy success, is being held as an investment. It is known as 4066 Lindell boulevard.

New projects contemplate a 25-story hotel for the southwest corner of Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue, to be operated in connection with the Coronado Hotel, at the northwest corner of Spring and Lindell. A tunnel under Lindell boulevard is contemplated in this connection. It is projected by Preston J. Bradshaw, who designed the Coronado, of which he is the principal owner. Construction is to be begun as soon as conditions warrant.

Work is progressing on the 18-story addition to the Melbourne Hotel, at Lindell and Grand boulevards, owned by Alex M. and F. J. Cornwell of the Cornwell Real Estate Co., who are financing the buildig from their own resources.

While there is no lack of available property on Lindell boulevard for apartments, prices have risen to such figures as to exclude all those other than the more ambitious projects.

ZONING RESTRICTIONS URGED BY ARCHITECT

Property Values Destroyed by Ugly Buildings, C. H. Cheney, Los Angeles, Says

Charles H. Cheney of Los Angeles, chairman of the Committee on City and Regional Planning of the American Institute of Architects, says: "Property values are destroyed, cherished homes abandoned and neighborhoods ruined by the erection of one or more ugly or inappropriately designed buildings. More than $3,000,000,000 was put into such buildings last year. Every vacant lot in an unprotected neighborhood today carries a threat of ruin to its neighbors.

"This is the greatest economic loss of our time, and one that can and will be remedied as soon as investors, home owners and the public generally learn how to protect themselves. Congress has pointed the way in the Shipstead bill by establishing architectural control in Washington under the police power. More than 500 cities have established zoning in the last 10 years.

"Architectural control of this kind is not new. Santa Barbara, Cal., in 1925 to 1926, required that all plans for private buildings be passed on by a competent architectural board of review.

"For 50 years high-class real estate subdivisions have been exercising careful architectural control, with marked success and increasing property values, by means of building restrictions established by private agreement in the deeds."

NEW RESIDENCE PLANNED IN NORTHAMPTON PARK

Northampton Park will soon be open in all directions to through travel. Chippewa boulevard will be brought through to Watson road as soon as grading is completed. The work of laying concrete from Brannon avenue is to start at once. Paving of all the other streets in Northampton Park have been let to Perkinson Bros., street contractors, work on which is to begin without delay.

Ground was broken by Frank Hortlieder this week for six bungalows on the north side of Winona. Frank Hart & Son will erect 11 bungalows on Tholozan.

The purchases for the week: George and Bertha Klinger, 50x120, south side Pernod; Thelme Brandt, 35x120, south side Lindenwood; Frank Stelle, 140x120, north side Mardel, west of Macklind; James Toomey, 80x120, south side Chippewa boulevard; Thomas Barkley, 60x120, south side Chippewa boulevard.

BUILDING MANAGERS TO MEET AT BILOXI

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BILOXI, Miss., June 7.—In this quiet Southern resort city, where the only thing resembling a skyscraper is one or two of its hotels, the eskyscraper men of the nation will spend next week. Monday the twenty-third annual convention of the National Association of Building owners and Managers will be opened, with nearly 500 delegates and guests in attendance.

Not since 1915, when the association held its convention in Atlanta, Ga., has the organization visited the South for its annual gathering.

The convention will devote its nine sessions largely to a consideration of operating and renting problems. In addition to the symposium presented by the members, several guests will address the convention. On Monday morning Sidney W. Souers, executive vice president of the Canal Bank and Trust Co. of New Orleans will discuss "The Business Outlook." The Tuesday morning session will be addressed by Richard Cabeen of the Chicago architectural firm, Holabird & Root, who will discuss "Tower Buildings." Dr. Marion Luther Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology at Atlanta, will be the guest speaker at the Wednesday morning session, when he will speak on "The Young Business Man." Allan C. Gottschaldt, president of Gottschaldt-Humphrey, Inc., Atlanta, will speak Thursday afternoon on "Office Building Advertising."

FRANCIS-BERRY-SMITH 110 N. 7th.

NEW SPANISH HOME
MUST BE SOLD, $13,750

This is a perfect Spanish residence—opposite a select West End country club—built by an architect for his own home.

On the first floor is the enormous studio living room, the Moorish dining room, the California style kitchen with its 10-foot double drain sink, its built-in cabinets, and the breakfast room with its Pullman breakfast equipment.

The second floor consists of 2 southern-exposure bedrooms and a very spacious bath with shower, and built-in linen chest.

When you see the textured walls, finished in oil, the hand-wrought metal electric fixtures, the beautiful architecture of the exterior, you will realize that this house has every feature of a large home that would sell for $35,000.

This home, that has just been vacated and is open today. Must be sold—and sold at once. Hence the above price (which will undoubtedly be unloaded within 10 days).

Take St. Charles Rock rd. to Normandy Country Club, 7500 west, by auto, street car, bus or service car. Go west on Delmar four blocks along east line of Normandy Country Club to Normandy drive. Greenside. Then north to Normandy drive. For full particulars, phone Forest 3853. (c)

Easy for a Child to Open or Close This Door

A door of this type glides upward in vertical tracks and comes to rest in horizontal tracks above, completely out of the way. Door may be operated by electric control.

OVERHEAD GARAGE DOORS A CONVENIENCE

They Glide Upward, on Vertical Tracks, Completely Out of the Way.

Homes that are modern are always in demand. They even sell more easily in a slow market.

The house that is difficult to sell or rent, is usually the one which has few modern conveniences or with accessories out of date.

For instance, the home place which has no garage or a makeshift of an old shed which is made to serve to house the family automobile, would not appeal to the eye of a would-be purchaser.

In enumerating the attractive features of modern garages the garage possessing doors that glide upward in vertical tracks and come to rest in horizontal tracks above, completely out of the way, will appeal greatly to persons who care for their own automobiles.

According to J. C. Radcliffe of the Overhead Door Co. of Missouri, this disappearing door is the result of a desire for a better door. It carries with it, he says, the approval of architects and building engineers.

The doors have ball bearing rollers, assisted by counter balancing springs which make it possible for a child to open or close the door with ease.

Another advantage of these doors is that they may be operated electrically from house or driveway with an electric control.

They come in several styles to harmonize with various types of architecture. These doors are adaptable to public and private garages, warehouses, factories and similar buildings.

EXTERIOR OF A HOME EASILY MODERNIZED

How the Appearance of an Old Frame Building Was Entirely Changed.

How to give an old frame house the appearance of a trim, prosperous brick residence was described by H. J. Long of the Ball Lumber Co., who says there has recently been placed on the market a new asphalt, slate-surfaced siding which looks like beautiful faced brick, which may be applied easily and successfully to any old frame building.

This siding, he said, comes in the brick colors, red and buff, and in red and buff mixed.

For remodeling work, the siding is applied right over the old siding, thus adding additional insulation, as the asphalt siding is in itself an excellent insulating material and the extra protection it will supply will add greatly to the comfort of the home, making it easier to heat in winter, yet cooler in summer, Long explained.

The siding is fire resisting, which is also an advantage.

The siding has a multiplicity of uses. In addition to making an effective covering for an old or a new house, it can be used for numerous other types of buildings.

In cases where buildings are part frame and part brick, the frame part may be covered with this siding, which will improve the appearance of the structure.

Again, it is not unfrequent to see the combination of a fine brick residence and a frame garage. At a very small expense, this siding can be put on the garage, giving it the appearance of a brick building, more in keeping with its surroundings.

Extra Baths and Showers Should Be Put in Old Homes

Comparatively Few of the Old-Time Residences Have Adequate Toilet Facilities, Baths, Showers, or Lavatories, According to L. J. Dubuque Jr.

One of the most popular ideas in connection with the modernization of an old house is the installation of new or additional bathrooms and toilets and the setting up of shower baths, is the opinion of L. J. Dubuque Jr., manager of R. A. Dubuque Supply Co.

The residents of a home which has not been modernized never fail to bewail the absence of sufficient toilet facilities, especially if the family numbers many members.

The inconvenience of meager toilet and bath facilities may be readily improved through the installation of a bathroom in some unused portion of one of the many halls and closets that are invariably found in the houses erected 15 to 25 years ago.

The most attractive baths, lavatories and toilets are procurable now in all the wanted colors, including green, brown, blue, orchid, ivory and rose, so that the most fastidious dowager or debutante may choose the color of her bathroom equipment and appliances to harmonize with the color scheme of her room decorations.

The brass fittings for the tubs, lavatories and sinks can be had in the beautiful new durable chromium finish in a wide variety of patterns.

Likewise, every house can now be equipped with a shower, regardless of the construction of the building and at a moderate cost.

In modernizing the plumbing system of a home the kitchen sink can also be obtained in colored and acid resisting enamel.

The amount of money you may spend in modernizing the plumbing of your house increases the value of the property four or five times the amount expended.

CERTIFIED HEATING AND HOME SANITATION

Relationship to Modernization and Health Are Most Important.

In modernizing the old home, or building a new home to conform with modern ideas and all conveniences, the prospective builder or the old home owner does not give one of the most important items the proper amount of consideration, in the opinion of Joseph F. Himmelspach, executive secretary of the Heating and Piping Contractors' allocations.

Plans and preparations are made to take care of various changes to be made in a home and one which brings health and comfort to the home, due to the fact that the spinal column of the heating plant, in other words, the boiler, which is located in the basement, is usually given the least amount of consideration by the owner. A well installed heating plant under modern ideas and under plans and supervision of a heating contractor who installs steam, hot water and vapor heat under Certified Heating conditions, will beautify as well as satisfy and increase the value of the home to an extent which cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Particularly noticeable in old homes were the furnace and also the various supplies required to heat the old home, which absorbed all of the basement space, due to the fact that the owner was not familiar with modern heating plants and unacquainted with the improvements in heating equipment.

The average family today, whose ages vary from the infant to the grandmother, requires different temperatures in the various quarters. The elderly persons require a temperature of 70 degrees to 80 degrees in the bedroom or living quarters, the middle aged requiring a temperature of between 65 degrees and 70, and the younger person would require a temperature of 55 degrees and 60 degrees. In order to secure these variations in temperature, it is not necessary to add additional heaters or stoves as the well installed heating plant can be controlled from the boiler, or spinal column, of the heating plant to give a different temperature in every room throughout the entire home, if required, without the aid of open windows creating drafts, which are very detrimental to the health of the occupants of the home, particularly noticeable to the infants or elderly persons.

In addition to these modern conveniences and modern engineering feats embodied in a well designed Certified Heating job, the equipment in its entirety is so designed that it adds to the beauty of the home, being ornamental and artistic.

The slogan of Certified Heating Contractors is "consult your heating contractor as you would consult your physician or dentist."

MODERNIZE FOR COMFORT

Modern Furniture and Household Equipment Simplify Work.

New living comforts are obtained only through modernization of the home.

New furniture replaces the old heavy articles; old-fashioned cook stoves and antiquated types of heating plants are replaced by new and modern heating methods and out-of-date kitchen equipment is junked for the labor-saving household devices which reduce kitchen work to a minimum.

Ugly softwood floors give way to composition or hardwood ones which are good to look at, sanitary and easily kept clean.

Dingy lighting fixtures are superseded by modern equipment and a multitude of outlets conveniently located to facilitate the use of the various household appliances that ease the homemaker's burden.

SLATE VALUABLE FOR ROOFING PURPOSES

The French Introduced Slate Roofs Way Back in the Fourth Century.

According to Mr. T. W. Hogan of the Hayden Slate Co., nothing dresses an old house up more attractively than a new roof.

Many home owners, when embarking on a modernization campaign, plan to put a blue black or colored slate roof on their residences.

Slate roofing materials are obtainable in a variety of colors, black, green, red, blue, purple and such variegated combinations as mottled green and green and purple.

One of the economy features of slate roofs is that slate is everlasting as far as the slate itself is concerned.

Slate is also one of the oldest roofing materials known.

According to popular belief, slate's value as a covering for the roofs of buildings was discovered by the French in the fourth century.

It has come down to us through the ages and it has been in constant use all the while.

The service that a slate roof is capable of giving is illustrated by an old chapel in England which was erected more than 1200 years ago. Its slate roof today is said to be in excellent condition, notwithstanding its constant use for twelve centuries.

Another interesting example of the enduring qualities of a slate roof may be seen in Mariemont, O., where a church was recently roofed with slate which had been serving as a roof on an old English abbey for more than 1000 years. When the Mariemont church was built the slate roof of the old abbey was taken off, piece by piece, packed carefully in crates and shipped to America, where it now adds interest to one of the most intersting examples of church architecture this country contains. The first cost of a slate roof is the last cost.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Beatrice Keller wish to thank their friends for their kind sympathy and floral offerings in the hour of their late bereavement.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY KELLER. (c)

Daughter Gertrude Frances McClellan of 1983 Arlington avenue:

We wish to extend our sincere thanks for the beautiful floral ordering and your sympathy in our past bereavements.

MOTHER, FATHER AND FAMILY.

We wish to express sincere thanks to all relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy, together with the beautiful floral offerings, as shown in the recent illness and death of our mother and grandmother.

MART EBELING AND FAMILY. (c)

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our relatives and friends who were so kind unto us during our recent bereavement in the loss of our dear mother. Also the clergy of St. Peter and Paul's Parish, and the Sebken Undertaking Co.

THE DIECKMANN FAMILY.

We want to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends, who gave their kindness, sympathy and beautiful floral offerings during the death of our beloved wife and mother. Especially do we want to thank the Rev. T. J. Meagher for his kind and consoling words, the undertakers, John P. Cullinane and the pallbearers.

JOHN MULVAY AND FAMILY.

We wish to express our deep gratitude to our many friends and neighbors for their kindness, sympathy and beautiful floral offerings in our recent bereavement. Special thanks to Rev. M. Ward for his consoling words, Mrs. E. Oechsle, Mrs. E. Buchanan, the pallbearers, also Journeyman Plumbers Local No. 55, employees of Board of Education, Workingmen's Mutual Aid and Progressive Beneficiary.

MRS. JOHN HATEMAN AND FAMILY.

We wish to thank our many friends, relatives, Journeymen Plumbers' Local No. 55, Building Trades Council, Coca Cola plant, Broadway Railroad Station, pallbearers and the Rev. J. J. Special thanks to the Rev. Emil Beier for his consoling words, the Hoffmeister Funeral Home for their efficient service and the pallbearers.

MRS. ANNIE HAUSDORF. (c)

The family of the late William T. Frecht wish to thank our many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy shown during our late bereavement and for the beautiful floral offerings. We wish to especially thank the Hamilton No. 1 Camp No. 1, U. S. W. V. and Hamilton Fish Jr. Auxiliary No. 2, U. S. W. V.; the Rev. George Poth for his kind words of sympathy and condolence, and the staff of nurses of St. Anthony's Hospital for their untiring service and devotion.

IN MEMORIAM

BECKERLE—In loving memory of August Beckerle, who passed away June 7, 1929. Sadly missed by SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

BUSCHMOEHLE—In loving memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Buschmoehle, who departed this life June 7, 1925.

Sadly missed by

SONS AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

CRAFT—In loving memory of my dear husband and father, William H. Craft, who passed away June 2, 1929.

More and more each day we miss him.

Friends may think the sorrow is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.
Sadly missed by

WIFE AND CHILDREN.

DOHRMANN—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Elizabeth Dohrmann, who departed this life June 9, 1927.

Sadly missed by

HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

GERLING—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Mary E. Gerling, who departed this life six years ago, June 9, 1924.

Darling mother:

The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But love for you, who sleeps beneath,
Will never fade away.
Sadly missed by

DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILDREN.

HENNESSEY—In memory of our dear husband and father, Timothy W. Hennessey, who departed this life June 10, 1929.

You're not forgotten, father dear
Nor ever shall you be;
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
Sadly missed by

WIFE AND CHILDREN.

HILLMANN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Marie Hillmann, who died June 5, 1927.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memory she left behind.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

JEHLING—Laura,

The depth of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well.
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.

HUSBAND AND LA VERNE.

LUTZ—In memory of Charles Lutz, who died June 10, 1929:

Oh, what would I give to clasp his hand,
His dear, kind face to see;
To hear his voice, to see his smile
That means so much to me.
His spirit has fled, his suffering o'er.
At the fireside he will join us no more.

Funeral Monday, June 9, at 2 p. m., from Math. Hermann & Sons' chapel, Fair and West Florissant avenues. Interment in Friedens Cemetery. (c7)

MAHER, WILLIAM S.—In loving memory of my beloved husband who passed away June 7, 1928.

MAY—In memory of my beloved husband, Charles May, who died June 7, 1927.

My sorrow I cannot tell,
The loss of my husband I loved so well.
Missed by WIFE AND SONS.

NEMNICH-CRAFT—In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Maude Nemnich Craft, who departed this life May 28, 1923.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
Sadly missed by

ALL WHO LOVED HER.

OGAN—In memory of Evan Ogan, who departed this life June 6, 1926:

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace.—Isaiah. 26:3.

VIRGINIA OGAN, Wife.

SCHROEDER—In loving memory of Minnie Schroeder, who passed away June 9, 1929.

A wonderful mother, woman and maid,
One who was better God never made.
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million, that mother was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright.
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew.
Our wonderful mother—that mother was you.

Operetta Under the Big Top

"The Circus Princess," with Guy Robertson in his Original leading role, to start second week of the Municipal Opera in Forest Park tomorrow night —How "Nina Rosa" established a new record for An opening week in the vast outdoor show place.

HOW thoroughly St. Louisans enjoyed "Nina Rosa," the first bill of the Municipal Opera during the past week, and how they appreciated the successful efforts of Milton Shubert to place the organization on a firm and entirely professional basis was demonstrated by the fact that the Romberg operetta established a new high record for attendance during an opening week in the twelve years of stage history in Forest Park. Also the piece played to the third largest amount of money taken in during any week in that time, being eclipsed only by the receipts of "Rose Marie" in 1927 and "The Student Prince" in 1928. Those two record-breaking weeks, incidentally, came at the very height, the very middle of the Municipal Opera season for those years.

Tonight will mark the last performance of "Nina Rosa" which will give way, tomorrow evening, to "The Circus Princess" with book and lyrics by Harry B. Smith, the veteran American librettist, as adapted from the German of J. Brammer and A. Gruenwald. The music, by Emmerich Kalman, is said to surpass in its sprightly dancing rhythms and in the Viennese lilt of its melodies, even "Miss Springtime," "The Countess Maritza," "The Golden Dawn," and the unforgettable "Sari" by which Kalman is best known to Municipal Opera audiences. At the same time his genius in the creation of melody is said to be evinced in airs, which like "Who Cares?" "Champagne Reflected." "Love is an Idle Dream," "Love," "Sex Appeal," "Dark Eyes I dream Of," and "I Like the Boys," stud the score.

IN "The Circus Princess" local audiences will see the first production designed by Mr. Shubert for the great revolving stage—the "Nina Rosa" scenery having been brought here, intact, from Chicago. It is reported that he has created some pretty and striking effects in scenic backgrounds, which afford views of the card room in The Officers Club in St. Petersburg, the Lounge and the Promenade of the Circus Stanislavsky, the ballroom in the Palace of Prince Sergius, and the lobby of the Hotel Archduke Charles, in Vienna.

Kalman's operetta was first presented to Vienna, where it had a run of 400 nights. Equal successes followed in Berlin, Breslau, Hamburg and Milan. Then came the New York presentation with Guy Robertson starred, and the charm of his romantic characterization of the circus rider made him one of the outstanding figures in operetta.

Since "Hamlet" and possibly before, a play within a play, has been not uncommon upon the stage. And in "He Who Gets Slapped," the Theater Guild presented a circus within a play to one of its most distinguished successes. But in "The Circus Princess," a real circus is presented for the first time in a setting of opera.

A Prologue opens in the Officers' Club in St. Petersburg, where the somewhat reckless, but adventurous Orloff has been gambling as usual. He is the nephew of Prince Palinsky, who is very useful to Orloff, whose bills he has been footing. A group of officers surrounds Orloff and discuss the proposed marriage of the Prince, who at 70 is about to take a young bride. "There is no fool," remarks Orloff, "like an old fool." And at that moment his uncle enters the room. The older man resents the remark and in the quarrel which arises Orloff leaves his uncle and the club a pauper.

THE scene changes to the lounge and the promenade of a circus. Among the performers is a trick rider, a "Mr. X," whose antecedents are a mystery, who is always masked. Into the promenade there comes the Princess Fedora, who is now the widow of the late Prince Palinsky. She is accompanied by Prince Sergius, who is a most importunate suitor. While "Mr. X" is performing he asks the Princess to marry him. She would rather, she says, marry that masked man than him.

Scorned, Prince Sergius seeks revenge. He calls upon "Mr. X" and persuades him to disguise himself and be introduced as "Prince Korosoff." He will introduce the circus performer, Sergius explains, to a young beauty whom the Czar has commanded to get married at once. Perhaps he can make an impression upon her. Prince Ser-

Fun Makers in "The Circus Princess" at the Municipal Opera

JACK SHEEHAN.

DORIS PATSTON.

It's the Unexpected Which Makes Laughs

—By— JACK SHEEHAN

Jack Sheehan, a comedian, who scored decisively with the audiences attending "Nina Rosa" at the Municipal Opera last week, and who is a prominent member of the cast to be seen in "The Circus Princess," reveals some of the deepest secrets of his profession.

WHEN I was asked to write the sad story of my life, I laughed. To me it's such a merry story. It's all a matter of the view you take. That may seem silly, but it contains the essence of modern fun-making on the stage. You, the comedian, are in a certain situation. You lead the audience to expect a certain thing will happen. And then you double-cross them. The new school of comedy in modern operetta is based upon the fact that the point of view makes all the difference in the world. And having established for your audience a point of view, you do the unexpected. In life there is always an obvious thing to do. The comedian of today khows that—and does the opposite of the obvious.

Now there was my dear old mother. I think she has always had some doubts about what would happen to her boy since I left Villanova and my studies for the priesthood. Those good fathers knew a lot about human nature. It didn't take them long to catch up with me. In the end I have managed to get on the stage and finally I was in my first Broadway show. So I sent for the mother and she came down from the little New England town to see her son and "Katja." After the show she came back to my dressing room.

"What did you think of it Mother, dear?"

"Well," she said, measuring her words, "there was the tenor"—he was Allen Prior—"a fine voice he had. But do ye mind ye're father, whin he'd sing 'Asthore'?

"And there was Miss Patston, a lovely gur-rl, f'r all that she's English. And she can dance. But I wonder, could she do an Irish jig?"

It was quite an English company, you know. Lillian Davies, the prima donna, and Bruce Winston, and Dennis Hoey, and of course Miss Patston. One after another mother took them up. It looked to me like a great day for Ireland—if Ireland ever came into her own.

Finally I could stand it no longer.

"But me, mother? What did you think of your boy?"

"John Francis Sheehan," she said, using the name of state that used to be a summons to the woodshed, "John Francis Sheehan, you were so silly I could hardly kape my face straight fr'm laughin' at you."

• • •

SOMETIMES the point of view of an audience is altogether disconcerting to the comedian. It mystifies him completely. Once in Nashua, N. H., I may as well confess, right now that before I got to Broadway I had aspirations to be an actor manager. I was part owner in a "tab" show. That's a tabloid musical comedy, with abbreviated book and score, and chorus and skirts. I got to be a partner in it in lieu of salary. After it there were others. I'd go into vaudeville and get a stake and then organize my show and tour with it. Once I got as far as Sioux City. But it was always the same story. A long trek back to New York.

But we're in Nashua, now. A mill town. French-Canadian population. My tab show is playing in the Davis Opera House, which in other days had been a livery stable. I am occupying the center of the stage. I can feel that I've got the audience with me. 'If Broadway could only see me now,' I think. And just at that moment the audience rises up en masse—and leaves. That's a tragedy that Shakspeare never wrote.

I looked around for the fire. There wasn't any. I just stood and wondered. And then, out of the air, as it were, I grabbed the solution of my perplexity. A comedy-loving skunk had somehow got into the theater, and was drifting down the middle aisle to see what the laughter was all about.

With all due modesty I say it—I have had appreciation that pleased me more.

When my father died there were 11 of us kids. Being the oldest I was destined for the priesthood. My parents sincerely had me convinced that I had a 'call.' But after his death I left Villanova. Someone had to make a living for the family. I got a job in the New England mills, 10 hours a day and 70 cents pay—70 cents a day, not an hour.

THAT didn't go far with 12 to feed. I decided I'd get a job, singing in a picture show. I knew the owner was trying to get by by making a Community Sing out of it when he flashed the words of the song and the accompanying pictures on the screen. I knew there wasn't much chance to get a job if I asked him.

There was a holiday at the mills. I bought a ticket to the picture show and I stayed all day. And I sang at the top of my voice.

Finally there was an usher came to me. "They want to see you back in the office," he said. So I went back. There was the manager.

"So that was you, singing those songs?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you want a job singing."

"Yes, sir."

"Your salary is $15 a week. Can you start singing here in three days?"

"Yes, sir. I can start right now." And I did.

I WASN'T satisfied with just singing. I had an idea of getting rich. I commenced to learn something about show business. I became a house manager in my employer's circuit. Lent was coming around. Perhaps we could scheme up something. I thought of "The Passion Play." We couldn't afford a full print. So we bought four old second hand prints, a Kalem, and S. & A., an Urban-Eclipse, a Gaummont. We pieced them together. Having studied for the Church I had the last word on the piecing. Also, I was to sing the songs that went with them in presentation. "The Palms" in French and "The Rosary." We thought by playing one night stands around the country throughout Lent we might do six or seven weeks of business. We opened at Three Rivers, Mass., which has a population of 900, including the Three Rivers.

The manager looked at the picture's first run and sent for me. He made me sit beside him. He pointed out the Judas—a big, handsome player, with German type of features. Then came the next reel. And Judas again. This time he was a little, swarthy Italian. "Quite a change,' said the manager.

"What could you expect of a turncoat?" said I.

And I got away with it.

As you've guessed, my poor dad didn't leave me much but a sense of fun, and it has stood me in pretty good stead. Irish wit and Irish humor, both score because of their unexpectedness. And it happens that that is the keynote of modern stage funmaking. Your modern audience with its newspapers, its magazines, its screen, knows what to expect. If you learn to double-cross it you'll get the laughs.

Talkies Capture Otis Skinner

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 7.

OTIS SKINNER, one of the foremost actors of the American stage, has arrived in Hollywood from New York preparatory to starting work in "Kismet" as a Vitaphone talking picture.

Executives at the First National studios announce that "Kismet" will be filmed and recorded as the most pretentious talking picture of the year. A budget of more than $2,000,000 has already been set aside for the production, and a schedule of four months laid out for the filming. John Francis Dillon will direct, and Loretta Young and David Manners will play the juvenile roles in this play. More than 200 screen tests of prominent Hollywood actors and actresses have been taken to fill other roles in the picture.

A large number of massive impressionistic sets are already under construction at the studio and on Warner Brothers' ranch. Production will start during the coming week and more than 4500 extras will be used.

Skinner was accompanied on his trip west by his wife, Maude Durbin, who was one of his early leading women. He expressed himself as keenly interested in the prospect of making "Kismet" as a talkie. He previously filmed it as a silent picture 10 years ago for the old Robertson-Cole company.

"I was never particularly interested in silent pictures, and refused many offers to appear in them," Skinner said. "What really convinced me that the talkies had been perfected were the performances of my old friend and great actor, George Arliss, in 'Disraeli' and 'The Green Goddess.' Both were far better on the screen than they were on the stage, and they were mighty good on the stage."

Skinner was born in Cambridge, Mass., in 1858, and is the son of a minister. His first show experience was with P. T. Barnum. He first appeared on the stage in 1877 in Philadelphia. He made his New York debut in "Enchantment" in 1879, and soon became one of the outstanding leaders of American drama. He was leading man for Mme. Helen Modjeska for five years, both in this country and abroad.

Among his famous plays, in addition to "Kismet," which was his outstanding success, were "Mister Antonio," "The Honor of the Family," "Pietro," "Blood and Sand," "Sancho Panza" and "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Skinner has one daughter, Cornelia. Early in his career he played Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." It is his favorite part, and he claims that "Shylock is the only gentleman in the play."

It's 4000 For Ed Lowry Now

Master of Ceremonies Holds All World's Records for Continuous Appearances in One Theater—Ruby S'Renco Invents a Machine Which May Bring Back the Airdomes —When the Negro Minstrels Flourished in St. Louis.

By NIE.

THE Brothers Skouras have seized upon Ed Lowry's 4000th performance to whoop things up at the Ambassador this week. Peggy Bernier, late comedienne of the musical comedy success "Good News" and Art Kahn, who was a Chicago master of ceremonies, have been added to the stage show cast to assist in the general festivities of the occasion.

Lowry, here for almost three years, is regarded as the ace master of ceremonies in the country. He alone of the legion of baton wavers has retained his popularity and his drawing power at the box office. The test of his pull in St. Louis has been so convincingly demonstrated that any thought of his leaving for other parts has been abandoned.

If any other master of ceremony has even approximated half as many performances in one theater as Lowry it is news to this department. Surely there can be no question as to his record for service. Even the mighty Paul Ash only lasted a fraction of this time in Chicago and then he divided his time between two theaters —the Oriental and the McVickers. Lowry has never moved from the Ambassador.

For a time the Skouras Brothers were concerned over the traveling master of ceremony idea. Half a dozen of these units did reach St. Louis but the incoming MC was quickly ordered to do his own particular act and Lowry was given the show. St. Louis femmes are not interested in "name" acts when it comes to overshadowing Lowry.

At the same time Eddie is drawing down a stipend annually that compares to what Hollywood pays some of its most high powered cinema stars. Furthermore he gets it every week while many of the picture aces see the cashier only when they are actually engaged before the camera.

The boys of the Skouras press department have figured out that 7,000,000 patrons have seen Lowry in his 4000 performances. That's higher mathematics although they haven't missed it very far, even for press agents.

WHEN the talkies came in the out door cinema resorts went out. It was figured by the managers that the talking devices could not compete with passing street cars, automobile horns and the other noises and so the airdomes, a St. Louis institution purely, folded their tents and silently faded away.

The outdoor shows, with their low overhead expense, had always been good money makers during the hot weather period and one St. Louis movie expert set to work to do something about it. He is Ruby S'Renco who has been in the game since he was big enough to turn a camera crank. S'Renco went to work on a piece of machinery which would carry the voice from the screen to picture fans and overcome all conflicting sounds. He spent two years on his idea and now has it going, successfully, at the old Queen's Airdome, an under the starlight show place at Marcus and Maffitt avenue.

Other airdome proprietors are watching the experiment closely and St. Louis may soon see a return flood of that sort of entertainment while the smaller neighborhood theaters are closed up by the hot weather.

AIRDOMES did not come into St. Louis, by the way, with the movies. They go back long before the galloping tintypes made their appearance and when Bill Goldman and Harry Koplar started their first out door film theater—Ruby S'Renco was a projection machine operator then—they simply fitted the new form of show business into an old setting long familiar to local audiences.

A good many years ago St. Louisans used to flock to the vacant, fenced in lots, to see Negro Minstrels, a popular form of entertainment then. Frequently there were half a dozen minstrel shows going on in different parts of the city at the same time.

Of all the forms of entertainment, blackface comedy is perhaps the only one that is truly native to the United States, according to

The Yiddish Art Company to Give New Plays Here

"Jew Suss" to Be Presented at the Odeon, Friday Night, With Jacob Ben-Ami in Leading Role.

THE Yiddish Art Theater Players, the outstanding group of players in the Jewish theater, will visit St. Louis for three performances at the Odeon next Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. For their present tour, the players have been joined by Jacob Ben-Ami, who has for a number of years appeared both on the English and Yiddish stage in a series of performances that have stamped him as among the foremost actors in America. He was last seen here at the American Theater in George C. Tyler's revival of "Diplomacy."

For their St. Louis engagement the Yiddish Art Theater Players will present three different plays. On Friday night, June 13, the offering will be "Jew Suss," a stirring historical drama by Leon Feuchtwanger. On the following night, the group will be seen in "Green Fields," and on Sunday night, June 15, they will present "From the Other World," one of their best vehicles.

"Jew Suss" is a powerful play of early eighteenth century politics. It is worthy of note that Feuchtwanger first wrote the play and from this he developed his novel "Power," a work of fiction that has gained hundreds of thousands of readers and is still being widely read.

The play was an outstanding success in New York last season. The cast is practically the original one, with the exception of Ben-Ami, who is to appear in the title role. In the supporting company are Judith Abarbanel, Anne Appel, Izidore Casher, Lazar Freed, Berta Gerstein, Joseph Greenberg, Sam Lerer, Jacob Mestel, Anna Teitelbaum, Anatol Vinagradoff, Mark Schweid, Morris Strassberg and Louis Weissberg.

The local visit of the Yiddish Art Theater Players is under the auspices of Sol Goldman.

EDDIE LOWRY SETS A NEW RECORD FOR ALL STAGE BAND LEADERS

Moran and Mack, the Two Black Crows who have made a thorough study of the history of Negro minstrelsy.

Both have worked in burnt cork the major part of their theatrical lives and both have been connected at times with minstrel shows here in St. Louis, Mack's home town. Now, after musical comedy, vaudeville and minstrel show careers, they are in motion pictures, their current opus being "Anybody's War."

Blackface comedy rose in America because there the transplanted African has been brought into intimate contact with the transplanted European, the comedians point out.

According to Moran and Mack, George W. Dixon probably was the first actor to play a dusky part, but he was surrounded by white actors and therefore the "father of minstrelsy" is generally said to have been Thomas D. (Jim Crow) Rice.

• • •

THE latter took his characterization from an old Negro and, working without support of persons of another color, made his Jim Crow character a sensation both in song and dance. He is even responsible for the first stage appearance of Joseph Jefferson, using the latter at a benefit in blackface counterpart of himself when Jefferson was only four years of age.

Rice introduced his character in 1828 and then carried minstrelsy into England in 1836 to secure a tremendous hit. Minstrelsy also made sporadic excursions into France and Germany.

Early in the forties, Negro minstrelsy as it is known today was born. Dan Emmett, Frank Brower, Billy Whitlock and Dick Pelham, entertaining themselves in a New York boarding house with songs, banjo, tambourine and bones, conceived the minstrel show idea. In 1848 they formed the first minstrel show, "The Virginia Minstrels." The style they employed is still in use today.

Shortly afterward, E. P. Christy organized his Christy Minstrels, who were enormously successful both here and in England.

Emmett wrote a number of popular songs for his minstrel show, among which were "Old Dan Tucker," "The Boatman's Dance," "Walk Along, John" and "Early in the Morning." He also wrote "Dixie" as a walk-around for his show. It was introduced into the South by Mrs. John Wood in a burlesque at New Orleans and the Louisianans carried it into the Civil War where it became the Confederate war song. It is said that Stephen Collins wrote "Old Folks at Home" for a minstrel show.

Minstrel shows began to flourish and from the close of the Civil War until 1900 they were a vital factor in the show business.

BELLE BENNETT, whose picture "Courage" is at the Missouri this week, goes back to an even older form of amusement for her start. Her father owned a tent show and she made her first stage appearance behind the candle footlights. Camp chairs served the audiences of this traveling troupe. Many times rainy weather stopped the performances and the admission price had to be refunded, much to her father's worry, as too many rainy nights meant hungry actors.

After completing her education at the Sacred Heart convent in Minnesota, Miss Bennett joined a stock company in which she played everything from "Way Down East" to "Alias Jimmy Valentine." She later toured the country with various repertory companies and spent some time on Broadway in the legitimate. She also appeared on the variety stage in dramatic and comic sketches.

When "Stella Dallas" was filmed as a silent motion picture, Belle Bennett was signed for the role of the mother and she made her debut as a motion picture actress in the production. Few people have made such a lasting impression as Miss Bennett in "Stella Dallas." Her performance is still considered one of the best portrayals to reach the screen.

Immediately recognized as an actress of unusual merit she then played in such pictures as "Mother Machree," "The Battle of the Sexes," "The Iron Mask" and many others. Her first talkie was "Their Own Desire."

VICTOR McLAGLEN'S life story is even more romantic and thrilling and, at the same time, more colorful than any fiction character he has played in pictures. The hero of "On the Level," at the Fox Theater, was born in London. A six-footer at 14, weighing close to 200 pounds, he ran away from home to enlist in the Boer War. After three years of fighting, he went to Canada, later joining the gold rush to the Cobalt silver mines, where he became the camp's champion boxer and wrestler.

When the town burned, he returned and, piloted by "Biddy" Bishop, won the heavyweight championship of Eastern Canada. The high spot of his ring career was reached when he fought Champion Jack Johnson a six-round draw in Vancouver, B. C. McLaglen also toured Canada and the United States with a carnival company, meeting all comers, after which he made a vaudeville tour.

When his tour ended, he went to Australia and arrived just in time to join the Kalgoorie gold rush, almost dying of thirst on the desert. Then he toured Ceylon, India and Africa. Arriving in Capetown, he learned of the World War. Hastening home to England, he enlisted with four of his seven brothers.

At the end of the war, McLaglen returned to London, where a motion picture producer induced him to embark on his present career. He played his first role in "The Call of the Road" and followed this by portraying the leading male role in "The Glorious Adventure" opposite Lady Diana Manners. J. Stuart Blackton in the United States, invited him to play the lead in "The Beloved Brute." Fox Films then signed him to play the lead in "The Hunted Woman.' His next role was in "Beau Geste." Then came his crowning achievement in "What Price Glory."

His recent pictures include "The Black Watch," "The Cock-Eyed World" and "Hot for Paris."

Little Brothers and Sisters Of the Movie Stars

BEHIND THE SCREENS OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

A Football Hero Gets a Fat Studio Contract

HOLLYWOOD, June 7.

HAVING a brother or sister in the movies makes it easier for one to crash the screen, but it is never an infallible entree.

"Legacies," in the vernacular of the college frat, are welcomed to the movies contract lists only when they show promise of equaling or exceeding the already-in relatives in talent.

DAVEY LEE

The younger Rogers with the strange name of "Bh" found it easy to take a screen test, but he had to prove his acting ability before he was signed.

Sally O'Neil similarly opened the doors of opportunity to her sister, Molly O'Day.

Lola Lane recently did the same for Leota, her former vaudeville teammate, Colleen Moore for her brother, Cleve, and Mary Pickford, years ago, for Jack.

Joan Crawford has a brother, Hal LeSeuer, who has made little movie progress.

Although Terry Carroll has been used in pictures in the East by Sister Nancy's studio, thus far she has not set the screen afire.

Violet LaPlante, sister of Laura, worked in pictures for some time and finally gave up to go on the stage.

There are others who, like Victor McLaglen's brother, Arthur, a sculptor by profession, dabble at picture work more for fun than anything else.

Occasionally, however, the newcomer, given a chance principally because of such a relationship stays to outshine the star.

Thus did Sidney Blackmer, who came West with a stage reputation but was known here principally as Lenore Ulric's husband.

He remained to become a star while Lenore, both her talkies failures, returned to the stage.

And Frankie Lee, who some years ago gave a splendid performance as a child actor, was summoned for a similar role by a studio which forgot that he had grown up.

With Frankie was his baby brother, who was spied by Al Jolson. That incident gave the screen its Sonny Boy—Davey Lee.

• • •

SOME pathetic figures in Hollywood: The big he-man actor, master of every situation on the screen, but at home virtually under the thumb of "the little woman."

The washed-up star who splurges desperately with full-page ads in film trade journals.

The matinee idol of other years pausing near a theater to gaze sadly at his daughter's name in the marquee mazdas.

The Broadway star who expected Hollywood to genuflect at her approach.

The chorus girl who is developing varicose veins.

The star who talks about her "next picture"—unaware that her contract is not to be renewed.

The erstwhile extra girl who considers her bright new contract sufficient reason to snub her former friends.

• • •

MAE MURRAY has filed another lawsuit, this time over an apartment-house controversy.

Her most recent, until now, was against the producers of her only talkie, "Peacock Alley," because they did not star her in another.

She is probably Hollywood's most inveterate suit-filer. If anyone ever sues Miss Murray, that will be news!

Jiggs, the dog star of the all-barkie comedies, has lost his job. Temperament was blamed.

The next barkie, incidentally, will be "The Dogway Melody," modeled after the film revues and "The Broadway Melody."

• • •

AND, speaking of Barkies, because he was a throw-back in a litter of five pedigreed puppies, Mutt, trained dog star, the Lon Chaney of the canine world, is today gathering pay checks while his four brothers and sisters loaf.

Mutt is now completing a part which continues throughout the production of Moran and Mack's second starring picture, "Anybody's War." It probably will be the biggest dog part of the year.

The dog is a pedigreed Sealyham terrier. His father is "Clown," many times grand champion at the Norfolk Kennels and his mother also was a thoroughbred.

When he was born he was faulty in nearly every way, while the other four puppies were perfect.

Because he looked like a "mutt," was too heavy, not the right color and misshapen for show purposes, he was discarded for selling purposes and finally purchased by Henry East, who wanted him for screen parts, since directors are always on the lookout for mongrels that are smart.

Mutt began working when six months old and has been playing parts for four years. Among his important roles before the present assignment were those with Clara Bow in "Hula" and Bebe Daniels in "Stranded in Paris."

He performs merely by motions from a trainer and throughout the picture obeyed under the name of "Deep Stuff," his canine cognomen in the production.

• • •

DECEITFUL TONIA wants a chance to be sincere. On the Eastern stage Dorothy Burgess was referred to as "sweet little Dorothy Burgess," but out in her native West no one knows her professionally except as a wily and heartless deceiver.

DOROTHY BURGESS

The transition of type began, however, in the East. Two years ago, when she was playing in stock in Rochester, the company decided to produce "The Squall." Dorothy was given the part of the gypsy vampire, passionate and unscrupulous, a role entirely different from any she had done before.

But she threw herself into the characterization and succeeded gloriously.

It began a succession of similar parts. The troupe came West and played "The Squall" in Los Angeles. That was at the time Fox was seeking an actress for the role of Tonia in "In Old Arizona."

• • •

MISS BURGESS, not particularly interested in movies, and secure in the knowledge that a play was being written for her in New York, hesitated long before accepting.

When she did and the picture became a hit as the first outdoor talkie, Hollywood regarded her screen future as enviable.

But it hasn't worked out so well. Her characterization of the faithless Tonia was too convincing. The studio would not consider her for other types of roles. Tonia playing heroines? Impossible!

They gave her a few minor parts before releasing her, and she continued as a free-lancer, her career of wicked treachery, because other producers thought the same.

A recent role, that of the simpering, shrewdly calculating villainess in "Swing High," is typical of the parts she so dislikes. Given such a character, she plays it well—but dreads, and realizes, that producers and fans will regard her as that type of woman.

She is, in real life, as far different from such characters as possible. For one thing, she is entirely unaffected in manner and speech; in character she frequently is painfully so, because faithful characterization so dictates.

MAE MURRAY

JUST when it seemed that the highway to screen opportunity was definitely closed to those without specialized talents, along came Bill Banker from New Orleans and very fresh from college to capture a contract—but not on the strength of his football reputation.

Johnny Mack Brown, the other Southern football hero, came to the screens and was a leading man before it began babbling.

But Banker, clean-cut but not as handsome as Brown, and probably would not have been signed at all for silent pictures, steps easily into the very talkies which raised the requirements for movie candidates.

BILL BANKER

HE has performed brilliantly before thousands, on the gridiron, but scornfully denies participation in any form of dramatics at Tulane University, where for the past three seasons he played football and earned a berth on many "all-America" selections.

It was in that capacity that he came, with 10 other selected ball players, to appear in a college talkie.

And he was invited to remain, with a contract, principally because in his pronounced Southern drawl, every bit as genuine as Brown's, a director saw great comic possibilities, particularly if it were accentuated for the screen.

That is how Bill Banker, "blond blizzard" of Tulane, will become Bill Banker, character actor and comedian of the Stuart Erwin type.

Very obviously, he is not screen-struck. If the option on his services is not taken up in September, when the first period expires, Banker will be back at Tulane, ready for more college.

Meanwhile, he's not sneezing at present opportunities.

• • •

A PHYSICIAN was explaining to a group of Harold Lloyd's friends, the story goes, how the comedian's blood count had risen a few thousand.

"Gosh," groaned one of them. "And I wouldn't have a dime in that stock!"

"The Divorcee" broke the "house record" during its premiere local showing—Hollywood's "grass widows," no doubt, swarming to swell the box office.

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, who used to co-star in features, are to resume relationship in two-reel comedies.

• • •

CORRALLING some stray notes: Evelyn Knapp, Kansas City schoolgirl, who joined a stock company there, was advised by the stage director to go to New York and lose her "western" accent. She went, and in six months of study was broadAing with the best. But there she played in only underworld plays, and even in Hollywood she won't need her new diction. Her first movie assignment also is a crook thing.

ZASU PITTS

The line between comic and serious characterization seems to be clearly drawn in the audience mind. Zasu Pitts, playing a mother's role in a serious picture, was laughed at by a preview audience which refused to accept her as aught but a comic.

Consequently, two or three days before the picture's formal opening, the entire sequence was reshot with Beryl Mercer as the mother.

THE huge silencing "ice-boxes" which housed the cameras in the earlier days of talking pictures will soon be museum pieces. They had been superseded largely by padded hoods which slipped over the instruments, deadening the sound of the synchronizing motors, and recently a 37-pound camera case, made of a mica preparation, transparent, and not only sound-proof but fire-and-water-proof as well, was put in use. It can be handled by one man.

College students are forgiving souls. No matter how badly the movies malign them on the screen, more and more they turn to movie stars as judges in the "beauty contests" for the college yearbooks.

Mary Brian probably is asked to judge more contests than any other star.

Bob Steele, the Western hero, dines nightly at the counter of a corner drug store.

The trite plot of Bebe Daniels' second talkie, "Love Comes Along," was sustained by her singing. In her third, "Alias French Gertie," she sings not a song. And it's an ultra-conventional crook story.

DOLORES COSTELLO

St. Luke's Players To Present "Tommy"

ST. LUKE'S DRAMATIC CLUB, after being awarded first prize in the Dramatic League of St. Louis Tournament, and a special award from New York from Longman's Green, Publishers, threaten at any time to enter the professional ranks. For a climax to a successful season, the club has chosen the comedy "Tommy," to be given at the Shubert-Rialto Theater Thursday evening, June 12.

"Tommy" is a story of domestic love, full of wise cracks, with Warren Carroll in the title role, assisted in his love making by Ma and Pa Thurber played by Nona Mae Schulze and Lee Oetter. Others in the cast will be Louise Bawn, Harry Sprekelmeyer, Frank McDonough, Florence Corbett and Jerry Gesell. The play will be given in conjunction with the silver jubilee of Rev. J. A. McMahon.

Clara Bow Changes Mind, Re-bobs Hair

NOW that she is no longer "True to the Navy," Clara Bow has had her hair cut in a short bob once more.

As the sweetheart of the fleet in her last picture, she wore her flaming tresses long, having allowed them to grow for many weeks.

In her new starring vehicle, "Love Among the Millionaires," the short bob will remain in favor. Perhaps she will let her hair grow again when the film is ended, but that, like the weather, is uncertain.

Shubert to Open With "All Quiet" Film on Saturday

IF the talking machinery is installed in time, as it now appears it will be, the Shubert Theater will reopen next Saturday night with the film version of the war story, "All Quiet on the Western Front." The picture, one of the most successful film road shows the country has seen in some time, will continue at the Grand avenue "legit" theater as long as the cash customers show a desire to have a look.

Two performances, after the opening night, will be given daily. One at 2:30 each afternoon and the other at 8:30 in the evening. All seats in the theater will be reserved.

Louis Wolheim, well known for his work on the stage as Captain Flagg in "What Price Glory," plays the part of "Katczinsky," the hard-boiled, devil may-care sargeant who proves the greatest friend to youths who have been forced into the human mill, while they are yet hardly loose from mother's apron strings. Lewis Ayers, a youngster of 20, has the leading role of "Paul." Others in the cast are Russell Gleason, William Bakewell, Scott Kolk, Walter Rogers Brown, Ben Alexander and Owen Davis Jr. are the comrades of "Paul." John Wray, "Slim" Summerville, Harold Goodwin, Richard Alexander, Arnold Lacy, Pat Collins and Yola D'Avril are also players.

"CIRCUS PRINCESS" TO BEGIN WEEK AT THE MUNICIPAL OPERA

gius hopes "Mr. X" will marry the widow, then resume his mask and disappear.

That evening the circus performer is introduced to Princess Fedora, whom he recognizes as the wife of his late uncle. It is a case of love at first sight and they are to be wed the next day. Every member of the circus troupe is assembled, and each is armed with a banner bearing upon it the name of "Mr. X." Now for the first time the Princess knows she has married a circus man. And now for the first time "Mr. X" becomes aware of the fact that he is but a tool in Prince Sergius' plan for revenge.

The Princess is angry and tells him to go. He disclosed the fact that he is Prince Palinsky's nephew and he sings to her of his love. But she spurns him.

Later she is sorry she has told him to go. When Prince Sergius comes to crave forgiveness for his plot, she insists that he try to help her win back her husband. They plan to make Captain Orloff jealous. Prince Sergius carefully plans a speech of love and arranges to have Orloff hear it. In this way the two are happily brought together in the end.

GUY ROBERTSON, as "Mr. X," the young Russian nobleman who has hidden himself as a circus rider and whose romantic love for a high-born lady motivates the story of "The Circus Princess," heads a cast especially assembled for Municipal Opera's production, and which includes not only artists who, like Margaret Carlisle, Jack Sheehan, George Anderson, Frederic Perrson, and Belle Sylvia, are already established as favorites by their fine performances in "Nina Rosa," but several faces new to Municipal Opera's stage.

These include Doris Patston, an English ingenue who appears as a German girl, performing in the Russian circus as "America's syncopated sunbeam," Hal Forde, an English comedian who is an outstanding New York favorite, John Clarke, the English tenor who already has made a name in operetta in America, and Bernard Gorcey, a clever dialict comedian.

The Riding Rooneys, one of the best known comedy equestrian acts in the world of the circus, will be a feature of "The Circus Princess." Heading the Rooneys is Charles Rooney, whose ludicrous feats as a riding clown have always been convulsing and delightful. Two other riders are in his company, which brings five specially trained horses to augment a squadron of 12 high school horses which will also be used in the presentation of the circus scenes.

Casey Players End Their Long Season

CAUGHT by the warmer weather the Casey Players brought their season to an end at the Orpheum Theater last night upon the completion of the run of the comedy, "Your Uncle Dudley." The company is to reopen early in September.

Arthur Casey brought the organization to the Orpheum last December opening on Christmas night and has played for 25 consecutive weeks. Only one of the plays offered, "An American Tragedy," failed to show a profit.

The Grand Opera House, running pictures and vaudeville, also closed for the season last night.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 7.

MY PEARL lid is off to a certain white-haired father who was giving a dinner party to his young daughter and a dozen of her girl friends in a cafe the other evening. He was the life of the party—keeping everyone amused with a flow of amusing chatter. At the conclusion he was wheeled away in an invalid's chair.

At a nearby table was one of those hard-faced ladies, hennaed and kalsomined, and gazing dreamily with half-lidded insouciance, while she inhaled deeply of cigarette after cigarette. Here were vibrant youth and girlish freshness in contrast to fast living and its inevitable toll. I wondered of what she was thinking!

Henry Morton Robinson, a capable writing man of Woodstock, N. Y., recently wrote an arresting article on "Eccentricity Is No Crime" in Vanity Fair, in which, among other things, he spoke of the didoes of Gerard de Nervhal and Harry Lehr. In elaborating a similar theme in these trivialities, these didoes were mentioned, but through copy cutting or copy-cutting zealotry, no credit was given to Mr. Robinson—a credit which should have been bestowed and herewith is.

Every once in a while letter writers try to make it a little tougher than usual for postal clerks by addressing a letter to me with two circles inside of which is an automobile tire with "Mac" printed therein. It, of course, arrives promptly. Indeed I had one letter mailed in South Africa with no address and the mere initials "O. O. M." reach me in four months after going all over Europe. Postal clerks have their way of running down such things, but they don't particularly relish the search.

Casey Players End Their Long Season

CAUGHT by the warmer weather the Casey Players brought their season to an end at the Orpheum Theater last night upon the completion of the fourth week of the run of the comedy, "Your Uncle Dudley." The company is to reopen early in September.

Arthur Casey brought the organization to the Orpheum last December opening on Christmas night and has played for 25 consecutive weeks. Only one of the plays offered, "An American Tragedy," failed to show a profit.

The Grand Opera House, running pictures and vaudeville, also closed for the season last night.

WAGNER DENOUNCES HYDE'S STATEMENT

Senator Accuses Secretary of Denying Facts on Unemployment.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Senator Robert Wagner (Dem.), New York, author of three bills designed to relieve unemployment, yesterday issued through the Democratic National Committee a statement contradicting assertions made by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde on that subject before the Indiana Republican State convention. Secretary Hyde told the Indiana Republicans that "the nation is back at work," that "we have suffered from little more than seasonal unemployment," and that "there is relatively little distress."

"I wish," said Senator Wagner, "it could be as cheerful about the present unemployment situation as Secretary Hyde. If some good could be accomplished by this 'all's well' announcement his obvious departure from the facts could be excused. But these cheering statements have become so frequent in the face of continuing and increasing unemployment that no one is further misled or encouraged.

Says Facts Refute Hyde.

"It is none the less astounding that a Cabinet officer should declare that the nation is back at work when the Government's own figures indicate that more men are being laid off, both in the manufacturing plants and in industries generally. It is a shocking abuse of words to call the present unemployment normal, 'seasonal slack,' when all of the recently published records of the Government, Secretary Hyde will not find a single month in which the index of employment fell las low as in 1930, and the same is true of the entire first quarter of the year.

"What pathetic apathy to human difficulties Mr. Hyde reveals when he reports his conclusion that there was relatively little distress produced by the unemployment of the past winter. To me lengthening bread lines in every city, and mounting demands on charitable organizations, are evidences of very serious distress which the Government is under obligation to prevent. The right kind of optimism is that which faces the facts and meets the future courageously. Nothing at all, however, is accomplished by denying unpleasant facts instead of grappling with them.

Warner's Bills Before House.

All three of Wagner's bills passed the Senate some time ago. One, providing for monthly figures on employment by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, has been favorably reported to the House by the Committee on Executive Expenditures. The two major measures, providing for an emergency public improvement program, and for the establishment of Federal employment agencies in co-operation with the states, will be considered by the House Judiciary Committee next week.

The delay by the House in acting on the two more important measures is likely to prevent the passage of one or both of them at the present session of Congress. Employer organization which have actively opposed the establishment of Federal employment agencies have been accused by Wagner of desiring to maintain a reserve supply of hungry applicants for jobs in order to keep down wages."

NEGROES COMPLAIN ABOUT JURY DRAWING

Tell Circuit Judges That Only 10 Have Been Called in Five Years.

Complaint was made yesterday to the Circuit Judges, sitting as a board of jury supervisors, that Negroes are not called for jury service, and an investigation will be conducted July 1 at a special meeting. The complaint was voiced by a committee of the Mound City Bar Association, composed of Negro attorneys, who charged that in the last five years not over 10 Negroes had been summoned. Several judges were disposed to dispute this estimate, saying they thought the number was greater. However, they instructed the chief jury supervisor, Amos L. Seaman, to bring the data before them if it is available.

John A. Davis, president of the Mound City Association, asserted that 5000 Negroes in this city are eligible for jury service but from the few called it appeared to him race discrimination was being practiced to keep Negroes off juries. He added it was peculiar they did not get a chance here when they were permitted to serve in St. Louis County, Kansas City and other jurisdictions, even in Texas. "We feel many of our people are as capable as any one to sit on juries and they are anxious to be given this opportunity," he declared.

The judges replied that Negroes have as much right as other citizens to do jury duty and no instruction had been issued to bar any one on account of either race or creed. Davis said the complaint was not directed to a failure of Negroes to be selected in trial of cases but it appeared, he said, few, if any, were actually summoned.

Seaman explained that when he prepared the jury lists he had no way of knowing whether the names drawn were those of white or Negro persons. He said the law prescribed certain qualifications for jurors and it was rigidly adhered to by him.

The pay of a juror was recently increased to $3 a day, formerly having been $1.50 a day. About 40,000 jurors a year are drawn in St. Louis for the Circuit Court, Seaman said.

GIRL SCOUTS GET AWARDS

Spring Court Is Held at the Art Museum.

The annual Spring Court of Awards of St. Louis Girl Scouts was held yesterday afternoon at the Art Museum in Forest Park, with 34 girls receiving first-class badges, 29 silver stripes for five years' membership, and 15 letters of commendation from national headquarters of the organization.

Golden Eaglets, highest awards in Girl Scouting, were presented to four, Katherine Miller and Mary Elsman of Troop 25, John Burroughs School; Betty Gollub of Troop 17, Christ Church Cathedral, and Sylvia Huf of Troop 16, Lindenwood. A review of 30 flags of countries where there are Girl Scout troops was a part of the program.

ATTACKS SALE IN U. S. OF REPARATIONS BONDS

Congressman MacFadden Says State Department O K Reverses 12-Year Policy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Congressman Louis T. MacFadden of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Currency, today attacked the prospective marketing of German reparations bonds in the United States.

Approval given by the State Department of the sale of $100,000,000 worth of the bonds in this country by a syndicate of bankers, he told a meeting of the People's Forum, reverses a foreign policy of 12 years' standing.

"We refused to accept the treaty of Versailles, or to participate in the imposition or collection of reparations," he said. "Now we are asked to abandon the fixed policy of 12 years because under the Young plan they have arranged to have us pay them possibly more than $3,000,000,000 for the right to collect a large part of the reparations annuities.

"If this is so we might as well have ratified the treaty of Versailles in 1919 and have avoided criticism for these 12 years of isolation from Europe's political controversies."

Speaking from the same platform, James G. McDonald, chairman of the Foreign Policy Association, took sharp issue with MacFadden.

Answering the latter's charge that co-operation of the American bankers with the International Bank is a part of a gigantic conspiracy to embroil the United States in European politics, McDonald said:

"It is too grotesque to deserve serious rebuttal. It is an attack on the patriotism and integrity of all these distinguished Americans who co-operated so helpfully in the creation of the Young plan and the bank for international settlements."

ONLY ACTIVITY IS STUDY IN NEW $5,000,000 SCHOOL

Institute for Advanced Study Bars Football, Glee Clubs and Fraternities.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., June 7.—The United States is to have a university without a football team, without a glee club, without any fraternities, without any proms, without any "college activity" except study.

Announcement was made today of an initial endowment of $5,000,000 by Louis Bamberger, retired merchant, and his sister, Mrs. Felix Fuld, for establishment of an institution where teachers and post graduate students may conduct intellectual exploration untroubled by the "charms and diversions" usually associated with college life.

There will be no undergraduate body, the professors will divide their time betweeen teaching and carrying on research and the students will pursue advanced learning in pure science and high scholarship.

The new school will be known as the Institute for Advanced Study, and its facilities will be available to all who show reasonable promise of achieving some advancement in the field of human knowledge, regardless of race, sex or religious belief.

Dr. Abraham Flexner, former director of the division of Medical Education of the General Education Board of New York City, is to be the first directfor of the institute, which will be situated in Newark of its vicinity.

COURT APPEAL SAVES NEGRO LOAN COMPANY FROM RECEIVER

Trouble Started When Firm Threatened to Sue Stockholder for Unpaid Balance.

An order prohibiting a receiver appointed by Circuit Judge Mulloy at Clayton from taking charge of the People's Finance Corporation, a Negro loan company, was issued by Presiding Judge Haid of the St. Louis Court of Appeals yesterday at the request of attorneys for the company. The order will be effective until the case has been heard in the Court of Appeals June 17.

John A. Nolan, an attorney, was appointed receiver Friday, Judge Malloy acting on a petition filed in behalf of F. L. Fantroy, a Negro of Kirkwood. The petition alleged that the company was being mismanaged.

Fantroy, who holds a few shares of stock in the company, said he did not know the nature of the action taken by his attorney. He had retained the attorney, he said, when the company threatened to sue him for $145, the unpaid balance on his stock, and at the request of the attorney signed some papers which, he understood, would forestall the threatened suit.

Magnates Plant Trees for Dawes.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, O., June 7.—Sir Josiah Stamp, English railroad magnate, and Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, today planted trees in the Dawes Arboretum, six miles south of here. The Arboretum, owned by Beman G. Dawes, brother of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, was established a number of years ago, and it has been Dawes' ambition to have all prominent leaders in industry and Government plant trees in the big plot. Sir Josiah brought the tree planted today from his estate in England.

WHOSE WIFE is Mrs. Gibbons?

Mrs. Adelaide K. Ward Selleck-Gibbons.

But Whichever of Two Possible Husbands Is Selected by the New York Supreme Court, the Central Figure in this Complicated State of Affairs Stands to Collect Big Alimony.

By ARTHUR STRAWN

Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

IT'S a very complicated affair, the marital tangle of Mrs. Adelaide K. Ward Selleck-Gibbons. It's such an involved affair that Supreme Court Justice Morschauser of Westchester County is spending long weeks pondering the evidence in an effort to reach something like a reasonable decision. In the meantime, two men are nervously wondering which of them the Honorable Judge is going to decide is Mrs. A. K. W. Selleck-Gibbons' lawful spouse, a distinction neither of them is at all eager to acquire. At the same time, another woman, Mrs. Blanche F. Powell, is nervously hoping the Judge won't choose the wrong man, for such a choice is very apt to cost her a cool half-million dollars.

In fact, Mrs. A. K. W. Selleck-Gibbons is the only one of the group in a position to await the Judge's decision with equanimity and no sleepless nights. For if Judge Morschauser picks one of the men, she stands to collect something like $30,000 for back alimony; and if the Judge chooses the other man, she stands to collect a thousand dollars back alimony, plus a possible half-million for alienation of affection. Since none of the talented legal counsel involved in the case has been able to produce a possible third husband, it would appear that Mrs. A. K. W. Selleck-Gibbons just can't lose.

The first step toward the present confusion was taken in 1900, when Adelaide K. Ward, then a young miss of 20, married Frank B. Selleck in New York. One branch of Miss Ward's ancestry was transported to this country on the Mayflower. Her family settled in Westchester County in 1629. One of her forbears was a Governor of New York State and her father, the late Colonel DeWitt Clinton Ward, was an intimate friend and political adviser to Theodore Roosevelt. At the time of her marriage Selleck was engaged in the patent medicine business.

THE marriage lasted for seven years. For reasons unrevealed, Selleck then left home and Mrs. Selleck brought an action against him for separation. She won the case and was awarded a weekly alimony. Twice Selleck failed to pay the alimony, and twice he spent terms of two months each in jail for his failure. When he left Ludlow Jail the second time he decided that the choice between paying alimony or going to the hoosegow was too limited. Accordingly, he concluded that he had better remove himself from the jurisdiction of the New York courts. With a small fortune he had inherited from his mother, he packed up and disappeared to parts unknown. And as far as Mrs. Selleck was concerned, that was the end of him.

Seven years later, while living at an exclusive boarding house on Gramercy Square, New York, Mrs. Adelaide K. Ward Selleck met a fellow boarder, Charles D. Gibbons, a man of unusual attainments and accomplishments. He also came from a very old and distinguished family. He was a highly-educated man, with university degrees from Oberlin, Madrid, Harvard and Heidelberg. He was an accomplished linguist, an international lawyer and a member of the bar of New York and Ohio. And his personal attractiveness was liberally confirmed by the fact that he had wooed and won three women, each of whom, however, had eventually obtained freedom from the cultured lawyer by means of the divorce courts.

For two years Mr. Gibbons courted Mrs. Selleck and then proposed marriage. She was more than passively interested in the proposal, but before yielding to the ardor of his suit informed him that she was burdened with a problem which he as a lawyer would have to solve for her before she could give him an answer.

She informed him that she had never obtained a divorce from her first husband, Frank Selleck, and that she also hadn't seen him for nine years. Was she, therefore, in the eyes of the law, free to consider Selleck legally dead and herself free to contract a second marriage?

Gibbons answered affirmatively, calling her attention to the fact that the law of New York considered a husband dead if he was absent from home for five years and if during that period the wife didn't hear from him or receive any information showing that he was alive. Mrs. Selleck then declared to Gibbons that she hadn't seen or heard from Selleck since his second term in Ludlow Jail, in 1908, and that letters addressed to him in care of his relatives in Long Island had always been returned to her unopened. Gibbons and Mrs. Selleck then went to Newark, New Jersey, and in August, 1917, were married.

A year later Gibbons and his fourth wife went to Cuba and lived there for five years. They returned to New York City and Gibbons soon afterwards engaged in real estate operations in Westchester County, establishing an office in White Plains, an hour's ride from Manhattan. In the course of his real estate operations Gibbons met Mrs. Blanche Powell, wealthy widow of a Canadian millionaire lumber man, who lived in a mansion on a 22-acre estate at Croton Falls, near White Plains. Mrs. Powell, although in her fifties and the mother of several grown children, was, in spite of her years, a woman of comparatively youthful enthusiasms. At least one is impelled to that conclusion by the court records which show that two years before meeting Gibbons she was named defendant in a suit for alienation of affections, and settled the case by paying $2500 to an aggrieved wife.

Almost from the day Gibbons met Mrs. Powell his real estate business became extremely engrossing, so much so that he found it necessary to stay away from home on several occasions to complete his transactions. Then he began to stay away several days at a time, then weeks at a time. No matter how busy he was during these periods of absence the considerate fellow always managed to find time to inscribe affectionate letters to his wife. They were quite exceptional letters, containing quotations from several literatures, sprinklings of poetry and an allusion here and there to the philosophers. They were the letters of a very learned and very devoted man. In any case, Mr. Gibbons enjoyed writing his own letters so much that he eventually stayed away from home altogether, presumably to have more opportunity to write.

Mrs. A. K. W. Selleck-Gibbons went out to White Plains to investigate the situation. There one afternoon she encountered Gibbons entering an automobile other than his own, his arms burdened with packages. To Mrs. Gibbons' numerous inquiries he returned polite but completely noncommittal answers. When he drove away she followed him in another automobile and discovered that his trip ended at the estate of Mrs. Powell at Croton Falls. Not long after that she gained entrance to the Powell mansion and found her husband living there.

"What does this mean, Charley?" she asked. "What are you doing here?"

But this time Gibbons' reply was neither polite nor noncommittal. What he said, according to Mrs. Gibbons, was:

"You mean, what are you doing here. Get out of here and don't bother me any more!"

Mrs. A. K. W. Selleck-Gibbons can take a hint as well as the next woman. She engaged legal counsel and brought suit for separation. The Judge before whom the case was brought allowed her counsel fees and a temporary allowance until the case could be determined.

Next Mrs. Gibbons brought suit against the wealthy Mrs. Powell for a million dollars for alienating her husband's affections. The case was tried, a jury found Mrs. Powell guilty and a verdict was returned in the sum of $500,000, the largest amount of heart balm a jury has ever awarded in these United States. Mrs. Powell's large estate and mansion were promptly attached by the Sheriff, but because of some technicality the verdict was reversed by the Appellate Court and the case will have to be tried over again, with very little to indicate that Mrs. Powell will fare any better at the hands of a jury when the case again goes to trial.

On April 22 the separation suit was heard before Justice Morschauser in Supreme Court at White Plains and Gibbons was called to account for having failed to pay the $1290 in back alimony. Mrs. Gibbons was on the stand. She was making out a strong case, when a man walked into the courtroom and took a rear seat. As her roving eye finally took him in, and a further glance identified him in her mind, the complexion of Mrs. A. K. W Selleck-Gibbons and of her case underwent a marked change. There was little in the appearance of this mild stranger to suggest that he was a harbinger of evil, but his arrival so changed conditions that the case was halted then and there by Justice Morschauser. For the stranger was none other than Frank B. Selleck, the long-absent husband of the plaintiff.

SELLECK had been located by Gibbons, who advanced the theory that he couldn't be compelled to pay Mrs. A. K. W. Selleck-Gibbons any alimony because he had never been her legal husband, owing to the fact that she had never divorced her first husband, Selleck, who, obviously, wasn't dead.

Selleck took the stand and informed the court that after leaving Mrs. Selleck he had wandered down to Honduras and had acquired several cocoanut farms there. Later he had returned to the United States and had gone into the electrical contracting business with a brother on Long Island. He admitted that his wife had obtained a legal separation, but insisted that as far as he could tell she had never obtained a divorce.

"And so you are Mrs. Gibbons' first husband?" asked Mrs. Gibbons' lawyer.

"I'm the duck," the cocoanut-raising Enoch Arden replied blithely. But his complacent grin underwent a sudden change when the attorney promptly turned to the Judge and said:

"Your Honor, since this man is so eager to prove that he is Mrs. Gibbons' husband, I wish to call the Court's attention to the fact that he is also in arrears of alimony to the extent of $29,524, and I will start action this week to have the alimony paid up or this man sent to jail for contempt of court."

The Judge then adjourned the case to see if he couldn't decide which of the two men is Mrs. A. K. W. Selleck-Gibbons' legal mate. If he decides that Selleck is the mate, then that gentleman is going to find that his generosity in helping Gibbons out of a difficult spot is going to cost him a lot of money—or a third visit to jail for nonpayment of alimony. In that case, Gibbons walks out of court with no fourth marriage officially chalked up on his record, and Mrs. Powell, of course, can't be sued again for alienating the affections of a husband who wasn't a husband. But according to the statute books, it looks very

SCIENCE'S VIEWS on BATHS and BATHING

Dr. Morris Fishbein Writes of the Tub, the Shower, Hot and Cold Water and How They May Be Employed to the Best Advantage.

It is possible to take a cold bath by sponging the body with towels, wrung out of cold water, or wrapping the body in a sheet or various other ways.

By MORRIS FISHBEIN, M. D.
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association

REGARDLESS of the point of view from which you approach the subject of bathing, the evidence is clear that man and water got together very early in the history of human activities upon this earth.

The strange legend has been circulated around the United States that the first bathtub was developed in Cincinnati some time around 1840. This notion was perpetrated by H. L. Mencken purely as a jest, but it was constantly quoted thereafter as sober truth.

The actual facts are that one can see in the Field Museum of Ethnology old Greek, Roman, and even Egyptian bathtubs, indicating that the ancients developed this modern sanitary device.

Indeed, among the ancients bathing was held in high religious repute. The folklore of all peoples contains prayers and rituals associated with the cleansing ceremony. The symbolism which associated cleanliness with Godliness was easily apparent. Indeed, among the ancients of Greece there were both private and public bathing establishments.

Hippocrates, the father of medicine, advocated the use of cold baths at least 350 B. C. He also recognized the importance of rubbing the body after the cold bath in order to stimulate the circulation.

As the Middle Ages approached, the rites of bathing soon became associated with amusements and sexual stimulations. Mixed bathing was common in the nude, or something very closely approaching it, and the moral writers of the time remonstrated repeatedly against the effects of such bathing on the morals of the communities.

In fact, about 300 A. D. hot vapor baths were beginning to be used in addition to cleansing by hot and cold water and by oil. With the coming of modern systems of measurement of effects of various substances and activities upon the human body, actual knowledge is being developed as to what can be accomplished by baths of various sorts.

Among the hygienic fads the cold bath has a position of special importance. The cold bath fanatic is convinced that a plunge into cold water early in the morning or a cold shower builds him up physically and increases his resistance to disease. Unfortunately, he is likely to attempt to inflict his personal preference upon every other human being in the community, and therefore he may become considerable of a nuisance.

If the cold bath agrees with anyone, and he can probably tell that as well as any doctor can tell it for him, there is no reason why he should not indulge. The cold bath means the application of water to the human body at temperatures varying from 80 degrees to 32 degrees. At 32 degrees water freezes, and there are few human beings who care to plunge into the ice. Indeed, 55 degrees is about as cold as anyone can stand a cold bath without too much shock. Cold baths vary in their duration from one-half to three minutes, and the shorter limit is preferred.

IT IS not necessary, of course, to take the cold bath by leaping into a tub filled with cold water or by running the shower bath for one-half to three minutes. It is possible to take a cold bath by sponging the body with towels wrung out of cold water, by wrapping the body in a sheet wet with cold water, or in various other ways. It is not necessary always to bathe the entire body. For certain disturbances of the circulation in the legs one may take alternate hot and cold foot baths; for disturbances of other portions of the body, these alone may be subjected to the effects of cold water.

The effects of cold water vary according to the manner in which it is applied and the duration. It is generally known that cold depresses and heat stimulates the flow of blood in any part of the body. After the effects of cold wear off, the blood comes rushing back to the part and the secondary reaction may be the main reason for giving the bath. A short cold bath temporarily lessens the secretion of perspiration, but thereafter the perspiration is increased. A short cold bath increases the force and lessens the rate of the heart beat and also raises the tone of the muscles.

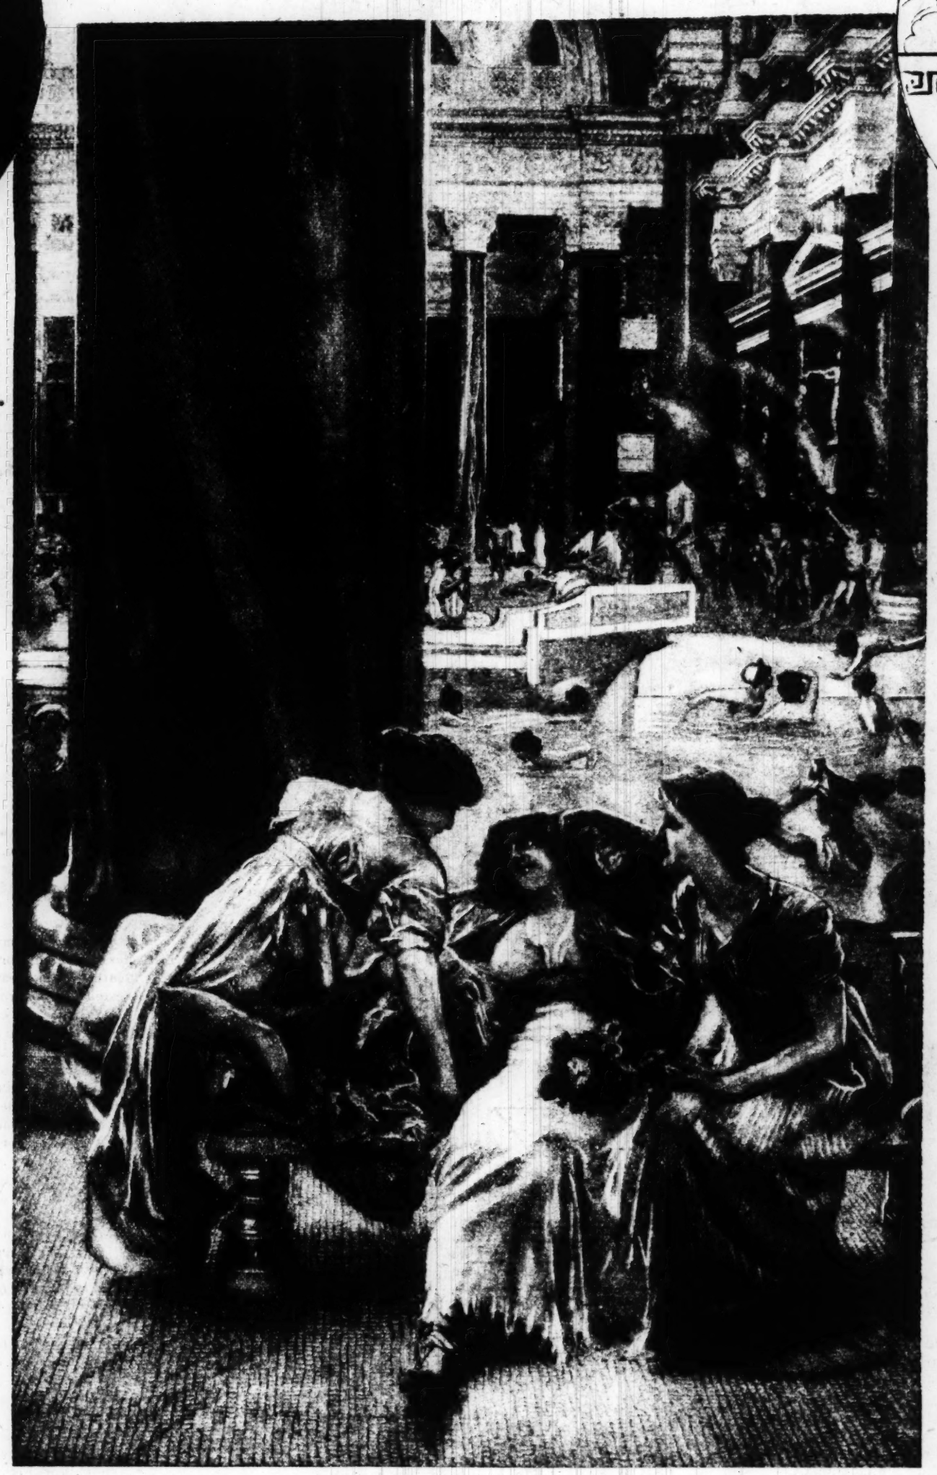
For this reason the cold bath is not advised for people with high blood pressure or with hardened arteries, because their tissues are not in condition to stand the strain associated with these sudden changes in the blood supply. When cold water is first applied to the body, one breathes rapidly and sometimes irregularly. Indeed, the first shock of the cold water may create considerable difficulty in breathing. After about 30 seconds the movements become more regular, but the rate of breathing is very likely to be rapid for the entire duration of the bath.

When the cold bath water is changed to the warmer water or when the bath is ended and one begins to rub himself vigorously with the towel, the respiration slows and becomes deeper. There is more oxygen absorbed, and this effect of the cold bath represents one of its most important features for those who need it. Of particular interest is the form of cold bath for the nervous system. The prolonged application of cold lessens the irritability of the nerves and a short cold bath increases the activity of all functions. For people who are suffering with functional nervous disorders with a sense of weakness and lack of "pep," a short cold bath, followed by a brisk rub, may be the means of inducing vigor. However, too long an application or too much cold bathing may deplete the system so much as to constitute a menace. Hence it is that you should not take up a regime of routine cold bathing without having some advice as to the condition of your health.

There are, of course, certain definite conditions controlling the use of the cold bath which must be constantly kept in mind. You should never take a cold bath when your body is cold. If the circulation is so poor that the body is cold, a warm bath is indicated. For this reason, many suggest that a warm bath be taken before the cold bath or that the body be slightly warmed before the cold bath is undertaken.

If you are very tired, it is better to take a warm bath and go to bed than to endeavor to stimulate the body by a short cold bath.

Cold baths are not recommended for those who are likely to respond with shock; namely, babies and very old people. Cold baths are never recommended for persons suffering with disorders of the kidneys, since it is recognized that their ultimate effects may be serious.



"The Baths of Caracalla"—From the painting by Alma-Tadema.

The extremely hot bath increases the metabolism and aids the loss of water from the body. When you get out of the bath, however, you are likely to feel thirsty.

FEW people realize how definitely bathing may be made to affect the temperature of the human body. In fact, more and more high fevers are being controlled by proper sponging than by the use of drugs that specifically depress the temperature. As long ago as 1797 a physician found that the prolonged hot bath could raise the temperature and that a cold bath would depress it. It has been recognized that a hot bath will cause a fall in the blood pressure and with it more rapid breathing.

In order to get some exact measurements of these points, Dr. H. C. Bazett, in the Department or Physiology in the University of Pennsylvania, studied the effects of baths of various temperatures on the physical condition of the body. Ten men and four women were tested under a variety of conditions. It was found that there was little or no change in the pulse if the water was neutral in temperature; namely, about 94 degrees. If the water was hot, the pulse rate rose rapidly with any activity. This is one of the reasons why people sometimes faint away when exposed too long to sweat baths or hot vapor baths. A bath that is neutral does not affect the blood pressure, but if a bath is definitely warm the blood pressure falls and there is a dilation of the blood vessels in the skin. The fall of the blood pressure is another reason for the faintness associated with extremely hot baths. The breathing may become so rapid during a hot bath that it finally becomes difficult to breathe. A very hot room will produce somewhat the same effect.

People vary their reactions to the warmth of water. If one enters a neutral bath, which is somewhere between 94 and 100 degrees Fahrenheit, the water will feel slightly warm. After a while it feels comfortable, and then somewhat cold. If people are guided by their own sensations, they are likely to choose a bath at a temperature slightly higher than that of the body.

If the bath is raised above 104 degrees one begins to feel a sense of breathlessness and a tendency to fever.

The hot bath in treatment of disease is one of the oldest methods for controlling the condition of the human body. It has been recognized that the fever reaction is sometimes for the benefit of the body. Thus in some of the newer methods of treatment it is customary to produce fever in order to stimulate the activities of the tissues.

In Stanford University attempts were made to control the fever in the body by the use of very hot baths.

Thus baths of a temperature of 110 degrees Fahrenheit were used for patients with diseases in which it seemed desirable to raise the temperature. It was possible in this way to produce temperatures of 104 to 105 degrees and to maintain such fevers for from one to two hours without danger. The fever was under perfect control and could be lowered by gradually changing the temperature of the water. In some instances the fever treatment was given every day for several hours over a period of six weeks.

IN MANY institutions for the treatment of the insane or nervously stimulated person, it has been customary to use what is called the continuous bath in order to produce a state of restfulness and quiet. In the continuous bath the patient lies in a tub and the water is kept at a constant temperature around 100 degrees Fahrenheit. The patient may lie in this bath for many hours and, indeed, even for days. In many institutions the continuous bath is developed in such form that even patients requiring restraint lie in tubs and are kept quiet until the bath has its effect in depressing the excitable condition.

The skin is not a filter and water does not pass backward and forward to the body through it. In some institutions patients are given the effects of a continuous bath without putting them in the tub merely by wrapping them in blankets or in towels kept moistened with water of the required temperature.

In addition to the use of the warm and cold baths in the manner mentioned, special forms of bathing are recognized as having special virtues. Surf bathing is healthful exercise for those in good health and competent to deal with the buffeting of the waves, the cold and the outdoor air. After a few hours the effect is fatigue, and most people find themselves able to sleep well for a few hours in the afternoon, if the surf bathing is done early in the morning.

NEWARK, N. J.

COMMITTING suicide so that his wife of four months would be free to marry his brother, with whom she was in love, Henry Keller, twenty-two-year-old clerk and former Marine Corps member, removed himself from a domestic triangle by inhaling gas in his room, at the same time writing down a record of his sensations as he passed into oblivion.

Ironically enough, the situation which he found too intolerable to endure longer was the result of a previous unsuccessful attempt at suicide. Last summer he took poison because young Florence Wolfert refused to marry him. When he recovered, she consented to marry him, "out of pity," as she has lately declared. But it was a questionable boon she bestowed on him by becoming Mrs. Henry Keller, for a short time after her marriage she discovered that she was in love with Henry's brother, Edward, and asked her husband for a divorce so that they might be married. Henry consented to the arrangement, turned on the gas after taking great precautions that his second attempt at self-destruction would not be a failure, and died hating his wife and the brother for whom she had left him.

Until Florence Wolfert crossed their path, the two brothers had been inseparable companions. They had once been parted during childhood for a period of ten years, and when they met again ten years ago they formed an attachment exceptionally close even for brothers. Their parents separated when Henry was two and Edward was three. The father took Edward and another brother and moved to Ohio. Mrs. Keller, the mother, remained in Newark with Henry and his sister.

When Edward was twelve his father told him about the rest of the family and Edward then came to Newark. Edward and Henry took an immediate liking to one another and became devoted companions. In 1926 they hiked together from Newark to San Francisco. Then they joined the Marines together.

Edward Keller, the brother, and Mrs. Florence Keller, the widow, of the deceased.

Last summer, shortly before his discharge from the service, Henry, the younger of the two brothers, met Miss Florence Wolfert in Philadelphia, where he was stationed. She was tall and good-looking, with dark, bobbed hair, brown eyes and a mild, unassuming manner. Henry fell in love with her and proposed marriage as soon as he had completed his enlistment with the Marines. Florence told him she didn't love him and therefore wouldn't marry him. He threatened to kill himself if she continued to reject him, but Florence considered the threat as a mere gesture. Henry then took a dose of poison. It almost killed him, but he was discovered in time. When he recovered he continued his suit, and now Florence, convinced that he would end his life if she spurned him, reluctantly agreed to become his wife. They were married in Philadelphia on January 2, and immediately afterwards came to live with Henry's mother in Newark, where Henry obtained a job as clerk in a pie bakery.

AT THE mother's home Florence met Edward. What happened after that may best be summarized by quoting the statement made by Edward the day after his brother had killed himself:

"A few weeks after they were married we found out we loved one another. I went to Henry and told him so. He seemed miserable at the news, for he was deeply in love with his wife, although he and I both knew that she didn't care for him. I told him she wanted a divorce and wanted to marry me. Among the three of us we agreed to arrange the divorce. Henry said that he was willing and his wife could get the divorce on any grounds she wanted. Soon after that she left Henry and went to live by herself. It was then that Henry began his threats to commit suicide. On the morning of Friday, April 25, Henry met me with Florence on a downtown street and asked us if we were sure we loved each other. When we told him we were sure, he said, 'All right, I can do you more harm dead than alive.' When I asked him what he meant, he said, 'Just wait and see. You'll know tomorrow, maybe tonight.' Then he walked away and that was the last time I saw him alive."

Here the writing, which had been growing more unsteady and loosely formed, trailed off into an illegible scrawl.

THE next morning Henry Keller was found dead in a furnished room he had rented. After stuffing paper and clothing in all cracks around the window and the door, he had fashioned a funnel from a piece of newspaper, placed it over his mouth and nose, strapped it to his face with adhesive tape and then inserted a gas tube attached to a wall fixture. Mrs. Bertha Thompson, his landlady, said that he seemed happy that night, for she heard him singing in his room. He had told her he was going on a night shift the next day and didn't want to be disturbed next morning as he wanted to sleep late. Next morning, however, the odor of escaped gas was so strong that she and another roomer knocked on his door. Failing to get a response, they forced the door and found him seated on a chair, the upper part of his body resting on a table. He had been dead several hours.

The remarkable thing about his suicide was the fact that he had kept a careful record of his sensations while he was sitting at the table breathing in the fatal gas. As he was slowly dying of gas poisoning he wrote the following:

"It is now 11:15 p. m. I have finished my letters so I will read for about an hour or so until everyone in the house has retired.

"This would be a real opportunity for an essay on 'How It Feels to Sentence Oneself to Die,' but—who cares—it wouldn't matter a bit a hundred years from now. And then—so darned many suicides have an idea that the rest of the world is going to be interested in their theories on the 'Uselessness of Living' or the 'Fascination of Death'—horse feathers. They are interested in the prohibition question or the price of eggs in Golaple.

"I'm fixing a little apparatus on the gas line—good idea—I'll get the full strength of the gas and prevent the odor of it from permeating the house and bringing on discovery too soon.

"Incidentally, I was twenty-two years of age on September 1, 1929. I've lived in those twenty-two years. The age on my Marine Corps discharge is three years over. I had to lie about my age in order to get by.

"There's two perfectly good pies here that somebody might eat — Mrs. Wagner's best (not an advertisement).

"It is now 1:20 a. m.—All is quiet on the western front—all the drunks and night owls are in, so I'm off—no reprieve——

"Took my 'panacea' for all human ills. It won't be long now. I'll bet Florence and Ed are having uneasy dreams now. When the stuff starts to take effect I'll plaster my little funnel to my face.

"Ten minutes later—my head is hot. I'm perspiring and shaky—brain is still clear though—wonder who will add up the pies tomorrow.

"Still the same. 1:45—Hope I pass out by 2 a. m.

"Gee, I loved you so much, Florence. It's now 2:15. I feel very tired and a bit dizzy. I have the gas nozzle plastered on my face, but disconnected from the gas jet. It's quite uncomfortable, dammit. My brain is very clear. I can see that my hand is shaking—it is hard to die when one is young. How I wish oblivion would hurry——"

HERE the writing, which had been growing more unsteady and loosely formed, trailed off into an illegible scrawl. Oblivion apparently had put an end to the record.

On the table with the above account of his last hours were several letters he had written, a diary going back four years and a photograph of his wife, on which he had written, "To Florence, my wife: I present this picture of another woman, the girl I thought I married. May you always remember I loved you once, but die hating you. Wurra, wurra, wurra. Your recently deceased husband."

One of the letters, addressed to Bruce Harper, a writer, living in New York City, had the following facetious return address written on the back of the envelope: "From H. Keller, Ghost No. 12,785,496."

"Henry and I had formed a friendship some years ago," Harper later declared, "but until a week before his suicide I hadn't seen him for about three years, while he was in the Marines. About a week before he committed suicide he came to my hotel and told me that he was planning to kill himself the following Saturday. He told me all about his marital troubles. I talked to him for several hours, until long past midnight, and when he left I thought I had dissuaded him from his purpose.

"It was plainly a pathological case," said Harper. "Henry always dramatized himself in everything he did. That's probably why he joined the Marines and why he got a job four or five years ago in the play, 'The Student Prince,' where he had to wear a uniform. I think that also accounts for all the notes he left. His pride was bitterly wounded when his wife left him for his brother."

The fact that Henry was making a consciously dramatic gesture in taking his life is rather strongly indicated by the statements and phraseology of another note, addressed "To Whom It May Concern." In this note he wrote:

"I regret the inconvenience my death may cause to anyone (excepting my wife and brother) and sincerely apologize to the lady of the house (a gracious and likeable lady indeed) for making use of her premises in which to make my last appearance.

"If my wife can escape sole legal responsibility for my disposal I wish my body to be given to any medical organization that may care to accept it and to be used for any purpose."

HIS brother, Edward, when he learned of Henry's death, expressed regret, but made it plain that he thought Henry had rather over-acted his part.

"He didn't have to commit suicide," said Edward. "He knew for a long time that Florence didn't care for him and he even knew that before they were married. He had agreed to let Florence get a divorce so that she could marry me. It wasn't as if suicide was the only solution."

The widow was likewise plainspoken in showing that she didn't hold herself responsible for the tragedy.

"I did everything possible and I have no regrets. I married Henry out of sympathy and that was a mistake. He was mean to me in many petty ways and there were times when I thought he would have harmed me if we continued to live together. But I have no regrets, and Edward and I plan on being married as soon as possible."

Chicago's New Planetarium in Which One Can See the Heavens of 13,000 Years Ago and Those of 13,000 Years Hence in One Minute's Time.

CHICAGO.

FOR a long time boastful Chicagoans have asserted that Chicago had everything New York had except a subway and Grant's Tomb, and they usually went on to allege that Chicago's elaborate and far-flung elevated system more than compensated for its lack of a subway. Chicago's only real point of inferiority, therefore, was its lack of a nice tomb that would attract the down-state tourist trade. So when a mysterious-looking domed structure began to take form on the lake front beyond the Field Museum a few months ago it was facetiously suggested that Chicago was now in motion to wipe away New York's last margin of supremacy by building a new and better Grant's Tomb.

The thing did look like a tomb. The majority of Chicagoans and visitors who hadn't kept up with the news wondered what it really was when they saw it for the first time. They were told it was a planetarium, and the only planetarium in America. Most of them went away still wondering what it was. But they went with a feeling of genuine satisfaction that whatever a planetarium might be, Chicago had the only one in America.

They know more about planetariums now and have more and better reasons for being proud of their city's new possession. They have been flocking out there to the lake front by the hundreds since the structure was opened to the public on May 12. The taxicab drivers have caught on, too, and can take you there from any point in town without consulting their guide books. Teachers take their classes to witness the demonstrations which are given three times daily. And it is safe to say that classes or individuals who go with the vaguest conception of things astronomical come away, after a 50-minute demonstration, with more understanding of celestial phenomena than they might have gained in a year of hard work over their textbooks. Families go in groups. Young children are to be seen in numbers in any representative gathering. The Rotary Club has become "planetarium conscious," and all manner of other clubs, commercial, social and educational, schedule tours of the place and turn out in force. Even the uniformed guards about the building have caught the scientific spirit and talk both readily and accurately on such topics as spiral nebulae, constellations, comets, fixed stars, galaxies and Sir William Herschel's telescope. Indeed, it seems probable that never before was there devised a means of administering scientific knowledge in a form so agreeable and so digestible as that made possible by the planetarium.

THE dictionary and most encyclopedias will tell you that a planetarium is an arrangement for producing an artificial sky and projecting thereon the images of stars, planets, the sun and moon in their proper position with relation to the time of day, the time of year and the latitude from which they are observed. All of which is true enough. But the planetarium is more than that. To witness a demonstration is not merely to see motion pictures of stars and planets projected on the ceiling of a dome overhead and to be set straight on a few troublesome problems of planetary motion. It is an emotional experience as well.

It is the experience of spending a night on a vast plain—a night compressed into a minute or two—and beholding every star that is visible at any time to the naked eye. In another phase it is the illusion of a flight through space among myriads of whirling worlds. It is the experience of reducing days, seasons, years and even centuries to the space of minutes. The spectator looks into the future and sees the heavens of 13,000 years hence. He looks into the past and observes the unfamiliar skies of 13,000 years ago—the skies seen by our Cro-Magnon ancestors when they peeped out of their caves on a dark night.

Time doesn't count in this fourth-dimensional excursion. Mercury, the fleet messenger of the gods, goes racing around in his orbit before the eyes of the onlooker. The moon flashes by like a meteor, passing through all of its phases as it crosses the dome.

The speaker at the switchboard.

Even after a second or third viewing, the observer will still find himself gasping naively as if he were a passenger on Captain Stormfield's comet. From first to last it is an awe-inspiring spectacle. It causes the head to swim and perform antics like those of the planets. Some observers actually do suffer from dizziness, but this condition isn't necessarily due to awe or excessive intellectual activity. More likely it results from looking up at so many racing stars.

Probably the queerest thing about the whole business of reproducing the heavens on the interior of a dome is the conviction it inspires in the observer that he is looking at the real thing. He walks into the planetarium chamber in broad daylight and sees overhead a hemispherical vault of white linen. The dome is 70 feet across. In the center of the chamber is a grotesque apparatus on a wheel carriage. It suggests some of the weird mechanical contraptions illustrated on the covers of popular science magazines. Except for that mysterious piece of knobby machinery, though, the surroundings are commonplace enough. If he hasn't been through a demonstration before, the visitor thinks he's going to have a hard time imagining he is out of doors looking at a starfilled sky.

Then the lights go down. Twilight comes. There is a bit of pink on the western horizon. The white linen vault disappears. It becomes a darkening sky. Finally all is black. Already it is beginning to look real. Then the stars flash out in all their brilliance at once. The effect is amazing. Spectators lose their breaths. There is a chorus of "Ohs" and "Ahs." From that moment on the observer does not have to imagine he is out under the stars. It is only with difficulty that he can imagine he is indoors.

Chicago's planetarium is the gift of Max Adler, financier, philanthropist and former vice president of Sears, Roebuck & Company. It cost almost a million dollars. The instrument alone cost $90,000. It was built by Carl Zeiss, Incorporated, of Jena, Germany, world-famous manufacturers of astronomical and optical instruments. The building in which it is housed was erected at a cost of about $750,000. The site was furnished by the South Park Commission of Chicago. This site, admirable for the purpose, is a small island a short distance from the shore. A fill and a bridge now connect it with the mainland, so that the planetarium—it is called the Adler Planetarium and Astronomical Museum—forms a part of the group of public structures comprising also the Field Museum, the Shedd Aquarium and the Memorial Stadium. It is expected to be one of the great attractions of the Chicago Centennial World Fair in 1933.

Built of rainbow granite and Tennessee marble, the planetarium structure makes a handsome addition to the lake-front community and educational center. It is a rather unusual edifice, a 12-sided structure rising in three symmetrical tiers and surmounted by a copper-covered dome. The diameter of the building is 158 feet; that of the dome 85 feet outside and 70 feet inside. In the space around the central planetarium chamber are the exhibition halls, offices and lecture rooms. The exhibition halls house the Mensing collection of old scientific instruments, which gives the museum a rich background, and a great number of transparency photographs of the heavens as seen through a powerful telescope. The barrel of Sir William Herschel's telescope—the one with which he discovered the planet Uranus—is one of the interesting astronomical relics to be seen. Visitors waiting for a planetarium demonstration find the museum an interesting place in which to wait.

BUT visitors are always eager to get inside the dome. There is an air of expectancy as they crowd around the doors 10 minutes before time for an exhibition. Inside, as many as 600 can find seats ranging around the chamber, with the planetarium instrument in the center. At one side of the chamber is a desk equipped with an elaborate switchboard. On it are rows and rows of electric switches and buttons, by means of which the lecturer controls the intricate machinery of the projector instrument and speed up or retards the universe at will. Dr. Philip Fox, professor of astronomy at Northwestern University, is director of the planetarium and gives most of the lectures. Three demonstrations a day, with an extra every now and then, is too much for one lecturer, however, so part of the work falls to two assistants.

Around the chamber at a height of possibly 10 feet is seen what looks like a miniature horizon. One sees the Chicago skyline as viewed from the lake front. That, as will be understood later, is not mere decoration. In a few minutes, when the lights go down and twilight appears, it will be as real a horizon as would be seen on a cloudless evening from the top of this very building. On the west side many of the buildings of Chicago's lake front may be identified; on the east the horizon is blank, because in that direction one is looking across Lake Michigan. About two feet from the horizon line of the vault, the lecturer explains, the white linen merges imperceptibly with white sheet metal. The "pictures" of buildings one sees on the skyline are not painted on the metal, but are silhouettes cut out of metal. Thus, when the sun is shown to be setting, the light does not fall on a black picture of a building. The sun actually seems to be going down behind the building, because what seems to be a building is really the absence of curtain upon which the projected image of the sun may fall.

NO DRAMA of the stage is ever followed with more spellbound attention than is this drama of the heavens as presented by the planetarium. There is the whir of an electric motor and the projecting apparatus is in operation. The main part of it resembles a giant dumbbell balanced across an axis. One of the two large bulbs, or knobs, projects the heavens of the Northern Hemisphere. The other, when there is occasion to do so, can be swung into action to show the skies of the Southern Hemisphere instead. Usually the demonstration concerns itself only with the skies as seen from the latitude of Chicago, so only the northern end of the dumbbell is used. This end is swung above the axis, pointing skyward in the plane of the ecliptic, or, in other words, in the plane of the sun's apparent path across the sky. The bulb revolves slowly from east to west to project the images of the sun, moon, stars and planets moving across the sky from east to west as they appear to do in reality. The speed with which the images travel is governed by the speed with which the bulb rotates, and herein lies the secret of the planetarium's superiority over nature as a teacher of astronomy.

To watch the real moon or a real star pass entirely across the sky would, of course, require an entire night of watching. To watch the same phenomena in the planetarium requires only two minutes. And the apparatus can be speeded up to produce the spectacle in one minute, or even seven seconds.

The greatest moment of all in the course of a demonstration is that moment when, after twilight has passed, the whole firmament is flashed upon the darkened dome. If you are addicted to star gazing you see all the familiar constellations there, the star clusters, the milky way, the twinkling points of light and hazy patches here and there, just as you would see them on a clear night. You are not conscious of a reduced scale. The stars, although not quite so bright, seem even a bit larger than they appear in nature. The constellations stand out in their proper positions and proportions. There is Orion, rising in the east, the most magnificent group of stars in the heavens. Its most brilliant individuals, Betelgeuse and Rigel, are readily identified. Nearby is Aldebaran in Taurus. Following in Canis Major is Sirius, the brightest star in the entire heavens. Antares, red heart of Scorpio, is sinking in the southwest. The Great Dipper dominates the northern sky, and not far away is Cassiopeia, which looks like a giant "W." Side by side march Castor and Pollux.

Max Steindel

Solo 'Cellist of the St. Louis Symphon[y] Orchestra Started His Career As Musical [wo]nderkind At the Age of 7

A NEW FEATURE OF THE POST-DISPATCH SUNDAY MAGAZINE

The Steindel Quartet—Left to Right—Albin, Max, Albin Sr., and Bruno Steindel.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

"AT THE age of 5," said Max Steindel the other day, "I took up the profession I have followed ever since. Before that I just wasted my time."

But Max's idea of wasting time was influenced considerably by the nature of the Steindel household in those days. Everybody was musical, his father, his brothers and his whole ancestry for 300 years back, and everybody more or less worked at it. These compulsory vibrations being in the air, it was only natural that he should accept the array of musical instruments around his home at Stuttgart, Germany, as a part of the natural order of things.

When he could barely walk he picked out familiar tunes on the family piano. But there was already one pianist in the family, his brother Ferdinand, who had preceded him into the world by two years, so his father, Albin Steindel, quietly deflected him from that instrument and in the direction of the 'cello.

At this writing Max Steindel is 38 years of age, is the solo 'cellist of the St. Louis Symphony, solo 'cellist and manager of the Municipal Opera orchestra, head of the Steindel orchestra and presiding genius of a large violoncello class. The extent to which he has identified himself with the musical life of St. Louis may be judged from the variety of events that seems to enlist his aid and his interest.

The sight of Max Steindel in the throes of Schumann's concerto is a familiar one but he is not above throwing a band together and providing a few musical interludes for a world series ball game. And if the father of some musical prodigy wants to display the prodigy's talents before a knowing audience Max's presence is invariably sought.

In fact he is so thoroughly oriented with the local scene that the St. Louis public does not always realize that he had had an extensive career before he ever came here—a career that carried him into the principal cities of Europe, before authentic and literal crowned heads and before every kind of audience from coast to coast in the United States.

IN ORDER to present his story in its chronological order one must go back to Munchen-Gladbach in the Rhineland where Steindel was born. This town is just an important reference point in the Steindel family album and that's about all, for before Max had ever jammed a 'cello between his tiny legs the household had been moved to Stuttgart.

Here he studied the 'cello under his father, and at the age of five started playing ensemble with his father and his brother, Bruno, who afterward in America became known as Ferdinand, so as not to conflict with an uncle named Bruno Steindel, who had made a reputation in this country with the 'cello. The first public performance given by the Steindel trio was at a convent near Stuttgart.

"That was one of those occasions that I can remember as well as though it were yesterday," said Steindel. "One of the reasons I can remember it so well is because my lower lip got completely out of control and fluttered like a windmill when I started playing. They had no stage in that little hall so two tables were put together and I was hoisted upon them. They had to force me up there because I was so frightened. But they almost had to call out the police to get me down again, for after I recovered my composure I wanted to play all day."

THE Steindel Trio later went on tour, playing in many German cities, in Paris and in London. Max had reached the ripe old age of seven by then. In Paris the Steindel Trio—by special arrangement—gave a recital at the German Embassy. The Ambassador was Count von Munster and his guests comprised a roomful of dignitaries drawn from all nations. Among them was the Grand Duchess Vladimir of Russia, evidently a musician. It was this latter fact that impressed the infant 'cellist more than her noble connections, for during the progress of a trio by Mendelssohn he played two wrong notes which caused the Duchess to shake a warning finger at him. After the concert was over a large, benignant-looking gentleman of middle years, dressed in a dazzling uniform and wearing long black mustaches, walked over to Max and patted him on the head.

"Du spielst sehr schoen," he said, and walked on.

Max inquired his name.

"That," he was told, "is General von Hindenburg, the military attache at the embassy."

Of late years Steindel has often been struck by the realization that of the various high officials and royal personages he played before in his boyhood, Von Hindenburg is the only one who has survived both the passing years and the upheavals of war and politics with undiminished prestige. Among these were King Leopold of Belgium, Countess Olga of Russia, sister of the late Czar Nicholas; King Ferdinand of Rumania, King Wilhelm of Wurtemburg and President Emil Loubet of France.

Max was presented with a medal by Princess Louise of Battenberg, the present Queen of Spain, after a performance given by the Steindels at Darmstadt. At a Stuttgart concert Vater Albin Steindel was decorated by the King of Wurtemberg and given the title of Koenigliche Musikdirektor. When the Steindels were in London, Max's brother, Bruno—the pianistic wunderkind—was commanded to appear before Queen Victoria. After his performance the Queen showed her royal pleasure by asking young Steindel to sit on her knee.

Meanwhile Max was studying Theory, Orchestration and conducting under Professors Carl Hoffelich and Ernst Seiffert and another young Steindel, Albin Jr., had come along who played the violin. The Steindels were now a quartet consisting of violin, viola, played by Vater Steindel, violoncello and piano. They continued their appearances in Germany and other parts of Europe with steadily increasing prestige. But about the time that the Berliner Tageblatt was referring to the Steindels as "Eine Musikalische Wunderfamilie" and other important publications had compared the Steindels favorably with the Joachim quartet, all the young Steindels began to get restless for new worlds to conquer and for greater personal freedom. Father Albin was a musical leader without comparison to their minds but he was too strict with young men who had been publicly acknowledged as important artists.

"The last concert we gave in Europe," said Max, "was in an insane asylum at Winnenten. We planned an hour's program and played for nearly three hours. I don't know why. I guess the audience must have been crazy."

He came to America at the age of 16 and went straight to Chicago, where his uncle, Bruno, also an accomplished 'cellist, had been established for a number of years. Shortly afterward he went to Seattle at the invitation of Henry Hadley and became solo 'cellist of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra. He held that position for three years besides making a large number of individual appearances in various West Coast cities.

HE WAS then invited to join the St. Louis orchestra. He accepted that invitation and occupied the first 'cello desk here for two years under Max Zach. The outbreak of the European war had an upsetting effect on musical conditions everywhere and for a time it looked to Max as if the career of a serious musician would never be worth following again.

Under the influence of that pessimistic belief he joined his two brothers, Albin and Ferdinand, who were also in this country by then, and a new Steindel Trio was formed for the purpose of going into vaudeville. This ensemble toured the Keith circuit for two years. One of its important engagements was in Washington in 1916. The performance was attended by various personages high in diplomatic and governmental life. President Wilson sat on one side of the stage and the German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, sat on the other side. The air was so thick with impending calamity that for once the 'Cellist Steindel, who always regarded music as more important than anything else in the world, could hardly keep his mind on what he was doing.

The next year Steindel rejoined the St. Louis Symphony and has been a fixture here ever since. His incidental activities are so numerous that one wonders how he gets them all in. Besides his work with the symphony and the Municipal Opera orchestra and his teaching, he has a wide activity as a director of smaller groups. There is a Steindel Trio, a Steindel Quartet, a Steindel Quintette and a Steindel Orchestra, which makes appearances from time to time.

Max lives and pursues his career at 3810 Westminster place. The high ceilings of his rooms, their solid, comfortable appearance, the presence of a grand piano in one room, his Vuillaume 'cello and voluminous musical library in another and the shade trees glimpsed through the window give his quarters more the air of continental lodgings than an American apartment.

But Max is not bothered with nostalgia even though he takes note of many disturbing phenomena which beset the artist in practice in America. He would like to see this new civilization become one in which everyone knew the theory and history of music as a matter of course and—if his abilities permitted it—played an instrument.

Instead of that he beholds a world in which only a small minority have any interest in music, professionally

THE human mind is a conspicuously complex business—so obviously complex that a half-thinking person is aware of it without the knowledge being broadcast to him by a psychiatrist or any other medical man. Persons are continually classifying others—not people in institutions but the man who sits next to them in the office or the woman who lives next them in the apartment — as "nuts," "squirrels," "a little balmy," or "crazy as hoot owls." Sometimes we do it in semi-serious, semi-humorous fashion. We very seldom actually mean it. Sometimes it is our own "nuttiness" that is responsible for the classification. Sometimes we judge more rightly than we suspect. But wrong or right or jokingly, the layman distinctly or hazily is aware of the tremendous differences in his contemporaries' intellects, stupidities, or rationalities.

And that is about as far as the average layman's knowledge of the mind goes. The rest is pretty much ignorance, misinformation or misconception. That isn't to be wondered at. It isn't so very long ago that physicians began to learn something about the mind—to make real progress. And today, the mind specialists, the psychiatrists, still have much to discover.

One among them has realized the necessity of distributing some knowledge of the mind, its vagaries, its derailments, to the public, and has set about doing it. He is Dr. Karl A. Menninger, a young but well-established psychiatrist. He calls his book, appropriately, "The Human Mind" (Alfred A. Knopf). It is readable and understandable. It is interesting and instructive.

"When a trout rising to a fly gets hooked on a line and finds itself unable to swim about freely," writes Dr. Menninger, "it begins a fight which results in struggles and splashes and sometimes an escape. Often, of course, the situation is too tough for him.

"In the same way the human being struggles with his environment and with the hooks that catch him. Sometimes he masters his difficulties; sometimes they are too much for him. His struggles are all that the world sees and it usually misunderstands them. It is hard for a free fish to understand what is happening to a hooked one.

"SOONER or later, however, most of us get hooked. How much of a fight we have on our hands then depends on the hook, and, of course, on us. If the struggle gets too violent, if it throws us out of the water, if we run afoul of other strugglers, we become 'cases' in need of help and understanding.

"There are plenty of cases, God knows . . . When a man is promoted to a new job and it worries him so much that he has to quit it; when a woman gets married, finds herself unfitted for married life, and becomes depressed . . . then these people are mentally unhealthy; they are unable to adjust themselves to their environment. . . . Consider some more specific examples of hooked fish. Remember that you might not have thought them so. . . . But these are the sort of struggles that indicate to a psychiatrist a fish hooked and in peril. . . ."

For example: "Henry Clay is a clerk. . . . When he isn't clerking, which he does mechanically, accurately, satisfactorily, he is contemplating his imminent death. He regards himself as suffering from tuberculosis, diabetes, rheumatism, heart-trouble. . . . He had never been able to get married because he spends all his savings on doctors' bills and new remedies.

"Mrs. Watson is regarded by the women of her community as a brilliant, talented, charming woman. . . . Everyone assumes and believes she is a beautiful wife and mother. At home she nags the children, quarrels with her husband, mismanages her household, and points to her outside success as an indication that the fault is anyone's but hers."

"What is the matter with these people?" the psychiatrist asks. We skip a few pages in his book and go into "personalities."

"Personality, to take it up first as a whole, is possessed of an inherited nucleus, that is, we come into the world with certain physical and psychological possibilities. Just how much or how little this hereditary part is, no one really knows; all we are sure of is that it is less than we used to think. It is probably confined to physical structures, including brain patterns. Functional propensities are usually acquired rather than inherited. This includes such things as nervousness, indigestion, alcoholism, a sense of humor, temper tantrums and behavior patterns in general. . . . The monster Caligula, for example, was the son of Germanicus, who was a magnificent character; Germanicus was also the father of Agrippina, a despicable female, and the grandfather of Nero, whose reputation needs no citation. . . . The father of Augustine was a rascal, and the mother of Martin Luther used to whip him till the blood came. . . .

"Whatever we inherit is soon acted upon by a great variety of powerful influences. There are the teaching, training and example of the parents, and the reactions to brothers and sisters; there are climate and weather, the architecture of the home, the food, fashions; there is the influence of the school, church, newspapers, playmates, society in general. Economic laws and social laws are brought to bear and modify behavior patterns. Then come the accidents of life, physical and mental, the illnesses, the wounds, the griefs, the disappointments, the shocks of all kinds that come to all people. All of these mold the personality. All of these things go to make up a personality. . . .

"The situation is the thing with which the personality has to adjust itself. It is the particular phase of life presented at particular moments. It is a composite of requirements, a game with a set of rules. It is the game we must play in order to live. . . .

"So long as a personality is successful—that is, manages his adaptation to a succession of situations without damage to either himself or the environment—he probably won't attract any attention. . . . But let some extraordinary situation arise . . . then what happens to Mr. Brown? Let his house burn down, or let his daughter become ill . . . let him be thrown out of employment . . . let him be asked by the president to undertake a very difficult or responsible task. . . . He may have to change his situation somewhat and he may have to change himself somewhat. . . . He may manage the adjustment successfully. . . .

"He may, on the other hand, after more or less of a struggle, find the requirements imposed by the situation too great for his adjustment capacity. . . . There are two kinds of failure. Finding himself incapable of fulfilling the requirements of the situation . . . he may retreat from the situation or he may attempt its destruction. Ordinarily both flights and attacks are dangerous, the former resulting in damage to the personality, the latter in damage to the situation. But this is not always so. The necessity for retreat may be utilized in a constructive attack on the situation such that the failure is turned into success." That is called a constructive compromise. (See illustration.) It is really a secondary adjustment.

"CONSIDER, for example, a certain personality, let us say a man faced with a certain situation; namely, marriage. He may make a successful go of it. On the other hand, he may not; he may fail. This failure may be a flight into alcoholism. . . . Or he may resort to an attack on his wife such that she is driven to drink. . . . To illustrate the way in which a constructive compromise may be made out of the failure, he may be driven by his marital unhappiness to find satisfaction and self-expression in painting or scientific research or organizing a labor union or a Sunday school class. He may do all this without experiencing unhappiness, but he would experience unhappiness if it were not for the successful outcome he made of his secondary adjustment project."

The failing personality may make attacks on the situation with arrogance, independence, the smashing of convention, the refusal to abide by laws, and especially in children, temper tantrums. Or these personalities may take to flights, withdrawals from the situation, in the form of such "undesirable character traits" as timidity or suspicions, refusal to accept responsibility, flights into "disease, 'nervousness,' alcohol, drug addiction, suicide."

But not in all cases do the breaks come through a personality meeting a situation. Some kinds of mental weakness, "some kinds of feeblemindedness, are hereditary. That is transmissible by heredity from parents who may or may not show it themselves." And mental ills may come from congenital syphilis.

In this scientific age we—the laymen—are wont to roll medical terms off our tongues, sometimes with amazing inaccuracy. "Schizoid type" has not been seized upon particularly. But "dementia praecox"—the layman uses it with supreme nonchalance. "Reduced to its simplest terms, the common tendency of the members of (the schizoid) group is an inability to get along with other people. This is almost too much simplified, because it might be applied to all of us at times, and to many criminals and 'insane' all of the time. But this lack of sociability is of a very special kind. These people often appear to want very much (or think they do) to mix with the herd. But they never do—successfully, at any rate. They may make gestures, go through the motions, even become extremists in social maneuvers, but 'the pane of glass is always there.' They never really make contacts. . . .

"They're called 'schizoid,'" says Dr. Menninger. "It is a word derived from the same Greek stem that gave us 'scissors.' It means split, or broken. The implication is that the queerness of these folks represents a break or split in the internal harmony of the personality, so that an external disharmony also results and the schizoid person is noticeably out of tune with the rest of the world.

"This is because these personalities are afflicted with a curious split, a duality, a 'surface and a depth,' as Kretschmer says. They are 'like Roman houses and villas, which have closed their shutters before the rays of the burning sun; perhaps in the subdued interior light, there are festivities.'"

Among the Schizoid types, Dr. Menninger tells us, are "Calvin and Kant, Schiller and Rousseau, Erasmus and Spinoza, Whistler and Goldsmith, Wagner and Chopin, Robespierre and George Washington, Dickie Loeb and Jesse James, George the Third and Judas Iscariot, Edward Hickman and a certain querulous Congressman whom I am afraid to name, not to mention about 120,000 of the patients resident in state hospitals of the country with a diagnosis of 'dementia praecox.' They all 'belong.' . . .

"A SHY girl, pious, gentle, lamb-like, serves with satisfaction in a country home for years. One morning the three children of the house lie murdered. The house is in flames. She has not lost her senses, she understands everything, she smiles uncertainly when she realizes her act.

"'A young man dreams away the lovely days of his youth. He is so clumsy and loutish that one could shake him. If he is put upon a horse he falls off. He smiles in an embarrassed way, rather ironically; he says nothing. One day there appears a volume of poetry that he has written; exquisite feeling for nature, beautiful diction. Every blow that some fat lout has given him as he passed by is molded into an inner tragedy; the polished rhythms flow on full or quiet.' . . .

"One word (other than 'unsociable') describes them—but it's a shifty word, variously understood by various people. That word is 'queer.' No, we are not all queer—that is, not very. We all have queerness, we are all a little unsocial, a little inclined to prefer our own company, a little seclusive and envious and eccentric and all the rest of it. But most of us are much more largely dominated by our social instincts. These queer people who decline to associate with us are not just queer, not just afflicted with a little queerness, such as ours; they are really queer. . . .

"Some schizoid personalities succeed because of their schizoid traits, others in spite of them. . . . The scientist himself may be an example. . . . Again, some schizoids who would otherwise fail avert disaster by the grace of fortuitous or deliberate advantages in the selection of environment. . . . For most of the walks of life schizoid traits in abundance are a great disadvantage. . . . So great is his preference for himself that the schizoid often turns inside out, psychologically speaking. . . . In other words, under certain conditions of strain, schizoid personalities are wont to break down, to 'go crazy' in certain typical directions."

The fact that a person is of the schizoid type does not mean he has gotten to the extreme of schizophrenia. Schizophrenia, "formerly called dementia praecox," results when the break comes, if it does come.

"HOW much of the schizoid personality makeup is due to faulty home training and how much to inherited constitutional makeup, and how much to accidents in childhood, psychiatrists are not all agreed. Much points to the inheritance of an inborn schizoid constitution. . . . It is probable, however, that to a considerable extent it is determined by the attitude and technique of the parents during the formative years of life. The child who is overprotected by its parents, either because of illness or imagined illness, or because of neurotic tendencies on the part of the mother, is very apt to grow up with seclusiveness and other schizoid traits. Such a child never gets enough experience with the encounters of social existence to know how to deal with them except by flight.

"Other seclusive children are probably made so by a different sort of failure on the part of the parents. Some parents frighten or bulldoze or shame their children into seclusiveness. Anything which stimulates a child's sense of inferiority beyond the reach of education ordinarily received is bound to produce unfavorable reactions. The isolation type of personality is one such reaction, the schizoid is another. The latter is the reaction of flight, pulling into one's shell like the snail."

The author talks on melancholia. It is, to a great extent, the layman's idea that when a person suffering from melancholia kills himself he has just about come to the end of his mental rope, his mind is forever completely gone, and, "after all, he's better off." All of which is grossly inaccurate, according to Dr. Menninger's book.

"All depressed people are potential suicides," he declares. "The responsibility is with relatives and friends. Many of the suicides ascribed in the newspapers to financial worry, disappointment, etc., are undoubted cases of melancholia; they would probably have recovered and gone on to useful lives had their conditions been recognized and the proper steps taken by their friends and relatives! . . .

Everything From Mail and Passengers to Cargoes of Dynamite Is Carried by the Flyers Who Take Off From Whitehorse.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Staff

CARRYING 800 pounds of dynamite, an airplane circled above a little lake in the mountains of Yukon Territory while the pilot planned how to land without a smash that would blow the ship and its passengers to Kingdom Come. The lake was too small and deep-set within its border of pine trees to permit a long, low glide that would settle the pontoons softly on the water. The thin atmosphere of that height added to the difficulty of a steep descent.

The prospector for whose mine the dynamite had been brought from Stewart, British Columbia, was the only one of the three men in the plane who didn't realize the danger. It was his first air trip and he was enjoying it. The two who were not enjoying the experience were John M. Patterson of Denver, Colorado, the pilot, and Gordon K. Stewart, his assistant on the trip, who was sitting on the dynamite.

Finally, the ship came down, but not head-on. It slipped sideways over the barrier of trees, almost brushing their tops, then leveled off when it had nearly reached the water, skipped ahead along the surface, and managed to stop before it ran against the shore. The explosive was unloaded. Then came the job of getting the plane in the air again in the small space. It taxied around the edge of the lake until it developed enough speed to get off the water and then continued to fly round and round within that circle of pines at 80 miles an hour, rising slowly and laboriously, until at last it was high enough to escape interference, and slanted off toward home—bidding that cup of water not an au revoir but a definite good-by.

Such incidents save from dullness the working days of the Yukon Airways & Exploration Co., Ltd., which has its base at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory. The cold of the winters, the frequent high winds and the isolation of the region in which it operates invest its work with special hazards. Two of the company's planes were wrecked last fall, shortly after the trip with the dynamite cargo, and in one of the smash-ups Pilot Patterson was killed. Stewart, who is business manager and relief pilot of the concern, came to St. Louis recently to get a Ryan monoplane to replace one of the lost ships.

During two periods of the year—when the country is freezing up for the winter and when it is thawing out in the spring—the Yukon Airways carries the mail from Whitehorse to Mayo and Dawson. Land transportation from Whitehorse, the northern terminus of a railroad, is abandoned at those times, according to Stewart. The company's planes make the trip twice a week, with mail which bears a stamp good only for that route. The Yukon Airways is authorized to print and sell these special stamps, which differ in design from the regular Government air mail stamps. The company has been getting 25 cents a letter for this delivery, but Stewart said the charge was to be reduced.

When winter has set in and snow is deep on the ground, the mail in this region is carried in a tractor stage, which makes the trip in from eight to ten days. Airplanes cover the route in from one and one-half to three and one-half hours.

Among the other activities of this far-northern air service is the transportation of passengers traveling on pleasure or business and of supplies to the numerous mines in the region. During the winter quantities of vegetables are carried by air from Whitehorse to towns which are not on a railroad.

Only the severest weather keeps the planes of Yukon Airways on the ground. If the cold is less than 40 degrees below zero they will brave it, and usually find the temperature a little warmer aloft—sometimes as much as 10 degrees. For winter use the ships have skiis on their landing gear; at other times they use wheels or pontoons.

Summer, of course, is the best time for flying in the Yukon country, Stewart said. For one thing, it never gets completely dark during much of that season; the sun goes down about 10 p. m. or later in midsummer, and twilight prevails until about 2 a. m., when the sun rises. Conversely, in midwinter, the sun sets about 3 in the afternoon, and it is dark half an hour later.

One of the economic problems of commercial aviation in the remote North is the price of gasoline. Stewart said his company paid an average of $1 a gallon. And then strained it very carefully through chamois to make it as free as possible from water, the presence of which in the fuel is particularly dangerous in very cold weather.

The Yukon Airways & Exploration Co., Ltd., was organized about three years ago, many of the residents of the region it serves being stockholders. W. A. Puckett is president, and J. F. Finnegan, the organizer, is vice president. The chief pilot is B. W. Broatch of Winnipeg, Man., who, Stewart said, probably was the oldest commercial flyer in Canada. He was a member of the British Naval Air Service in the World War and last winter took part in the search for Carl Ben Eielson, who was killed when his plane was wrecked near Cape North, Siberia.

"CAT EYE ANNIE'S" LATEST ESCAPE from PRISON

The Career of a Notorious Woman Criminal Who Was First Arrested in St. Louis.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Staff

WHEN "Cat Eye Annie" broke out of prison at Auburn, N. Y., the other day, the news was of more than passing interest in most of the principal cities of the United States. And police departments must have felt relieved at word of her re-capture after a few hours of freedom.

For "Cat Eye Annie," now 48 years old, is widely and unfavorably known. She has exercised her talent for larceny from California to New York, and it is estimated that her jewelry thefts total $250,000.

St. Louis is one of the cities where the touch of her light fingers has been felt. An indictment stands against her here and a detainer is on file at the prison at Auburn, New York, for her return to St. Louis on completion of her term there. It was in St. Louis, too, that her first arrest on record was made, as a result of which she first served time.

Lillian McDowell—that seems to be "Cat Eye's" name in private life; in her professional activities she has used any name that served her purpose—had been engaged in her particular line of thievery for several years before she fell into the hands of the law. She followed a scheme that worked well. She would go to a city, stop at a good hotel and advertise for a housemaid. From the applicants she would obtain the names of people for whom they had worked. Then she would answer an advertisement for a maid and use the name of one who had applied to her and her references to get the job. After a few days' work, the new domestic would collect her employer's jewelry and depart without notice.

ON DECEMBER 23, 1910, the St. Louis police closed in on the woman whom private detectives had been chasing for four years. Acting on information that she would call at the Postoffice for mail, Detectives Joyce and Lardner watched for her there. She appeared, stopped at a mail window and left the building. The detectives followed, hoping she would lead them to her temporary home, where stolen valuables might be recovered. But she began to tour the downtown stores, and it was with some difficulty that the detectives kept her in sight as she mingled with the crowds of Christmas shoppers. Joyce (now a lieutenant and head of the Bureau of Identification) recalls that she wore a white aigrette on her hat, and he kept his eyes on that as it bobbed along.

Finally, in one of the department stores, the quarry started to enter the women's rest room. Fearing that she had discovered she was followed and would leave the room by another exit, Joyce arrested her.

When her Bertillon record was taken, note was made of her peculiar left eye, which inspired her nickname. Her eyes were slate-blue, but in her left one, a bar of golden brown extended down from the iris across the white.

There was nothing remarkable about her appearance otherwise. She was about 5 feet 5 inches tall, of medium build, rather rubicund complexion. Her hair was black, but over it was pinned a mass of brown hair.

The woman refused to make any admissions, but she was accused of three robberies in St. Louis. One took place at the home of Mrs. Henry B. Collins, 14 Hortense place, in 1905, when $3000 worth of jewelry was stolen. Another was the theft of $2000 worth of jewelry from the home of Mrs. Joseph M. Hayes, 4389 Lindell boulevard, in 1906. A third was a $6000 robbery at the home of H. Chouteau Dyer, 9 Lenox place, in 1907. In all these cases, a servant girl identified as the prisoner left the employ of these families when their jewelry disappeared.

Rogues' Gallery photographs of "Cat Eye Annie" made in St. Louis.

But Lillian escaped conviction. In the Collins case it was because of the statute of limitations. In the Dyer case she was acquitted, the evidence against her being circumstantial and the identification, in the minds of the jurors, not such as to remove all doubt. After two juries had disagreed in the Hayes case, in which the evidence for the prosecution also was circumstantial, as none of the loot was definitely traced to the accused woman, it was nolle prossed. Lillian squinted her cat eye and laughed. She had been thwarted in six suicide attempts while in jail here.

ACQUITTED, Lillian still was not free. She was taken to Chicago to stand trial for robbing a home there of jewelry valued at $3250 by her usual method. A handbag found in her possession when she was arrested in St. Louis was identified as one stolen in the Chicago robbery, and Lillian was convicted and sent to the penitentiary at Joliet, Ill. That was in April, 1911.

Evidently the Illinois imprisonment was not a long one, for in 1913 Lillian was in trouble again and sentenced to prison in Ohio. In 1917 she was out again and suspected of stealing $11,000 worth of jewelry from a residence in Woodside, California. From time to time came reports of her activities from other cities—Minneapolis, Boston, Baltimore.

Early in 1922, Lillian returned to St. Louis, according to charges pending against her. On February 13 a woman

WHY CLARA SANG

By Dorothy Walworth Carman

The accompanist struck a few opening chords, and looked anxiously at Clara.

CLARA PIERCE, a comfortable, middle-aged figure in a black silk dress and a violet hat, stood up to sing a soprano solo. The Northville Music Club was holding its March meeting at the home of Mrs. Pudney Stevens. There were 25 ladies gathered in the little parlor with the pretty, pin-striped wall paper, flowered carpet and walnut grand piano. Back in the bay window by the fern sat young Mrs. Leroy Bruce, who had moved to town only last September. She looked with intense disfavor upon Clara Pierce, who was rustling her sheet of music and smiling genially at her audience.

The accompanist struck a few opening chords, looked anxiously at Clara, and the solo began. Mrs. Bruce stiffened in her chair. It was a long solo, with many trills and quavers. Clara meant well, but her voice broke on the high notes and grew harsh on the low ones. Elaine Bruce wondered why in the world she was asked to sing at every meeting. And she was nearly always encored, too. There was certainly some mystery about it. The women of Northville were women of taste. They must know that Clara's voice was atrocious.

There was hearty applause as the solo ended on high C. A deep flush of pleasure spread over the face under her violet hat. She walked modestly to her chair, but the applause was insistent, and she went up to the front again, giving another sheet of music to the accompanist. She was radiant. It was beautiful to see how happy she was and how anxious to please. But Elaine Bruce only braced herself for the ordeal. This song was "Absence," with the refrain, "Thinking I See Thee, Thinking I Hear Thee Call." Some of the women had tears in their eyes when Clara came to the refrain. Mrs. Pudney Stevens' lip trembled. The minister's wife had her handkerchief to her eyes. She had lost her little boy only a year ago. Perhaps she did not hear the rash, loud notes. Elaine wondered, uneasily, whatever affected the woman so.

CLARA'S solo concluded the afternoon's program. The president rose and said she hoped every member would make a special effort to attend the April meeting, because the annual June Guest Day Committee was to be elected. Guest day was the annual climax of the club year. Delegates from the neighboring musical societies came to visit. There was the Euterpe from Watertown, the Cecilia from Gainsborough, the Apollo, the Harp and Lyre and the Minstrels, all from surrounding villages. Of course the Northville branch wanted to make a fine showing. They always hired the town hall, stripped their rose arbors and their gardens for decorations, presented their best program and served abundant refreshments afterward. The fame of Northville cake and strawberry ice cream, as well as Northville music, had spread over two counties.

The Judge's wife had been chairman of the committee for several years, with great success, but she had refused to be a candidate this season, saying it was too much for her nerves. The decorations and refreshments were bad enough, she said. But still worse were the heart-burnings over who should be on the program. Obviously, not every member could take part. The committee had to pick and choose. Those left out were apt to accuse the committee of favoritism and say the performers were selected on account of their money or fine homes. It was a strain on a chairman to be accused of that.

With such important business on hand, no wonder the April meeting at Mrs. Twomley's house was crowded. Almost every member was present. The secretary and treasurer hurried their reports, conscious that no one was paying them any attention. Old business was disposed of in a few sentences. Then the president, under the banner of new business, announced that nominations for chairman of the Guest Day Committee were in order. There was a moment's flurried silence.

"I nominate Mrs. Pudney Stevens," somebody said.

"I second the nomination."

A gratified murmur ran all along the rows of chairs.

"I nominate Mrs. Leroy Bruce," came another voice.

Several other candidates were put forward, but all the ladies knew the race was between Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Bruce. Their prospects had been discussed for weeks. Martha Stevens was a good choice, because she was both wise and amiable, especially amiable. She had lent her two majolica bowls full of yellow tea roses for the decorations last year and been very gracious when the bowls were broken. Everyone remembered how she had smiled bravely, and said it didn't matter. But Elaine Bruce was a good choice, too. She had a lot of original ideas, just newly-moved to town the way she was. Her defenders talked about "young blood" and a "fresh viewpoint." Moreover, her piano playing had been an honor to the club in the county winter festival. There were rumors that she could have gone on the concert stage, only a husband and a baby had seemed to her better than any career.

A WRITTEN ballot was taken, so that nobody's feelings would be hurt, and Elaine won by five votes. She made an earnest, grateful little speech that everybody liked. People always "took to" Elaine. She was so sweet and eager. After the meeting she appointed her committee of three — Mrs. Stevens, her defeated rival; Miss Hodges, the librarian, and Mrs. Twomley, an old, keen hand at club work. She asked them to meet at her house the first of May. They agreed it would be none too early for plans. There was no sense of leaving everything till the last minute.

On the afternoon the committee met, Elaine built a fire on the hearth, as it was cool for May. She went zealously about with her dust cloth until there was not a speck on her tables or chairs. Her piano shone with rubbing. She kept her housekeeping up to a high standard, because she was a young person of no compromise. Her blue curtains hung precise and fresh-ironed. A cherry-wood clock ticked pleasantly on a high, neat shelf. There was a sleek canary in a brass cage, pecking at a lump of sugar. The committee thought it looked very cozy when they came in.

They laughed and chatted, as they took off their wraps, but Elaine was serious. She took her new responsibility very gravely. It was her first experience as chairman of anything, and she had flung herself into the office with all the solemn ardor of a born idealist. She longed most of all for guest day to be an expression of real music, not just Northville showing off to the county. Those who were on the program should not be like children doing tricks before an audience. They should think only of beauty and perfection. For instance, when Henrietta Jones played the harp she should not have her mind on trying to outdo the harpist from Watertown. Elaine felt very stern and uncompromising in this regard. She had a deep respect for music, born of long hours of practice at the piano. She could not bear to see it treated lightly, or spoiled. Ever since her election she had been planning to keep undesirable elements off this year's program. Even when she got up at night to warm Teddy's bottle she thought of guest day. Standing there by the gas stove, waiting for the water to boil, she vowed to make the occasion what it should be.

The committee sat down by the fireplace and took out their sewing. Large Mrs. Stevens was knitting a sweater. Frail Miss Hodges, the librarian, was embroidering blue roses on a luncheon set. And active Mrs. Twomley was darning stockings. Elaine was far too nervous for sewing. She had pad and pencil on a little table before her. She fervently hoped Teddy would stay upstairs.

"We—we're here to discuss June guest day," she began timidly.

Martha Stevens looked at the chairman benignantly over her spectacles. She had once been young and thin and intense herself. Now she was apt to live and let live.

"WE WANT to make it the very best afternoon yet," Elaine went on, gathering courage. "We want our program to be real art. Every member ought to work over her part until she has it perfect."

"That's just it," Mary Hodges said, "the artist's attitude."

"It will be a musical treat," Mrs. Stevens observed, in her low, pleasant voice. "We have plenty of members who are fine musicians. Annabel Clark could get big money for her violin playing anywhere else."

"It's a pity she doesn't dress better when she plays," Mary Hodges mourned. "That old, spotted blue taffeta!"

"She has no stage presence at all!" Mrs. Twomley snapped. "Some of the ladies were fairly ashamed of her last year!"

"I guess they forgot her taffeta when she started to play," Mrs. Stevens said equably. "She takes the heart out of you."

"That's what we must think of!" Elaine broke in eagerly. "We must think of people's music and nothing else! Not how they dress —or how they act—or who their husbands are—or how much money they've given to the club!"

"There must be no favoritism, absolutely no favoritism," Mary Hodges said, unwinding a skein of blue silk.

"Well, whom will we have?" Mrs. Twomley asked. She was always tart and practical.

Elaine took the pad and pencil in her lap. "We'll have Annabel Clark," she said, "and Henrietta Jones for harp, and"—— "Clara Pierce, of course," Mrs. Stevens murmured.

"OH, YES, dear Clara Pierce!" Mary Hodges agreed. She looked up from her blue roses and nodded at Mrs. Twomley and Mrs. Stevens.

"I expect she'll sing two numbers," Mrs. Twomley said, in a matter-of-fact tone.

Elaine felt herself grow cold with fright as her committee nodded. She swallowed hard and determined to be brave. Clara Pierce would be the ruin of any artistic program. Elaine vowed she would sing only over her dead body.

"But Miss Pierce has sung at every meeting this year," she remonstrated. "Wouldn't it be better to give someone else a chance?"

"We couldn't leave Clara out," Mrs. Twomley said, with an air of finality.

"Not Clara," the others chorused.

"Frankly, I don't care for her singing," Elaine said valiantly. "Her voice seems harsh to me, very harsh."

The committee exchanged anxious, bewildered glances.

"It doesn't seem harsh to me," Mrs. Stevens said.

"Clara isn't a grand opera singer," Mrs. Twomley explained, "but she sang in the Methodist choir for 15 years. Of course, she's a little old now, but my! how the women enjoy her!"

"Clara loves to sing so much," Martha Stevens pleaded. "It's her big pleasure. She hasn't so many joys in this life, you know."

Mary Hodges put down her blue roses. Her eyes were wistful. "I don't believe there's been a death or a marriage in this town for 25 years that Clara hasn't managed," she said.

"When you get sick, Clara comes as fast as the doctor does," Martha Stevens said. "I declare —I always sort of associate sickness with her dear, good face and her strawberry jam."

"Remember when she sat up with the minister's wife for three nights after her boy died?" Mrs. Twomley asked, holding a stocking at arm's length. "I can see her now, making soup on the minister's stove, in that old gray wrapper she always wears at night."

"BUT don't you see?" Elaine interrupted passionately. "We don't want to think of anything but music for guest day! We mustn't think whether a person is kind-hearted or not. We ought to choose those who can do best, and only those. It's music we're after."

"Her voice doesn't seem harsh to me," Mrs. Stevens repeated, shaking her head doubtfully.

"I don't believe we really hear Clara when she sings," Mary Hodges murmured. "We just remember."

Elaine finally won, after a struggle. Peaceful Mrs. Stevens gave in because she detested a long argument and the cherry-wood clock pointed to almost supper time. Mary Hodges yielded because the ideal of music for music's sake appealed to her romantic side. And Mrs. Twomley did not think, from past experience, it was wise to thwart a chairman in a pet idea. The only stipulation the committee made was that Mrs. Bruce should break the news to Clara. They stood firm in this respect. Clara had been on the guest day program for the last 10 years and explanations were due her. Mrs. Bruce could use some tactful expression like "trying new talent this year." It would be a simple thing for her to do, because Clara was her next-door neighbor. She could drop in any time.

Although Clara lived right next door, it was a week before Elaine went over to break the news. She kept putting the visit off, although she told herself firmly that she was in the right. But on Thursday afternoon there seemed to be no excuse for not going. Teddy was gurgling in his carriage in the yard. He did not need his mother just now. She broke some of the choicest blossoms off her red hawthorn bush to take over. Clara did not have a hawthorn bush and was always admiring the thick, crimson blossoms.

"My dear Mrs. Bruce!" she exclaimed, when she saw Elaine at her door. "Do come right in! To think you brought me those lovely flowers! I'll put 'em right in water. I believe you've got the kindest heart in the world."

She bustled out into her kitchen and returned presently, with the red hawthorn in a jar. Then she sat down in a rocking chair with a hassock, facing her guest. Her eyes beamed behind her spectacles.

"I was just wishing you'd drop in," she said. "I want to hear what you planned for guest day."

Elaine knew there was no use in delaying. She must get her duty done, as gently as she could.

"We want this guest day to be perfect," she began.

"'Course you do," Clara agreed, rocking vigorously. "We'll show the Cecilias and Apollos what Northville can do."

"It isn't only that. We hope the afternoon will be really fine—musically. We who love music"—

Clara stopped rocking and her eyes went grave behind her spectacles.

"Don't I know?" she said. "Many's the time music has held me up. There couldn't nobody love it more'n I do. I often say the Lord gave me neither chick nor child, but He gave me my voice. It's been a real comfort."

Elaine felt a wrench of sympathy, but she told herself sternly that she must not let personal feelings carry her away. "We — we're trying to have some new talent on our program this year," she said.

Clara looked puzzled. "New talent? There hasn't nobody new moved to town, except you. The rest of the club is the same folks."

"I MEAN—we're going to give some different people a chance on the program—for a change."

"I hope you don't mean to leave Annabel Clark out," Clara said anxiously. "There was some talk last year about her old taffeta, but I said what did her dress matter, when she could make the violin go like that."

Clara continued to be worried until Elaine reassured her about Annabel. Then she looked down at the hassock, coughed, hesitated, and finally put her hand impulsively on the arm of Elaine's chair.

"I want to ask your opinion, Mrs. Bruce. I've always admired your taste in clothes. Do you honestly think my violet hat is good enough for guest day, or should I get a new one? I want to be a credit to the club when I stand on the platform."

"I think the hat you have is very becoming," Elaine said faintly.

Clara leaned back in her chair, at peace. "I thought it was plenty good enough," she said, "but that nosey milliner downtown was telling me I owed it to myself to get a new one. Perhaps I'll freshen up the violets a little."

Elaine resolved not to be a coward. She must meet the test. A person with ideals must be stanch, though it hurt. After all, music was music.

"But, Miss Pierce, you—you've been on the program so many times this year. We—we thought you wouldn't mind letting somebody else sing in your place."

Clara took it beautifully, so beautifully that Elaine felt more brutal every moment. Clara said, "Of course, I understand. Nobody should be selfish."

SHE joked feebly about her saying she wouldn't need to bother with it now. She put Elaine tea, and peppermints and little almond cakes, and scrolled sandwiches, all served on a three-tier muffin stand. She kept talking brightly about the lovely red hawthorn. She said the old folks used to call it "bleeding heart."

The committee and its chairman were very busy the next month. Invitations must be designed, addressed and mailed. The local music-store dealer must be cajoled and treated to lend his grand piano. The dry-goods man would donate the platform chairs. Mrs. Twomley saw to the hall being kalsomined and cleaned. Miss Hodges and Martha Stevens made out long lists of those who would furnish decorations and refreshments. Somebody telephoned Elaine to ask if she could make a gold-and-silver cake this year instead of a jelly roll. Another wanted to know if two dozen red spongedrops were equal to a cocoanut layer. Still another demanded to be informed why she was famous for her apple ribbons. The janitor of the town hall said he would not sweep up afterward unless he were paid extra. There was an unexpected hitch in regard to plates and spoons, and the usual tussle over paper versus linen napkins. Some of the Cecilia Club from Gainsborough wanted to spend the night in Northville and inquired about accommodations. The reporter of the local paper requested a full account of the affair beforehand. Elaine's doorbell rang all day long, so it seemed. And, to cap the climax, her husband went away on a month's business trip, leaving her alone with the house and Teddy and the garden.

Guest day was set for June 16. On the evening of Decoration day Elaine went out into her yard to see if any ramblers were in bud. Because of a cold May, all the flowers were backward, and the committee was wondering whether they would do if no roses opened in June. It would be a shame if there were no roses on the platform. Elaine looked carefully at her rambler buds and decided they would be ready by the tenth, given sunshine. She loitered about the yard in the yellow evening light that darkened to blue, uprooting a stray weed here and there in the flower beds. She could hear Clara's garden shears snipping behind the hedge, a comfortable sound. Then she went into the house and saw that all the doors and windows were safely locked, because she always felt uneasy when her husband was away. She was glad there was a moon rising benignly over the black, curled plumes of the Northville trees. A moon seemed friendly. As she put out her bedroom light she looked over at her neighbor's house, a low, gabled shadow under the larches. Clara usually went to bed early.

IT WAS the last time she ever contemplated that roof, undisturbed. The next morning, right after breakfast, she saw the doctor's car stop in front of Clara's house and Dr. Bell go inside with his little black bag. In Northville the doctor's car before a house was a signal for immediate neighbors to gather at the gate. Elaine, who still had her city reserves about her, did not go to Clara's gate, but saw the others gather, one by one. Evidently the whole street considered themselves neighbors. They came from as far as nine doors down. One or two carried babies they could not leave behind. By the time Dr. Bell emerged there were at least a dozen waiting for him, all in their gingham aprons because they had left their breakfast dishes. That in itself was a tribute to Clara. woman from her dishes.
Elaine watched them cluster round the doctor, all anxiety, their faces sharp and serious. They shook their heads. A few went homeward, slowly, thoughtfully.
The rest, except Martha Stevens, went into Clara's house in a body.
Martha Stevens, who lived five doors away, came toward Elaine's and Elaine went to the front door to let her in. Mrs. Stevens looked very different from her usual rosy, placid self. She trundled up the front path with a troubled step.
"I want to use your telephone," she said, without preamble. "I want to tell Mary Hodges. My phone's out of order. Might know it would be such a time as this."
Martha was in no mood for the usual amenities. "Good morning" and "How are you?" were nothing to her. She seemed to brush Elaine aside and make a dive for the telephone by the stairs. She sat down heavily on the little telephone chair. She talked a long time. Elaine could hear Mary Hodges' exclamations at the other end of the wire.
"Yes, she cut her finger last evening on the garden shears," Martha said over and over. "She woke up in the night, and it pained her. Dr. Bell says it's infected. He acted mighty glum."
Mrs. Stevens hung up the receiver with a sigh. She slumped down in the chair with such an attitude of real grief that Elaine was startled. Here was no conventional sympathy. This was sorrow.
"If there's anything I can do"— Elaine began.
"Mary Hodges says she'll be right over," Martha said, as though Elaine had not spoken.
"She's going to shut up the library for the day. Those who want to read have got to wait till tomorrow. What's reading? Clara's real sick.
"If Clara don't get better right off, we'll have to postpone the guest day," Martha went on. "We couldn't hold it with Clara at death's door. Nobody would have the heart. And if she dies"——

MARTHA STEVENS broke down at this point and wept into her large handkerchief, unabashed.
"She won't die," Elaine ventured, trying to be a comfort.
"It's the saints who are taken," Martha mourned. "You don't know what she's done for this town. You've just moved here.
You don't understand. Northville wouldn't be Northville without her."
Mrs. Stevens dried her eyes.
"It's something to be loved in a town," she said, as she wiped her spectacles. "I've always said that the angels of the Lord who daily see the face of Our Father wear gray woolen wrappers, like Clara."

She went heavily down the front steps, while Elaine stood in the doorway. "Good-by" was not in Martha's vocabulary just now.
When she reached Clara's gate she was joined by the sparrowlike Mary Hodges and the two friends went inside the house together.
Elaine felt suddenly very much shut out. All day long people went in and out of Clara's house.
Every time Elaine looked out of her window, she saw them coming and going. She stopped counting the covered dishes and the flowers. But what impressed her more than the dishes or the flowers was the faces. These did not wear that dutiful, kindly look which good-hearted people sometimes assume in case of sickness. They looked stricken. Elaine had not dreamed they cared so much.
Dr. Bell's car stopped three times. After each call somebody wanted to use Elaine's telephone to broadcast the latest bulletin.
Clara's condition stayed about the same. If they could keep the infection from spreading, they would save her.
All that night Northville kept watch. Elaine could not go to bed. She sat huddled in a chair at her bedroom window, where she could see. Every room in Clara's house was lighted, figures passing behind the drawn shades.
Elaine had her own downstairs lighted as a sign she was awake in case anyone wanted to telephone. That instrument seemed to be the only contribution she could make to the occasion. Nobody paid any attention to her except for that. She was young. She had just moved to town. She didn't know. Though she was chairman of the Guest Day Committee, she was only a stranger within their gates, after all. Clara was sick!
Sitting at the bedroom window thinking of these things, Elaine felt very humble, very unprofitable. She wondered how she had ever dared to suggest that Clara be kept off the program in the face of all this sentiment. She asked herself, very humbly, who she was to stem this tide, to take away from Clara's reward. Who was she, a stranger within the gates, to meddle with a Northville institution? She felt abashed. She was a fool who had rushed in.
At breakfast, Elaine decided there was one contribution she could make that was not her telephone. And as soon as she had done with her muffins, she went next door to make it. A very weary Martha Stevens let her in.
She said Dr. Bell felt that Clara was holding her own.

MRS. TWOMLEY was standing beside Clara's bed with a cup of gelatin and a spoon, but Clara did not look as though she cared for any jelly. She was lying flat against the pillows, her bandaged arm straight along her side.
Elaine could scarcely believe this white, drawn face belonged to the Clara who had talked so brightly about the red hawthorn.
"If it ain't Mrs. Bruce!" Clara whispered, and closed her eyes, as if whispering with an effort.
Elaine bent over the bed and took Clara's well hand. "You want to hurry up and get well, Miss Pierce," she said. "I came over to tell you. Somebody just dropped out of the program. You've simply got to take her place."
Clara did not answer. At first Elaine did not know whether she heard. But then she opened her eyes wide and turned her head toward Mrs. Twomley.
"Addie, I believe I'd relish a mite of your jelly," she said.
They postponed the guest day to June twentieth. It was better for the ramblers, anyway. And the twentieth was perfect weather, cool and brilliant. The Cecilia, Harp and Lyre, Apollo and all the rest began arriving in the forenoon. At 2:30 in the afternoon, the town hall was crowded with eager guests in summer hats. On the rose-decked platform sat the chairman of the Guest Day Com mittee. When the meeting was called to order, she rose and made a graceful speech of welcome to the visiting clubs. She spoke of music, and what it had meant to the world through all the centuries. She spoke, too, of art as community expression. And then she said:
"The first number on our program will be a soprano solo by our friend and member, Miss Clara Pierce."
And somehow, Clara's voice did not sound harsh to Mrs. Elaine Bruce.

When a Human Being Is Like a Hooked Fish in his son because he was 'nervous.' He was told that his son's 'nervousness' was really a manifestation of melancholia and that he might kill himself if he were not watched, and ought to be confined in a sanatorium. Mr. X. scoffed at the idea of so intelligent, sensible, and seemingly self-controlled man as his son doing such a thing. Six days later the boy was found hanging from a rafter. The papers said he was worried over finances. The father regards it as an inexplicable tragedy. The psychiatrist regards it as another instance of preventable suicide which ought to be called manslaughter. . . .

THE psychiatrist today considers mental disease to be indicated by unhappy or inefficient adaptation to life, and in this hectic struggle the psychopathic patient is likely to choose suicide as one of the ways out. There are other ways—morphine, delirium, daydreaming, an alcoholic spree, a good cussing, or perhaps a fishing trip. Properly treated, these depressions gradually lift, and the patient recovers his normal emotional balance and has no more urge toward suicide.
Great care should be exercised, however, not to assume too quickly that the temptation is gone, just because the patient appears cheerful. Some of our greatest tragedies have occurred under these circumstances.
Not all suicides are melancho-liacs, although most of them are.
There are suicides with inferiority complexes, with sexual abnormalities and psychopathies, with other types of brain disease, such as paresis; and, most important of all, some are apparently 'normal' persons. But such persons belie the adjective 'normal' by the act of suicide.
We turn to "moods." "Excess of elation or depression—either as prevailing moods—are essentially reciprocal . . ."; that is, elation is the opposite of depression, but closely related to each other.
"Unlike fearfulness, which is a matter of education, or rage, which is usually a bad habit or else due to structural brain injury, the tendency to elation and depression is apparently inborn and 'constitutional.' Hence, their association with the word 'temperamental' as applied to musicians, poets and artists. . . . There are many varieties of mood de-pressions, best shown by diagrams." (See page 6.)
But clinical experience shows that one's inborn temperament has much to do with a chart of their moods. "There are those . . . who in spite of innumerable setbacks, disappointments and causes for anxiety describe an emotional curve" which tends to keep them more than averagely elated. This is shown in figure 2.
"To match this type, however, there are those constitutionally or habitually depressed, as represented in Figure 3. Another type consists in more or less regular alterations of mood. . . ." (Figure 4.)
"In their augmented forms, excesses of emotional swings are clearly recognizable as psychiatric cases requiring hospital treatment (melancholia and mania)."
The author speaks of "dissociations." There are several types.
For instance, the case of "Mrs.
R.", falling under "Dissociation, from the control of the main personality, of a process ordinarily controlled unconsciously and automatically (digestion, heart action, etc.)" . . . "Mrs. R. was a well-poised, gracious and intelligent woman who consulted scores of physicians, chiefly heart specialists, because of one curious, persistent symptom. Her heart would suddenly begin to palpitate and pound along at a rapid rate in a distressingly appreciable fashion.
Most of the heart specialists agreed that there was no disease of the heart. They said it was 'nervous' in origin. A little psychological study of Mrs. R. revealed the fact that the portals of her consciousness were periodically bombarded with repressed recollections of intense emotionalism—fright, shame and anxiety —over incidents supposedly forgotten. Her consciousness never recalled them, but her heart did."

THERE are things called compulsions and they are not unusual. Compulsions
"are closely allied to obsessions; they are persistent re-petitious acts instead of persistent repetitious i d e a s (obsessions).
They are very common, familiar to most people, and usually quite harmless both to the individual and to society . . . . Here are some of the compulsions listed by my college students last year as being their particular pets: Touching posts. Counting blocks or bricks in sidewalks. . . . Stepping on or over cracks or on every brick in the sidewalks. . . .
"Then, some are more serious.
. . . 'A young woman was impelled at frequent intervals to rip up her clothes and make them over again, feeling that she could improve their fit. . . . Another had to count 10 before every contemplated action and then while carrying out the action she would have to tell herself what it was she was doing. Thus, if she were going out she would have to say:
'Now I am putting on my hat;
now I am opening the door,' etc.
Before beginning each of these actions she would have to count 10.'"
Dr. Menninger pays his tribute to Sigmund Freud. The author believes that "important as was the first discovery of coal, or iron, or oil, the discoveries of Freud are probably, in the long run, of far greater importance to the race.
. . . These discoveries of Freud resolve themselves into a theory about the way in which instinct acts to motivate human conduct.
We start out with the proposition that back of all living things there is an energetic drive to accomplish certain ends, which brings about a state of tension within the individual until its gratification is achieved. . . ."
Dr. Menninger believes that the schools are badly in need of psychiatric advice. "Ask a teacher
why Mary cries in school or why John fails to pass in spite of his 'smartness' . . . and the fatuity, the shallowness, the unhelpfulness of the replies will break your heart if you have been thinking with intelligence (or even if you haven't been if it is your child).
'She's just a peculiar child.' 'She doesn't apply herself.' 'He's spoiled.' 'He's lazy.' All of which means simply that the teacher doesn't know and doesn't know that she doesn't know." The author finds that colleges a n d universities, on the contrary, and a few high schools, realize the importance of psychiatric aid. He thinks industry and the courts are badly in need of it.

THE psychiatrist is not the only one who practices psychiatry, Dr. Menninger informs us. "For the vast bulk of psychiatry is done, not in state hospitals and not by privately practicing psychiatrists and not by the various free and pay clinics, but by the general practitioners and family physicians. It is they who have the constant contacts with patients whose minor nervous ailments, whose infelicities and inefficiencies, whose psychological and psychologically produced aches and pains, bring them to the doctor for help. The majority of these he can and does benefit. Here and there will be an exceptional case which is too severe, too complex, too resistant for routine treatment, which must be referred to a specialist, just as major surgical cases are referred to a surgeon. . . .
"For surely there is balm in Gilead. No greater illusion prevails than that mental sickness is usually hopeless, or has at best a bad outlook. Precisely the reverse is true. Most of its victims recover."

Speeding Up the Stars in Their Courses

machine is quickened the sensation is that of being in the vortex of a vast stellar whirlpool. Swarms of stars rise from the eastern skyline, climb slantingly westward and upward and, crossing the southern skies, swing downward and out of sight behind the western horizon. They fade out as they approach the horizon just as the real stars do. The artificial stars produced by the planetarium fade out because the lenses in the rotating bulbs are equipped with "eyelids" of mercury which close from below when the lenses pass below a horizontal position. This prevents the images of stars from being thrown below the horizon and into the faces of the spectators.
Standing at the switchboard, the lecturer speeds up or retards the heavens at will. Into the brief space of 50 minutes he will crowd more astronomical events than the visitor could observe in nature in a lifetime. In his hand he holds an optical pointer which is a sort of electric flashlight. It projects a luminous arrow on the dome overhead, so that he is able to point out what his words explain.
"In this area," he will explain as he shifts the arrow, "they found the new planet. But the planet does not appear here. It is not visible to the naked eye. For the same reason, you do not see Uranus and Neptune. The planetarium shows only those stars which are bright enough to be seen without the aid of a telescope."
A litle more than a minute passes and then, as new stars rise and others set, the observer becomes aware of a soft glow in the east. It is the first faint glow of dawn which approaches rapidly and the stars grow dimmer.
Soon there is a warmer glow at the eastern horizon and then—sunrise. The stars disappear and the sun crosses the sky. There is another glow on the horizon as it sets behind the Chicago skyline.
A day and night have been compressed into four minutes. Again night comes and a crescent moon is seen low in the west following the sun out of sight.
"You have just witnessed the passage of all the constellations you would be able to see were you to spend an entire night under the skies," the speaker continues.
"The sun has risen and set and with it the new moon. All that you have seen was faithful to fact save that events have taken place at 160 times their normal speed.
This speed was adopted in order that you might follow without difficulty the motions of the bodies, which are too deliberate to follow easily in nature."
By making use of special projectors the operator is able to produce other spectacular phenomena.
The sun can be made to cross the sky without effacing the stars, so that the observer can see where the constellations would be in the daytime. The sun can also be stopped on his march and made to stand still, permitting closer observation of the two inner planets, Mercury and Venus.
By tipping the "dumbbell" on its horizontal axis, time can be turned backard or forward so as to reveal the skies of the distant past or the distant future.
"We were taught in school," the speaker explains, "that the earth's axis makes an angle of 23 1-2 degrees with the plane of its orbit, but that this angle is gradually changing. The earth wabbles, or gyrates, like a spinning top that is dying down, though incomparably slower. One such gyroscopic, or 'precessional,' wabble is completed each 25,800 years. Thus, within a thousand years, a short time in the history of peoples, the North Star will lie so far from the north that the name will be a misnomer.
"When we start the 'wabble' motor, the pole star slides down toward the northern horizon and the Big Dipper dips below the horizon half the time. When the North Star reaches the horizon we have reached the year 14,800 A.
D., or 12,900 years in the future.
Equally well this might be 11,000
B. C., or 12900 years in the past, for the wabble takes place in a circle and is continuous. In either event, the southern constellations rise and the Great Southern Cross, which is not visible at all in this latitude at the present time, becomes visible as far north as Quebec."

Science's Views on Baths and Bathing

is given to carbonic acid baths.
This is particularly the case in Nauheim, where the carbonated baths are supposed to have special virtues for those with heart disease. Artificial carbonated baths are recommended, but in general American physicians have not seemed inclined to favor them particularly.
Few people realize how widely baths are used today in the care of the sick. In the United States Government hospital for the insane in Washington, D. C., approximately 100,000 hydrotherapeutic treatments are given every year.
In the veterans' hospital during 1926 there were almost 450,000 bath treatments used.
ONE of the strangest aspects of hydrotherapy has been the use of baths for the control of weight. Without control of the diet, bathing will never reduce anybody's weight. If the diet is greatly reduced it is quite possible to aid the reactions of the body by the proper use of warm baths.
The extremely hot bath increases the metabolism and aids the loss of water from the body.
When you get out of the bath, however, you are likely to feel thirsty and to drink large quantities of water to replace the amount that has been lost, thus putting yourself right back where you started.
Quacks of all types have taken advantage of this fact and sell for exceedingly high prices mixtures of common salt, Epsom salt, cornstarch and similar substances, with the suggestion that these salts sprinkled in the bath will produce a reduction in weight.
There is not the slightest warrant for this belief.
A well-known philosopher suggests that the common man bathes once each week, the careful man twice each week, and the gentleman at least one each day. Certainly once each day is not too often.

"Cat Eye Annie's" Latest Escape From Prison

who said she was Elizabeth Becker was employed as a housemaid at the home of George C. Mackay, a lawyer, who lived at 3680 Lindell boulevard. Two days later she forced Mrs. Mackay into a closet, and walked away with $5000 worth of jewelry. After police had found that the real Elizabeth Becker was employed elsewhere, members of the Mackay household identified a photograph of "Cat Eye Annie" as that of the woman robber.
The latter had disappeared,
however, and two months later
Lillian was reported in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, where a $17,000 robbery in her usual style had just been committed.
In September of 1925 they caught Lillian in Milwaukee and sent her to Buffalo, New York, to be tried for robbing a home there, where she worked as a maid, of $75,000 worth of valuables. She was convicted, but before sentence was pronounced she jumped out a window of the Sheriff's office and escaped. Her liberty was short, however. She had sprained her ankle and couldn't go far.
So Lillian was sent to Auburn prison for 10 years. Within a year she had got out. Having conducted herself so as to be put in a solitary cell as an incorrigible prisoner, she set to work with a spoon and a short iron window prop, and managed to dig a hole through the brick wall of her cell.
She crawled out one night, got over a wall by using a plank and a rope made from a blanket, and was free. The next day after her escape guards found her hiding in a pile of weeds and brush in a field not far away.

SOME of the police records give Lillian McDowell's birthplace as Ireland, others as Cincinnati, Ohio. Lieutenant Joyce says he knows Cincinnati has been her home. Of her early life nothing seems to be known by the St. Louis police; they found her, as did other officers, extremely close-mouthed.
McDowell is her married name, and her husband is said to have been a criminal. Police have tried to find out how she came to take up a career of crime and where and when, what she did with the profits of her thievery, and many such things. They have asked her such questions repeatedly. And she has answered only with a grin that rather resembles a Cheshire cat's you hear are synthetic and made to order. They are manufactured under pressure and cut to an unvarying pattern, and they are dishonest because the sentiments they are supposed to express are not the sentiments of the composers.

"A certain amount of jazz will do no harm if one listens to it in the same spirit that he takes a ride on the scenic railway at Forest Park Highlands. But when the mind becomes involved it is harmful because one forms the wrong kind of listening habits.
Good music can give such rare pleasure because before it gives any pleasure at all it requires a certain amount of mental concentration.
"But I am hopeful—not that jazz will die out, because it won't —but that an increasing number of people will learn to take it for what it is."
Max is a bachelor.
"You know how it is," he explains. "If you get the right girl —fine! But look at the numbers of chances there are of getting the wrong one. On the other hand, a 'cello doesn't eat anything, never talks back and will play any tune that you ask it to."

Whose Wife Is Mrs. Gibbons?

(Concluded from Page 1.)

dark for everyone but Mrs. A. K.
W. Selleck-Gibbons. For when she married Gibbons the New York law provided that she might do so in view of her first husband's five years of unaccounted absence, and it was Gibbons himself who interpreted that legal opinion. That law was later amended to provide that a wife must go through certain legal formalities in such a case before marrying a second husband, but the revision was made after Mrs. Gibbons' second marriage, and thus does not affect her.
Neither Selleck nor Gibbons seems to be at all confused by the involved nature of the litigation.
In fact, they are complicating the situation still further with another suit, for Selleck is now suing Mrs.
Gibbons for a divorce on the grounds that she was never legally married to Gibbons and was therefore living with him in adultery. Of course Selleck has named Gibbons as co-respondent in the case.
And to top off the matter, he has retained as his counsel in the case none other than Gibbons himself!

GROSS EXAGGERATIONS

A Fable Witt Clipettra From Also Mock Hentony.

WANCE oppon witt a time it howned Ijjipt a Keeng wot he conseested from Patolemy de Great. So dees Patolemy was ulso de proprietor from a dudder wot she was entitle Clipettra.

So wan day it culled her Patolemy to de badsite wot he sad to her, he sad so: "Noo, Clippy, dollink—it simms wot you hold man is gatting gradually on de Freetz."

"Why, Deddums, wot's de metter?"

"Hm, dot's jost it!!! It used to was hable in mine yonger days I should ron opp a pyrameed tree staps witt a time!! So, now!! I geeve a skeep from one stap so alrady I'm poffing witt penting witt hout from bratt!! You know—dot tired filling—avery peecture tells a sturry!!"

So Clipettra sad: "Hm, is dees a fect? Und do you filling in de monnink wick in de knizz, witt groggy??"

"Yas."

"Witt deezy spals witt spots in de front from de heyes? Witt no heppetite by de mills gradually?"

"Yas."

"Witt hoddening from de hotteries witt a luss maybe from weem witt weegor witt witellity?"

"Yas!"

"Hm—dees night life gats dem hall, you know. Ho, wal, chirr opp, hold ting. You'll make a swal mummy!! Motch batter as Toottenkemmen. Ha ha! Dot ront—whan dey feexed heem opp he looked like a surr feenger!!!"

So it cissed Patolemy to be a human bing, so it inherited Clipettra de beezness wot she was de Quinn from ijjipt. So she sad so:

"Ho boy! Time to stap hout! Whooy! Geedy witt guddy witt gay—dot's I'm!! From hencefutt hon!! Woops!!"

Was averytink hotsy witt totsy und was by Clipettra shiks witt boy frands witt swittizz witt sugar deddizz, havvy ones, witt botter witt hagg men galurr. Woops!!

So wan day it adwised a adwiser to Clipettra so: "Hm—it's not mine beezness I should meexing in, you Mejesty, bot take batter a teep und go a leedle beet on de suft pada!!!"

So Clipettra sad: "On accont from whom, plizze, I should suft-padaling, hafter hall dees yirrs!"

"Wal, you know, you Mejesty—prying heyes witt wegging tongs!—heh heh—witt hall doo rispact, of cuss!!"

"So who pries witt de heyes und who wegs witt de tongs, I hesk a henswer??"

"Hm—dun't esk—de whole tonn's tukking—dey say wot you de cuzz wot hall de men gung to de dugs!!"

So Clipettra sad: "Rilly!! Is dees a fect?? Wal, wal — hmmm — so hefter dees instat dey should gung to de dugs so in horder it should be a wariety—dey'll gung to de crocodiles!! HA HA! Noo, shake me opp a drimm de cucco, keed; WHOOOY!! Say! wot's de recket outside??"

"Bagging you poddon, you Mejesty—is in tonn witt a weesit Mock Hentony!!"

"Yi yi yi!! Not de Mock Hentony!! Queeck—take in de 'Beware from de Snake' sign!! Ho boy!! Sotch a treel I deedn't hed seence de geng played on poor hold Julius Sizzer mombly-pag witt de deggers!! Queeck—land me you leep-steeck! Don it!! Wherr in hack is dot podder poff! Queeck!! Whooy!! Hal right—lat heem in.

"Wal, wal, wal—grittings to our seety!! So you Mock Hentony—de famous spicker!! Wal, wal!!!"

"Yas, bot I deedn't came here to make a spitch!" he henswered. "Oops!! Oh—a tousand poddons, you Mejesty!! I deedn't racognized you witt a drass hon!! So dees is Clippy hersalf. Look! I tutt I'll gonna mitt a hold han!! Why, you jost a leedle weesp from a collinn ez we say in Rumm!!!"

"Hm—und wherr abbots in tonn do you stopping, Mockie?"

"De Huncle Sam Houze—Gants Honly heh heh—of cuss, I jost gatting dere de mail—you know, oss merried guys—heh heh! Bot bitwinn de minntime I brutt along mine yotch, so"——

So Clippy sad: "Ha ha—so dot's by you a yotch—dot rubboat—witt de cuffy-grinder in de beck—ha ha!! Comm by me on de bodge—for a ivvining. Dun't be beshfool. It'll cust you free!"

So wan hefternoon it was priperring Mock Hentony he should stodding opp a wurr—so it came sailing don de reever from Clipettra de bodge! Hm—wot a bodge!! Solid gold from futtin kerets it was geelded de stoin. Houtsprad it sprad sails from gudgeous poiple dey should strimming in de brizzes!! Urrs from ganuine stoiling seelver deeped in de wodder dipp!! From de jazz bend matrillized music wot it flutted hout from flutes witt fifes witt hopps, maladies, dillirous ones!! Poifume de whole woiks rikked from!! Hail alone on a diwan it ricklined Clipettra!!!

So it gafe a look Hentony wot he exclaimed: "WHOOY—oxcuse me, Ganeral!!"

So de Ganeral sad: "Bot, you Highness—we hon our way to wurr!!!"

So Hentony replite: "Noo—so wot is?? So I'll say Leffayette, we are hirr feeftin meenits later!! . . . Oohoo—Clippy!!! Wait for poppa!! Whooy. Is by me flaming de yoot!"

So it became conseederably hedgitated witt pittoibed witt waxed witt prowoked de suldiers in view from de feet wot dey was extrimmingly diffitted by de enemizz wot dey sad to itch odder dey sad so:

"Is dees a system?? Ho boy!! I weesh alrady he would merry dot dame so he hev at list wan night huff a wick he should attand to beezness!! Billive me, it deedn't was things like dees whan hold Julius Sizzer was ronning dees men's harmy!! Wot furr dey hed to bomp hoff de guy I dun't know—und I adwised heem, too—I sad, 'Julie, take mine teep und werr batter de teen wast!!! Bot no!! He knew batter!!! Sotch a izzygung guy!! Naver sospacted notting. Tutt wot de bicklorite from moicury was jest a leedle pentonime poisoning. Tree times he woke opp seex flurrs hunder his weendow!! Tutt it was slipp-wukking. Hm — a trosting soul. He dite!!

"Und dees dope!! In hall mine life deed you aver saw—In de meedle from a bettle yasterday I say, 'Queeck, Hentony—geeve halrady a horder. Squats right! Squats laft! Hult! Motch! Chodge! Annytink!' So he stotts in to seeng: 'I hesk you, confidantially — hain't she switt?' Billive me, boy—de naxt wurr so yuzz trooly'll gonna join de Y. M. C. A. Hm—eef he could honly treep over a gezzpipe—on de way hout some hefternoon. Ho, wal"——

* * *

So in horder it should be a hod sturry soft it commances alrady de beginning from de conclusion wot it came to Hentony poffing witt penting witthout from bratt a massanger hefter de bettle wot he exclaimed: "Harmy wiped hout!! HALL IS LUST!! Rad hot mommas you nidd, ha?? So wot'll gonna be?!"

So Hentony sad: "Hmm—it simms wot I'll gonna hev to take staps!! So sand to Rumm a talagrem so:

"'GREAT MORAL WEECTORY STOP SAND REINNFUSSMENTS STOP ULSO MINE POIPLE PEJEMAS STOP LUFF. MOCK.'

"Noo, boyiss, we'll jezz opp a leedle de harmy!!"

So he came hout so de suldiers sad: "Hm—you hirr et lest? Ha? Noo, hesk oss we should make a squats right!"

So Hentony sad: "Squats right!"

So dey sad: "In you het!! Noo, hesk oss now we should doong a goose-stap!!"

So he sad: "Gooze-stap! Motch!"

So dey sad: "Comm arond Toisday—we having de stritt widened!!"

So Hentony sad: "Sa-aa-y—wot you guys been doong while I was away?"

So dey henswered: "Hm—dun't esk! You'll be sopriced wot Horatius loined to make witt de niddle gudgeous niddlewoik!! And Petronius took opp menicuring—witt poimenent wafes!! And Lucullus—hm! —sotch crochating wot he—Yi Yi Yi!!! Wot's dees??? Halp! Queeck—Hentony bomped heemsalf huff!!"

* * *

So so soon wot Clipettra loined wot Hentony deed a herrikerri—so from remuss witt sorrow she drassed opp like a rebbit wot it beet her a snake wot she comeeted soosite!!

A ROVING KNIGHT'S ENTERTAINMENT

The Thousand and One Alibis of Henry Zader.

IN AN Eastern city that is watered by the River Hudson, there once dwelt a poor young man who signed his post-dated checks "Harry Zader." Having courted the daughter of a rich but honest stockbroker, and her parents approving the match, for, indeed, the young man was held in high esteem by all who knew him, the two were married and took up their abode in "The Ridgeview," an apartment facing other apartments. There they lived happily ever after—or at least their friends got that impression.

One afternoon the wife, desiring to attend the baseball game, telephoned her husband and suggested that they meet at the southernmost entrance to the grandstand, but he, after biting his lip, said his presence was required at a directors' meeting. Whereupon the wife hung up, not without sniffling, and, seeking to forget her disappointment, busied herself about the household with her handmaidens.

An hour later the wretch and two other directors might have been seen at the ball park, rooting lustily for the locals. So do men deceive their wives.

The game waxed into extra innings and one of the friends, explaining that the little woman awaited, said he must needs hie himself home. So, delving into the adjoining seat where the hats had been placed, the deserter thoughtlessly put on Mr. Zader's straw hat and departed, leaving behind him his derby. Which mistake went totally unnoticed by the twain remaining, as the bases were jammed and the call was three and two.

Many sands later Mr. Zader, wearing the friend's kelly, straggled up the steps of the Ridgeview to C-5, where he scratched at the lock with his key. The wife, throwing open the door, began to upbraid him because she had dined by herself and had worried considerably through his failure to telephone. He said he would explain all, once he had consumed whatever was left in the icebox, but she, catching sight of the strange hat, insisted on an immediate explanation, or else——

Therefore, having no other recourse, Harry Zader led his wife to the davenport and, after running his forefinger underneath his collar and clearing his throat, told her the story of The Magic Derby:

FATIGUED by the day's work, I left the office at about 5:30 and went out into the corridor for an elevator. Of these there are eight, arranged in banks of four, on either side of the hall.

I saw a red light flash over the last car on my left, but when I reached it the operator yelled "Full car!" and slammed the door in my face. Nothing daunted, I repaired to another red light on the opposite side of the hall. But, alas! this car was on its way up and had come down from the floor above for a brief moment to discharge a man who had forgotten to call his number. The next seven elevators swooped down without stopping and I knew I was marooned.

Despairing of ever seeing my home and loved ones again, I threw myself on the floor and wept bitterly. Could I ever get out of that building? Was I destined to be entombed there alive? These and similar thoughts overwhelmed me. My brow was fevered, my throat was parched, my eyes were starting from their sockets.

After sobbing for some minutes, I realized the folly of it. Chiding myself, I stumbled to my feet. Oh, joy, I saw red again! I crept into the shadow of the wall, intending to sneak up on the car and surprise it. Imagine my horrible disappointment when I discovered it was a disabled elevator that I had forgotten about. The two mechanics who sat astride the roof jockey-fashion quit hammering and glared at me.

"What, again?" they barked.

In a frenzy I prepared to hurl myself upon them to tear them limb from limb, but a sudden cry, "Going down!" quickly dispelled that impulse. Once again I thrilled to thoughts of escape. Every nerve was alive, tense. My heart throbbed violently. My hand shook. Was it indeed an elevator? Or only another mirage? I stared, rubbed my eyes and stared again.

There, there, its door open, the operator smiling broadly, stood the unmistakable form of a waiting elevator. I gave a gurgling cry and threw myself toward it. Oh, horror! An old man emerged, there was a head-on collision and the stranger clattered to the floor.

For a brief instant I was tempted to vault over my victim into the waiting car and so gain my freedom. But such was not my nature. I picked up the old man, dusted his cloak and apologized for my rudeness. At the same time the elevator door clanged shut and the car dropped down like a plummet. My heart dropped with it.

"Sir, you'll not regret this courtesy," said the old man in ringing tones. "I am the Spirit of the Magic Derby."

"Oh, yeah?" I said. "I am the Spirit of Eternal Truth. All we need is one more spirit and we can have a pageant."

The old man frowned severely.

"I rubbed the hat and repeated the mystic words."

"KNOW ye," he said, "that I roam this earth each day in search of people who do good deeds. Whenever I find anybody doing a particularly noble act, I reward him. I had despaired of finding anybody today, but here, at the last minute, you come along and demonstrate that chivalry is not altogether forgotten. In short, sir, you win the Magic Derby."

So saying, the old man pulled the hat from underneath his cloak and handed it to me. "With this derby," he continued, "you can get a wish granted. All you have to do is rub it and repeat the magic formula."

"Well, thanks," I said. "There aren't any wishes in this straw of mine and, besides, the band is a little garish."

Thereupon the old man recited the magic formula as follows:

"Gnat wings, arrow-root, water and fire, Derby, oh, derby, please grant my desire."

I repeated the words after him and soon mastered the whole thing. The old man shook hands with me and gathered his cloak about him.

"Well, I'll have to be disappearing along," he said. "I'll be here tomorrow to get the hat back. Do other good deeds and you may win it again some time. Now, remember, you get but one wish."

No sooner had the genii disappeared than I rubbed the hat and repeated the mystic words. Did I hesitate in making my wish? Not a second. Those elevators were still whizzing past me, but my way was clear to get out of that building and join you again.

"Home, derby," I commanded.

The next thing I knew I was walking up the front steps of our apartment. Out in the hall, I tried to wish for a box of candy to give you, but, as the genii said, the hat was good for only one request. . . . Perhaps you'll be lucky with it. . . . Here. . . . Rub it in a different part of the crown; I've almost worn through the middle. Now then, all together, "Gnat wings, arrow root, water and"——Hey! I told you that derby was only a loan!

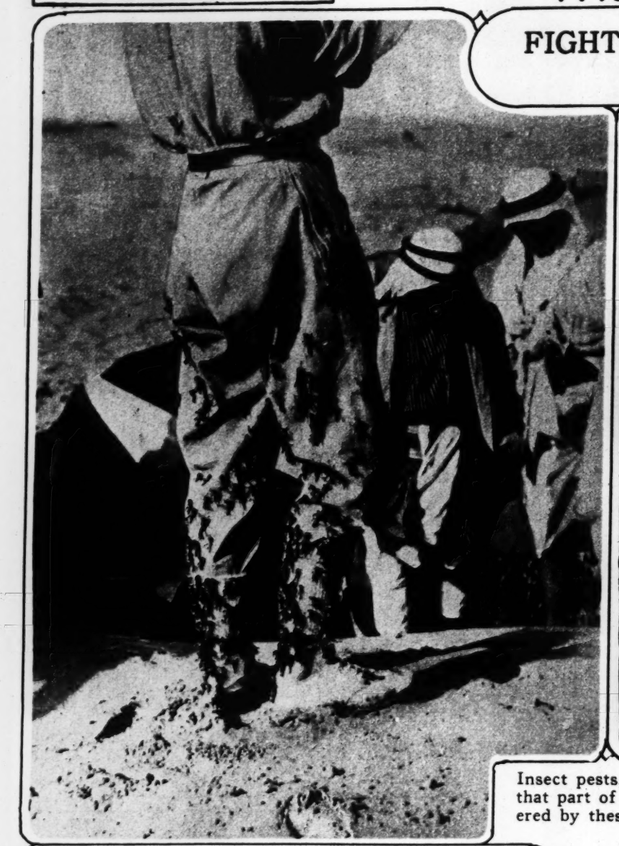
FIGHTING THE LOCUST PLAGUE IN THE HOLY LAND



Insect pests, swarming in clouds over the land to the east of Palestine, are being fought with fire and acids by an army of natives. Such visitations in that part of the world have occured at intervals since the Old Testament was written. Photograph at left shows how workers are sometimes partly covered by these grasshopper-like insects; right, burning the underbrush in the desert-like country south of Beersheba, where this year's plague is acute.

GRID STAR AND HEIRESS WED—Clifford E. Hoffman, better known as "Biff," of Stanford University, and Claire Evelyn Giannini of San Francisco, only daughter of founder of famous banking organization, just before marriage ceremony.

A DEMOCRATIC MONARCH—
King Christian of Denmark, strolling through streets of Copenhagen, stops to contribute to charity drive.

PROTECTORS OF WARSHIPS—Three airplanes laying down a smoke screen for the battle fleet in war maneuvers off Virginia Capes.

A LOT OF LOOPS—Miss Laura Ingalls of New York made 980 consecutive and complete aerial somersaults in the air at Muskogee, Ok. She was aloft for three hours and forty minutes, shattering her own record made only a few weeks ago.

DESTRUCTION IN BURMA EARTHQUAKE—Crumbling ruins of a house in Rangoon in which 34 persons lost their lives.

FAIRMOUNT FROM THE AIR—A view of the Illinois racetrack during the running of the Derby about two weeks ago.

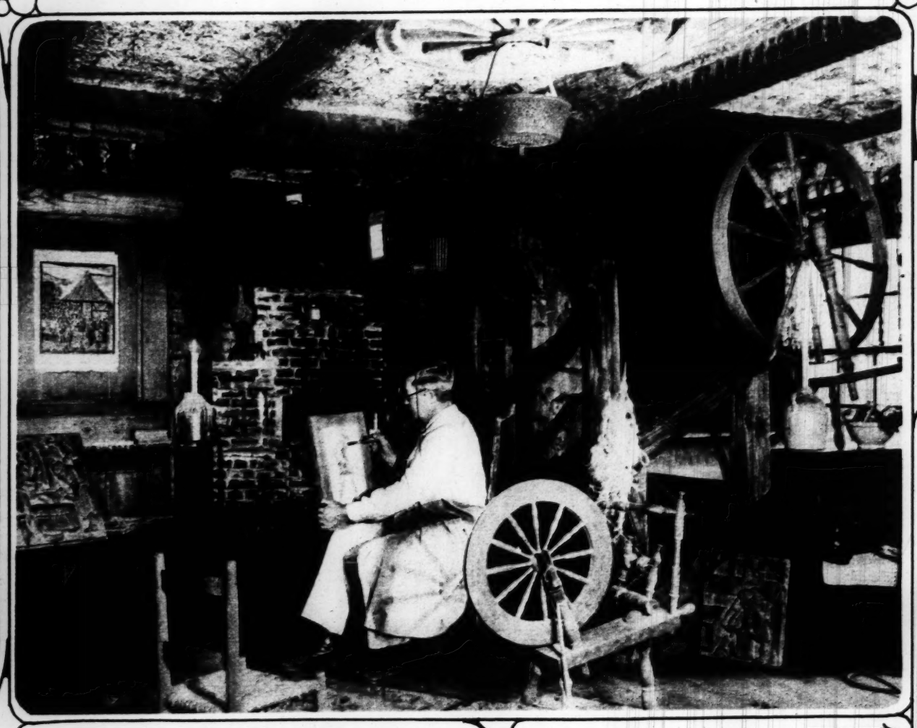
A HOPPNER COMING TO ST. LOUIS—Portrait of Mrs. Jane Ramsey, painted probably in the closing years of the eighteenth century, recently sold to a St. Louisan by the Newhouse Galleries.

OPERA STAR BACK FROM EUROPE—
Mary Lewis photographed as she greeted friends in New York after landing from the steamship Europa.



A ROOM OF YESTERYEAR—Chris Holt, Norwegian woodcarver, in his workshop at Long Beach, Cal., filled with relics of 150 years ago or more.

ADOLPH ZUKOR, noted film magnate, with Mrs. Zukor, back in the United States after a visit to European capitals.

STILL IN USE AFTER 52 YEARS—Back in 1878 Peter Duncan of Carmody, Ireland, bought this tricycle and he has been using it ever since. The sprightly rider is now 86 years old.

REGENT OF HUNGARY—Admiral Nicholas Horthy as he recently appeared at garden party given in his honor at Budapest.

MATERNAL DEVOTIONS—Group of gold star mothers, from the United States, placing flowers upon the graves of their sons who fell in the World War. The scene is in the cemetery at Suresnes, near Paris.

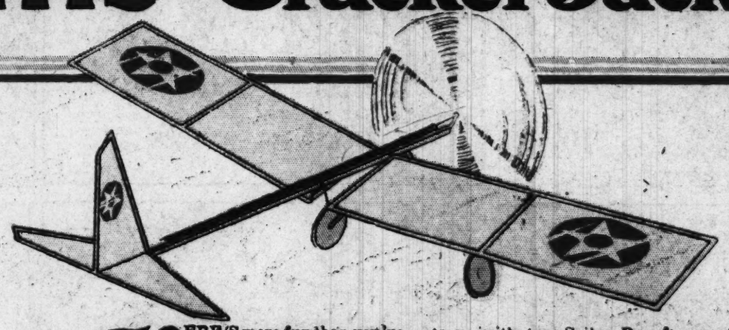
WIN THIS CrackerJack AIRPLANE



AND BOY—HOW IT FLIES!

Send for your Air Corps Wings today . . . and start right in winning this slick little flyer

These are the Wings of the Cracker Jack Air Corps—just see how easy it is to get them. And to the right is your high-flying Wanner Special R.O.G. Monoplane Kit—No. 101.

HERE'S more fun than you've had in a long time. Model airplane flying is one of the greatest sports in the country, and here's a chance to get the whole Cracker Jack Air Fleet and wear the Wings of the Cracker Jack Air Corps just as over 60,000 other boys are doing already.

All you have to do to get your Wings is fill in the coupon below and send it to us with two Sailor Boy faces cut from packages of good old Cracker Jack. We'll send your Wings right away and make you a regular member of the Cracker Jack Air Corps. Then you can start right in winning this genuine Wanner Special R. O. G. Monoplane Kit No. 101.

How to win this Cracker Jack Monoplane

After you have your Wings you can get your Cracker Jack ship just by saving the Sailor Boy faces from 5 packages of Cracker Jack. Write your name on the back of each one and send them to us with 20c. to cover packing and mailing costs. We'll send your "Wanner Special" by return mail.

Then's when the fun begins! All you have to do is sit down and assemble the parts—wind up the propeller and away it flies up in the air. Tournaments, races—all the fun of real flying. So get busy with your Cracker Jack eating. The sooner the better, because the offer for this plane closes July 15, 1930.

No trouble getting Cracker Jack nickels

It's easier to get a nickel for Cracker Jack than most anything. Mother and Dad used to eat lots of it when they were kids—many of them still do, and they know how good and wholesome it is—this famous old molasses-covered popcorn and peanut confection. Cracker Jack helps keep you fit all the time and builds strong, husky arms and legs.

So start right in today—Mother, Dad and Sister can help, but if you're a regular Cracker Jack eater you probably won't need it. You'll have 5 Sailor Boy faces before you know it.

CHECKER BOXES ARE ACCEPTED TOO!

If you live some place where Cracker Jack is not sold you probably like Checkers better than anything. If that's the case send the narrow side panel from Checker boxes—the one that says "Prize Checkers," for both your Wings and Airplane.

Don't Forget— a surprise in every package

Dear Sirs: I would like to join the Cracker Jack Air Corps and start winning the whole Cracker Jack Fleet. Attached are two Sailor Boy faces from Cracker Jack packages. Please send me my membership wings.
